Banker Taken To Jail

Examiners Find Funds Misallocated

VALENTINE, Neb. (AP) — Affable Dick Davenport came home Saturday to this thriving cattle town where he had won respect as banker, churchman, sports lover and after-dinner story teller.

But this was a sad day in Valentine.

Examiners had locked Davenport's Nebraska State Bank reporting that $1.5 million had been misappropriated.

And in the chill darkness before dawn the county jail doors swung open to admit Davenport.

Some of the affection for Davenport remained.

"I'm going to see to it that he gets fed real well," said Mrs. George Welker, wife of the sheriff.

Davenport, 45, was president of the state bank, one of two in the community of 3,000. State Banking Director Henry Ley said Davenport admitted misappropriating $1.5 million over a 14-year-period. The banker was charged with embezzlement.

Ley said Davenport told him the money was used in land and cattle deals, the stock market and gambling.

Davenport took over the bank after World War II from his father, a man with a reputation as a conservative banker who put on no airs, but who was a leader when there were things to be done in the northern Nebraska town.

The younger Davenport also succeeded his father as town treasurer, and in civic and church activities with his wife, a slim, attractive brunette who still has a drawl she brought from Alabama.

With two sons, one of whom now is at the University of Nebraska, they lived without ostentation in a modest brick home.

"If you walked down the main street last week and asked 100 persons who was the most respected man in Valentine, 95 would have said Dick Davenport," one of his friends observed.

But in one of the nation's richest cattle lands, the closing of a bank is the source of anxiety.

"This is the time of the year when there are a lot of cattle sales," said Linvel Helton, secretary-manager of the Sandhills Cattle Association. "The people that could be in bad shape are the ones who have just sold cattle and deposited money in the bank."

At Giant Rally

Johnson Predicts Victory For Self

NEW YORK (AP) — President Johnson has predicted victory for himself in Tuesday's election because he said the people believe his opponent's "extremism in pursuit of the presidency is an unpardonable vice."

Johnson came to Madison Square Garden on Saturday night for a giant rally that he said in a prepared text, would end his campaign. This came after two hard-hitting appearances in Delaware and a scheduled motorcade through Nassau County.

In the windup, Johnson accused GOP presidential nominee Barry Goldwater and his running mate, Rep. William E. Miller, of conducting a campaign of "mudslinging, smears and scandal" that was "dedicated to extreme ideas, not to old values."

"They are not conservatives in the American tradition," the President said. "They are interested in tearing down institutions, not to preserve them. 'Conservative' may be written on their banner. But 'radical' is in their hearts.

Johnson chided Goldwater for, in his words, not offering "a choice, not an echo," an early GOP campaign slogan. Instead, the President said, his rival had restorted to "mudslinging."

"I can tell you why they are doing it," Johnson said. "They found out that the American people would overwhelmingly reject their ideas and their programs. They found out that the great silent vote was a myth. They discovered that the revolution of the extremists was a dying ember.

"They ran smack into the good sense of the American people.

"They discovered that as far as the American people are concerned extremism in pursuit of the presidency is an unpardonable vice.

"Moderation in the affairs of the nation is the highest virtue."

Before he flew to Farmingdale, N.Y., to head a motorcade, Johnson told a cheering crowd at a Wilmington, Del., rally that he is confident his election would trigger a breakthrough to an era of unprecedented abudance.

Denounces Johnson

Goldwater Winds Up Bid For Votes

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater wound up his bid for the South's votes Saturday night by denouncing the Johnson administration's 1964 civil rights act as "unfair discrimination in the private affairs of men.

"Government must insure freedom of association," the Republican presidential candidate said in the first speech in the South in which he has directly invoked the issue of civil rights, "but it cannot and should not insure association itself.

"That is a matter of the heart and conscience," he said.

"Freedom to associate is a double freedom or it is nothing at all," he said.

Goldwater flew here on the next to last fully day of campaigning from rallies in his home town of Phoenix, Ariz., and in San Antonio in President Lyndon B. Johnson's home state of Texas.

At Phoenix, he termed as "strange, distorted minds" those that would unilaterally disarm the country, saying that to keep the peace, the U.S. had to be strong militarily.

Both Texas and the South are crucial keys to the victory Goldwater claims he's going to get next Tuesday.

The speech he made Saturday night was almost identical with one he made earlier this week in Cleveland, Ohio, and before that in Chicago.

"Of course," he declared, "government should not discriminate among citizens on irrelevant grounds such as color, creed or religion, and no political leader believes it should.

"No person," Goldwater asserted, "whether government or private citizen, should violate the rights of some in order to further the rights of others."

He said he opposed the 1964 Civil Rights Act because it posed an issue which he termed "unfair discrimination in the private affairs of men.

"No law," he argued, "can make one person like another if he doesn't want to. Government can do little more than offer moral leadership and persuasion.

"The ultimate solution lies in the hearts of men."

The Arizona senator said he was opposed to the forced bussing of school children to achieve a racial balance. This, he continued, could lead to "racial quotas as a principle of equal opportunity in every aspect of social life.

"Our aim," Goldwater declared, "is neither to establish the segregated society nor to establish an integrated society. Our aim is to preserve a free society."

Two Men Are Arrested In Jewel Theft Case

NEW YORK (AP) — Two men were arrested in Florida and another here Saturday in one of the century's most astonishing jewel theft cases. The FBI, which reported the arrested, said none of the gems had been recovered, however.

The precious stones were stolen Thursday night from the famed Museum of Natural History here. They included the world's largest star sapphire, the renowned "Star of India," and a star ruby termed the most perfect in the world.

29th Season Of Symphony Opens Nov. 9

Members of Sedalia Symphony Orchestra, directed by Abe Rosenthal, have been rehearsing several weeks to prepare for their 29th season. The first concert will be at the Smith-Cotton High School Auditorium, Monday, Nov. 9.

The city of Sedalia can boast of having one of the few nonprofit symphonies in the country. Many such musical organizations have become victims to the lack of cultural interests in communities. Others have fallen by the wayside because of competition with other forms of musical entertainment. The Sedalia Symphony Orchestra has survived such fate because of the aesthetic appreciation on the part of Sedalians and patrons in surrounding cities, as well as the fervid interest by local and nearby musicians to participate in such a musical organization as an avocation.

This coming season will see 43 top instrumentalists comprising the orchestra. Rosenthal, a charter member, will be conducting for his 29th year. His assistant conductor is Mrs. Carl Schrader.

Other participants are Harold Johnston, concertmaster; Florence Goodrich, Clara Hiltenburg, Arthur Hoffman, Margaret Edwards, Susan Callis, Rita Hamlin, Sherry Kampschmidt, Larry Cramer, Edith Donath, principal, Janet Reyburn, Rebecca Cramer, Elizabeth Wheeler, Sandra Hughes, Gwendolyn Kappleman, and Nancy Atkins, all violinists.

Violas, Hugh Williams, Sandra Rieves; Cellos, Helen Coffelt, Mrs. Charles B. Cheffey, and Robert Stewart; basses, Mrs. Schrader, principal, Jake Siragusa, Cynthia Stauffacher, and Pat Siragusa; flutes, Sylvia Thompson, Wanda Schreiner; clarinets, Richard Esser and Ruth Cheffey.

Oboe, Gordon Coleman; bassoons, Bill Long and Suzanne Johannber; trumpets, Jack James, Robert Cummings, and Bill Brown, Jr.; trombones, D. H. Robinson, H. David Gower; French horns, Garry Schwartz, Mike Rooks, and R. Hannaford; percussion, Mary Goodrich and Edgar J. Eckles; and piano, T. S. Hopkins.

United Fund Drive Total Over $10,000

With the Sedalia Pettis County United Community Fund Drive now just less than a month old, the total donations now read $10,177.50.

According to UCF officials, this amount is considerably below the amount turned in at this time last year, but officials were heartened by the fact that donation amounts are running ahead of last year. William J. Jarret, UCF Campaign Manager said yesterday that "with this kind of giving being demonstrated this year, the 13 agencies who so desperately need this money to operate will not have to conduct a drive of their own. This," Jarret said, "is the thing we are trying to keep away from. We have a community responsibility to see that these agencies are taken care of."

The United Community Fund Office released the following list of firms and individuals who had donated $100 or more:

The Corps of Engineers office, Union Savings Bank, J. C. Penney Company, Thompson Greer, Inc., Central Missouri Electric Cooperative, William Schien, Beatrice Foods Company, Archias Seed and Floral Company, Cash Hardware, The Internal Revenue Office, Bothwell Hospital Employees, Dugan Paint Company, Abe Silverman Insurance Agency, Judge Dimmitt Hoffman, the law firm of Lamm, Barnett, Crawford and Barnes; William Gibson, Thomas Keating, John Martin, Interstate Processing Company, Interstate Studios, Dr. Lawrence Geiger, Sedalia Bank and Trust Company, Donnahue Loan and Investment Company, Robert Wesner, August Gordon, Hoffman Hardware, Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, and the Sedalia Chamber of Commerce Office.

Four US Servicemen Are Killed When Mortar Hits

20 Americans Wounded; Six US Jets Destroyed

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — A Viet Cong mortar barrage crashed into South Viet Nam's second largest airport Sunday morning, killing four U. S. servicemen, wounding about 20 other Americans, and destroying or damaging 17 planes.

Six of the planes destroyed were U.S. Air Force B57 jet bombers that have been in this country since the Gulf of Tonkin crisis in August.

According to preliminary reports, the Communists began pouring 81mm mortar fire into Bien Hoa Airport 15 miles northeast of Saigon 26 minutes past midnight local time—11:26 a.m. EST, Saturday.

The fire was deadly accurate and concentrated on the hangar and billet area of the big modern field. Bien Hoa is South Viet Nam's most important military field and has been enlarged to handle the largest bombers made.

Besides the six B57s destroyed, eight other B57s were damaged, two propeller-driven fighter bombers were destroyed, one while trying to take off, and a helicopter was destroyed.

This was by far the most destructive attack by the Viet Cong in the history of this war against any American installation.

Vietnamese casualties from the shelling, if any, were not immediately known.

(Informed of the Viet Cong assault while he was campaigning in New York City, President Johnson scheduled a meeting in Washington Sunday with Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Secretry of Defense Robert S. McNamara and other top administration officials. White House aides said the attack could not be considered "a severe setback" in the Vietnamese war but added it might be an important development in the hostilities.)

U.S. military officials in Saigon said artillery and planes from Bien Hoa struck back in the approximate direction of the Viet Cong mortars, but there were no indications whether the enemy was hit.

The huge attack clearly seemed planned by the Viet Cong to coincide with South Viet Nam's National Day. Nov. 1 was being celebrated throughout South Viet Nam as the first anniversary of the overthrow of Ngo Dinh Diem by a military coup.

Police reported they understood the Viet Cong terrorists were likely to try some bombing in Saigon during the day, and maximum security preparations were in effect.

The Bien Hoa airfield has been closed to newsmen since 1960 except for rare occasions. The field has been the site of a number of semi-secret operations, including active U.S. Air Force participation in the guerrilla war here.

Vandalism On Rampage Saturday

Vandals apparently went on a rampage in Sedalia Saturday night as persons with destructive intentions celebrated Halloween. Local law enforcement officers were kept busy answering calls involving varied things as the throwing of apples from the underpass to spraying cars with enamel spray paint.

Sedalia Police were augmented by four auxiliary policemen and numerous off duty patrolmen as well as about 14 units of the Sedalia Citizens Band emergency network. Pettis County Sheriff Emmett Fairfax was assisted by about six special deputies.

Accoring to reports the city was the hardest hit in the early hours of the evening. County authorities reported that the incidents that they had investigated had been mostly minor in nature. It was reported that vandals did attempt to block several sreets in communities around Sedalia, but that these had been quickly noticed and removed.

Reports of vandalism were as follows:

Police investigated a group of people throwing apples from he MKT Underpass on South Highway 65 at 7:18 p. m. The people were gone upon the arrival of officers.

Vandals reportedly threw firecrackers in the mailbox at Broadway and Lafayette at 7:25 p. m.

Numerous cars were reported as having writing in soap on them near the Boonslick Library a Fifth and Lamine at 7:25 p.m.

At least five cars were reportedly sprayed with paint in the

In Tuesday Vote

Polls Point To Victory For LBJ

NEW YORK (AP) — A nationwide survey of presidential polls, local, state and national, showed them pointing unanimously Saturday to a victory for President Johnson in next Tuesday's election.

The figures indicated that Johnson's percentage of the popular vote may approximate the record high of this century.

Associated Press bureaus throughout the nation reported latest figures in surveys taken in their areas. Some were for cities, counties or statewide.

None of those listed — including a survey taken in Arizona, Sen. Barry Goldwater's home state — showed the Republican candidate leading.

Goldwater has consistenly scoffed at the polls. He said, last Friday night, "I've had a feeling for the last two or three weeks that we're going to win this thing. I know the polls don't agree with me, but they never have."

Record highs in the presidential elections of this century were:

Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democrat, 60.8 per cent of the popular vote in 1936.

Warren G. Harding, Republican, 60.4, in 1920.

A semifinal poll by Dr. George Gallup, director of the American Institute of Public Opinion, gave Johnson 64 per cent and described this as an "unprecedented lead."

The most recent nationwide figures by pollster Louis Harris gave Johnson 60 per cent, Goldwater 34 per cent, with 6 per cent undecided.

Newsweek magazine reported that a poll of 50 Washington correspondents "representing all media" showed 49 predicting victory for Johnson. Their total consensus gave Johnson 454 electoral votes, to 84 for Goldwater.

Pollster Samuel Lubell, summarizing his nationwide findings, said earlier this week, "Next Tuesday's voting should bring landslide victory for President Johnson."

In the state and local polls reported by AP bureaus, Johnson's highs were in New York and in one Iowa poll.

The New York Daily News straw ballot for Saturday showed Johnson with 75.3 per cent of the choices. In Iowa, Wallace's Farmer poll, taken Oct. 22, gave Johnson 70 per cent, Goldwater 28 per cent, with 2 per cent undecided.

Johnson's lows appeared in polls reported from North Carolina and Arizona, 46 per cent in each.

In Goldwater's home state, a statewide, nonpartisan survey taken by the Arizona Poll, for the Phoenix Gazette showed the GOP candidate running close to the President with 45 per cent and said 9 per cent were undecided.

This survey was taken from Oct. 24 through Oct. 26 and the figures were based on samplings of 3,283 Arizonans.

Sports Car Crash Fatal To Driver

John Carver, 25, Is Victim; Wife Severely Injured

Professor John Gwinner Carver, 25, Richland, Iowa, was fatally injured, and his wife Prof. Ann A. Cathey Carver, 24, was severely injured in a one-car accident shortly before 11 p.m. Friday when their car left County Highway CC about four miles east of Houstonia. They were enroute to the home of the Rev. and Mrs. E. H. Winkler, Houstonia, to visit over the weekend and to attend the Missouri Valley College Homecoming at Marshall.

Prof. Carver was a classmate of Rev. Winkler when they were students at Missouri Valley College. Rev. Winkler is pastor of the Methodist Church in Houstonia.

The young couple are both professors at the Parsons College in Fairfield, Iowa. They have visited the Winkler family at Houstonia before and it was not determined what actually caused the accident, other than the 1964 sports convertible went out of control going around a curve, traveling approximately 150 feet off and down the shoulder of the blacktop highway. As the car nosed down, it went end for end, bounced into the air and struck a tree about eight feet from the ground, bounced back and landed on its wheels. The car was demolished.

Both Prof. Carver and his wife were wearing seat belts at the time. As the car flipped, it appeared as if Carver's head struck some object which practically scalped him, causing multiple fractures of the skull, and fractures of several vertebrae in the neck. He died shortly after the wreckage was discovered by A. J. Lemler, of Marshall Junction.

Lemler who was enroute east on "CC" said he came around a curve just west of the accident scene and saw a woman in the road. He said rather than stop, he continued on to the next farm home to get aid, and unable to arouse anyone, drove to the farm home of William T. Reid, of Route 1, Houstonia, about a mile and a half east of the scene. The Reids had Mr. and Mrs. Don Thomas, Route 4, as their guests and Reid and Thomas accompanied Lemler back to the scene. In the meantime the State Highway Patrol was notified and they radioed to Sedalia for an ambulance and notified Trooper Robert Bruce to go to the scene.

As Lemler, Reid, and Thomas headed back to the scene, Mrs. Carver had retraced her steps and headed back eastward and they found her at a curve about a quarter of a mile east of the scene. They stopped, placed her on the back seat of Lemler's car, and wrapped her in a blanket, then returned to the wrecked car.

They waited at the scene for the ambulance and patrol. Carver died a few minutes before the ambulance arrived. Gillespies's ambulance took Mrs. Carver to Bothwell Hospital accompanied by Rev. Winkler, who had been notified and drove to the scene from Houstonia. Dr. A. J. Campbell attended her.

She suffered two severe lac-

Lumber Building Damaged By Fire

A fire of apparent undetermined origin did approximately $20,000 damage to the Hughesville Lumber Company building and contents at 1 p.m. Saturday. The blaze was extinguished by the Hughesville volunteer fire company.

The Pettis County Fire Department was summoned, but their truck was being repaired. However, the firemen took an old truck and went to the scene of the fire to assist. The fire was out on their arrival.

The building was metal and reportedly owned by Art Martin.

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I am a boy, 17 years old. College is a year away, but I am already beginning to worry about something. I talk in my sleep.

For years my brother has been ribbing me about it. I accused him of making up lies to get my goat but he swears he is telling the truth.

According to my brother the talking goes on and on like a soundtrack of a movie. He says I speak distnctly and call people by name. I've said things in my sleep that have made two girls look bad and I'm ashamed of myself because it isn't true.

Do you know any way to cure a sleep-talker? Every morning when I wake up I ask my brother what I said during the night. —24 HOUR ORATORY.

Dear Oratory: Your brother is giving you the business. So long as he can get a rise out of you he'll keep it up.

Stop asking him what you said in your sleep. Chances are you said nothing that made any sense. Most sleep-talkers mumble unintelligible phrases. Occasionally you may utter a word or a sentence, but you can be sure there is no "self-incrimination." (Now go to sleep and keep quiet.)

Dear Ann Landers: I am writing in behalf of my niece. She is 30-years-old—and in a jam. Corrine has been going with a married man, (age 40) whose wife is in the state mental hospital. The man told Corrine and her parents that he can't get a divorce because his wife won't consent to it. He also volunteered this: "It's against the law to divorce a person who is in a mental institution."

Last Sunday I went to see the man's wife in the hospital and she was as gracious and fine a person as I have ever met. She told me her husband had never asked for a divorce and if he wants a divorce he may have one. She said she would not want to be the cause of a child born out of wedlock.

Corrine's mother has dumped this problem into my lap because she is too nervous to deal with it. What should be done about this mess?—SELECTED.

Dear Sel: It sounds as if they have the wrong person in the institution. The wife appears to be the most sensible one of the group.

In some states it is not possible to divorce a person who is in a mental institution. See a lawyer and learn what the law is in your state. The man is obliged to pay the medical expenses and support the child—whether he marries Corrine or not.

Dear Ann Landers: I've been going with Don for three years. He is a wonderful young man and I love him very much.

The problem is Don thinks he owns me. He insists on knowing where I go, what I do, who I talk to and what was said. It's a battle every time I want to spend an evening with the girls. Don insists on driving me over and taking me home.

I've tried breaking up with him for as long as one whole week. I can't stand to be away from him and he knows it. This is true love but I wish he wouldn't act like my Lord and Master. I feel like I'm being trailed by the F. B. I. What can I do to build his confidence in me?—BALL 'N CHAIN.

Dear Chain: It's not his lack of confidence in you that makes Don behave this way, it's his lack of confidence in himself.

People in love hold each other close only when they set one another free. When Don is sure of HIMSELF he will be relaxed about You.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

The World's Week

Polls Show LBJ in Lead As Campaign Hits Climax

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

In tornadoes of oratory, the long presidential campaign swirled toward its close.

Most of the polls, as the week ended, said Lyndon Johnson was far ahead, but the President, a great reader of the polls, wasn't taking any chances and was working hard to make them come true. Barry Goldwater, who also reads them, said he didn't believe them. He predicted that the political upset of the century was in the making.

A record vote was forecast. Predictions ranged upward from 71 million ballots to 75 million. The existing record is 68,838,000, in the 1960 Kennedy-Nixon battle. Since then, population increases have added 4.9 million voters to the potential. In addition, District of Columbia residents will vote for the first time, poll taxes are now illegal, and thousands of Negroes have joined the registration lists.

Republican National Chairman Dean Burch said he expects Goldwater to carry Texas, Johnson's home state; make a clean sweep in the South, pickup a couple of border states, win key states in the Midwest and West, and "pull some surprises on the Eastern Seaboard."

Johnson, criss-crossing the country by plane as balloting day neared was making no claims. At one point he said: "anybody who counts those votes before they are in the ballot box is gambling with his life and the future of this nation. The risk is too great." The President's consistent theme was for calm, deliberate actions in a nuclear age. At one stop he said "some people have more guts than brains." Time and again he used a favorite saying: "Telling a man to go to hell and making him go there are two different things."

Goldwater made his last call in the East Thursday, then headed West to finish up his campaign in California, one of the states he has said he must carry to win. All the way he hammered hard at two main themes, Communism and moral decay.

On Tuesday, as the storm clouds clear, Johnson will be in Texas watching the returns. Goldwater will be in Arizona.

Elsewhere in the world:

Rebellion, mainly by tin miners and students, raged for days in Bolivia, with at least 50 persons reported killed. Thursday night, the government of President Victor Paz Estenssoro broke relations with Communist Czechoslovakia, accusing the Czech embassy in La Paz of supplying arms to the rebels.

Joint amphibious maneuvers of United States and Spanish military forces, involving 120 ships and more than 30,000 men, ended Friday. The war games, conducted along a 145-square mile sector of the Spanish coast, cost the lives of 13 Americans, killed in plane and helicopter crashes.

Britain's new Labor government wasted no time in moving to strengthen the British economy. It announced a 15 per cent surtax, effective immediately, on all imports except food, raw materials and tobacco. The measure, said to be temporary, was designed to stimulate domestic business enterprises and reduce the outflow of money for things which Britain herself can make. Hardest hit were members of the Common Market, 57 per cent of whose exports go to Britain. Next hardest hit was the United States. First official Washington reaction was one of understanding.

Reports from Moscow said the Kremlin was advising Soviet party organizations and foreign Communist parties that Nikita Khrushchev was booted out because of 29 instances of political error and personal misconduct. Those who said they had seen the 40-page document said it listed these crimes, among others:

Khrushchev erred in sending missiles to Cuba, because he lost face by being forced to withdraw them. He reduced the fight with Red China to the level of a personal vendetta with Mao Tse-tung. He was wron gabout how long it would take the Chinese to build an atom bomb. His agriculture policy was wrong. He built his own cult as bad as the Stalin cult.

Khrushchev himself still had not been seen since his abrupt downfall Oct. 14. He was reported to be living in a four-room apartment near the Kremlin, getting a pension of $1,100 a month. He had a couple of neighbors, the reports said: V.M. Molotov and Georgi Zhukov.

As the Ecumenical Council came to grips with the birth control issue, Roman Catholic leaders split into consrevative and liberal camps. The liberals were demanding a thorough restudy of Catholic doctrine on marriage and birth control. The powerful backing received from senior Church leaders was described as a "turning point" in Catholic Church history. It was likely, however, that no final enunciation of Church teachings on marriage and conjugal relations would emerge for several years.

The final 1964 Nobel prizes were announced in Stockholm. A British woman, Mrs. Dorothy Crowfoot Hodgkin became the third woman in history to win the chemistry prize, Madame Marie Curie and her daughter Irene being the others. Mrs. Hodgkin won the $53,000 prize for her work in determining, through the use of X-rays, the structure of biochemical compounds essential in combatting pernicious anemia.

An American, Prof. Charles Hard Townes of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, shared the physics prize with two Russians, Prof. Nikolai Basov and Prof. Aleksander Prochorov, for their work in the development of maser and laser beams. They will split the prize money, half to Townes and the other half to the Russians.

Although Sitting Bull is given credit for leading the Indians at the Battle of the Little Big Horn, Crazy Horse was the real Sioux leader in the battle.

Shepley Lauds Experience As An Executive

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Ethan Shepley believes he has more executive experience to qualify him for the job as Missouri's governor than does his Democratic opponent.

Shepley, winding up his campaign in Kansas City with an interview, spoke against one of the main themes used by Warren Hearnes, secretary of state.

"Mr. Hearnes says he has executive experience and that I have none," Shepley said. "I say exactly the opposite is true. His executive experience is nil.

"The secretary of state is a clerk's job. And being a legislator doesn't give you administrative experience.

"As chancellor of Washington University in St. Louis from 1954 to 1961, I was in charge of planning, developing and financing physical facilities that were required following World War II.

"Being the chief executive of that operation is a pretty complicated job. It's surely one in which you gain executive experience."

Shepley said he handled a budget that ranged from $20 million to $30 million a year, presided over a faculty of 1,500 educators and 12 separate colleges or schools. The enrollment was about 14,000.

Parents attending from Sedalia were: Mr. and Mrs. Perry Wolkey, Mr. and Mrs. John Welch, Mrs. Ann Brown, Mrs. Richen Price, guardian of Bethel 15 and Mr. Price, and Francis Rudd, associate guardian.

Wednesday night, Oct. 21, Job's Daughter Father and Daughter Banquet was held at Masonic Temple, with 75 persons attending.

Miss Rose, honored queen, presided and gave welcome. Invocation was given by Miss Janis Marshall, chaplain. Fathers and guests were introduced.

Mrs. Price, guardian, congratulated the girls. Tribute to all fathers was given by Miss Pam Price, senior princess, with the response from Richen Price.

A special tribute to Bethel No. 15 Dad, Francis Rudd, was given by Miss Debbie Salmons, junior princess, and a gift was presented to him from the Bethel. He responded by paying tribute to girls and their fathers.

Piano solo was given by Miss Laura Wolkey. The program closed with a poem to fathers.

On Oct. 22, twenty Job's Daughters helped serve a Shrine dinner to 175 Shriners and guests at Masonic Temple.

Miss Rose entertained at a tea for all Job's Daughters at her home, 1112 West Seventh, recently.

Decorations were pink roses throughout the home. Officers served the punch and cookies.

The guardian and associate guardian were special guests.

Miss Rose was assisted by her aunt, Mrs. John W. Welch, and Mrs. Tyler Welch, in entertaining.

Oct. 28, two new members were initiated into Job's Daughters. They were Linda Perschbacher and Margaret Layne Shoe.

Following the meeting, a ghost handed doughnuts off a broomstick and cider was served.

A party and scavenger hunt will be held for Job's Daughters from 7 to 11 p.m., Nov. 7, at the home of the guardian, Mrs. Nyra Price, 900 Ruth Ann Drive.

Campaign Quotes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are quotations, issue-by-issue, from the thousands of words that Lyndon B. Johnson and Barry M. Goldwater have addressed to the nation this presidential campaign year:

ROLE OF GOVERNMENT

Johnson — "A responsible government will not turn its back on workers whose jobs have been taken over by machines. Will not gaze into the sky while millions of Americans live in poverty. . .a responsible government is going to put education at the top of our list of unfinished work." (Oct. 15 at Rochester, N.Y.)

Goldwater — "This (Democratic) administration, no matter how you slice it, wants to pass solutions on to the people from Washington. It is Washington-centered, not state-centered. It is bureaucracy-centered, not individual-centered. People generally. . . are coming to recognize the issue involved: free enterprise and balanced government versus a controlled economy and an all-powerful central government." (Oct. 6 at Washington.)

WAR AND PEACE

Goldwater — "The outright lie that I am trigger happy. . . the nuclear thing, 'Goldwater will get us into war,' that's the most damaging thing I have run into. But I think that is being overcome by just people stopping to think that no man, particularly no American, is ever going to push the button." (Oct. 12 at Phoenix, Ariz.)

Johnson — "Peace is the most important issue in this campaign. . . in a world such as this — a nuclear world, there is no room for bluster and bluff and belligerence. There is room only for courage, intelligence and reason." (Oct. 21 at St. Louis.)

CIVIL RIGHTS

Johnson — "We see to give every American, of every race and color, his full rights under the law." (Sept. 7 at Detroit.)

Goldwater — "If you ever hear me quoted as favoring the right to associate — without favoring the equally vital right not to associate — look again, because somebody will be kidding you." (Oct. 26 at New York.)

MEDICARE

Goldwater — "The Social Security system is not the way to do it effectively. One sure way to wreck the Social Security system would be to saddle it with unnecessary new burdens, such as medicare. We penalize every aged citizen if we thus bankrupt the system." (July 5 statement to The Associated Press.)

Johnson — "Is it asking too much for this bountiful country to prepare a law so that older folks can face illness when it inevitably comes and face it without the chill foreboding of an empty purse or an inadequate insurance policy?"

VIET NAM WAR

Johnson — "We will not be worn down. We will not be driven out. We will not be provoked into rashness. But we will continue to meet aggression with firmness and unprovoked attack with measured reply." (Aug. 12 at New York.)

Goldwater — "If I am elected I intend to come to grips with this vital question. . . The unfortunate fact is that we are at war in South Viet Nam. American boys are fighting and dying in the Asian jungles and it becomes more apparent every day that this administration is drifting — that it has no policy worthy of the name." (Oct. 5, at Washington.)

MORALITY

Goldwater — "Something basic and dangerous is eating away at the morality, dignity, and respect of our citizens — old as well as young, high as well as low. . . When immorality occurs — and you know this from the study of history — it always starts at the top." (Oct. 20 on television.)

Johnson — "The seemingly insurmountable moral issues that we face at home and abroad today can be resolved by men of strong faith and men of brave deeds. . . The identity of private morality and public conscience is. . .deeply rooted in our tradition and constitution." (March 25 at Washington.)

VIOLENCE

Johnson — "We do not, of course, condone violence or taking the law into your own hands, or threatening the health or safety of our people. . We do not think that the violation of one right or the denial of one right should permit the violation of another right." (April 16 at news conference.)

Goldwater — "The growing menace to personal safety, to life, limb, and property, in homes, churches, playgrounds, and places of business, particularly in our great cities, is the mounting concern of every thoughtful citizen. Security from domestic violence, no less than from foreign aggression, is the most elementary and fundamental purpose of any government." (July 14 at San Francisco.)

NUCLEAR CONTROL

Goldwater — "I suggest that the supreme commander of NATO, who is an American officer and probably always will be, have direct command over a NATO nuclear force, trained, ready and equipped, on European soil." (April 14 position statement.)

Johnson — "I believe that the final responsibility for all decisions on nuclear weapons must rest with the civilian head of the government, the president of the United States." (July 24 news conference.)

SOVIET RELATIONS

Johnson — "We must never forget that the men in the Kremlin remain dedicated Communists. A time of trouble among Communists requires steady vigilance among free men — and most of all among Americans. For it is the strength of the United States that holds the balance firm against danger." (Oct. 18 at Washington.)

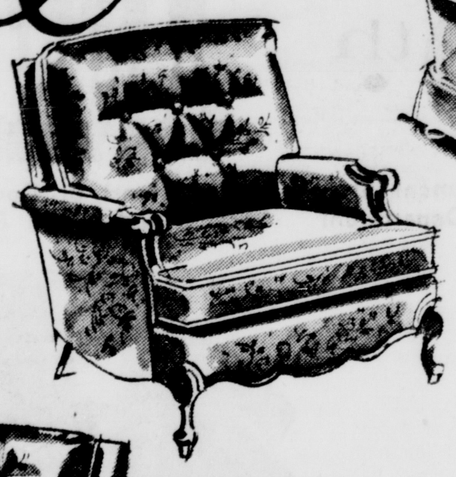

Goldwater — "The present administration has made the mistake of thinking that 'peaceful coexistence' is the same as 'peace.' And it has made the mistake of trying to distinguish different kinds of communism and of supporting some and not others. It has ignored the fact that all Communists agree on the same goal —a Communist-dominated world." (Oct. 12 at Washington.)

AGRICULTURE

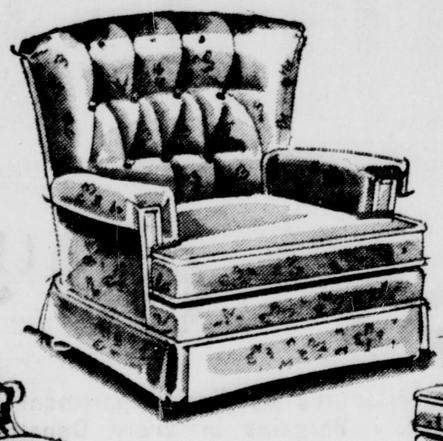

Johnson — "The agricultural commodity programs developed during the past 30 years have served us well. . .but they are in need of improvement." (Jan. 31 message to Congress.)

Goldwater — "Most of our farm ills have been the product of government price-fixing." (May 25 at Redding, Calif.)

Seven Students Die In Two-Car Pileup

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Seven high school students, all 15 years old, died in a smashup of two cars Friday night, the Kansas Highway Patrol reported.

Six were killed at the scene, at a county road intersection 11 miles east of Wichita, and the seventh died shortly afterward. The dead were all in one car, which had only one survivor, who was injured. Two persons in the other car also suffered injuries.

One car struck the other broadside at high speed, the patrol said. Wreckage and bodies were strewn over a wide area.

Rule Breweries Engaged In Price Fixing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eldon P. Schrup, a Federal Trade Commission hearing examiner, ruled Friday that a brewing company in St. Louis and two in New Orleans are engaged in price fixing and other anti-competitive activity.

An order requiring the breweries to halt the alleged illegal practices and to dissolve their trade association was issued by Schrup.

The order covered Falstaff Brewing Corp., St. Louis, and the Jackson Brewing Co., and Dixie Brewing Co., IN.C., of New Orleans.

Schrup said the companies adopted common policies regarding services provided to customers and agreed to refrain from soliciting each other's customers in the keg beer trade.

The order may be appealed, stayed or docketed for review. It is not a final commission decision.

Ambassador Target Of Ceylon Buglar

COLOMBO, Ceylon (AP) — A day after presenting credentials, Cecil B. Lyon, new U.S. Ambassador to Ceylon, chased a burglar out of his bedroom.

Tight Security Along Wall By East Germans

BERLIN (AP) — East German authorities strengthened security along the Berlin Wall today, guarding against attempts by East Berliners to escape in the confusion of the authorized visiting period for West Berliners.

Five gaps have been opened temporarily in the wall for the 14-day period during which West Berliners have been authorized to visit relatives in the Communist-ruled part of the city.

Within three hours after the entry gates were opened today, about 40,000 persons were checked through by red border guards. It was the second day of the visiting period, which extends until Nov. 12.

At the Sandkrug Bridge Checkpoint, used both by pedestrians and motorists, a heavy East German army truck was posted next to the gap in the wall, its engine running.

The truck apparently is to be driven into the gap in case of an escape attempt by car.

The Communists were issuing wall passes under a recently signed West Berlin-East German agreement, allowing four visiting periods in the next 12 months. A second period will cover the Christmas-New Year holiday. The other two are scheduled for next year.

Four holes in the wall are for those on foot or in cars. A fifth control point was Friedrichstrasse Station for those using the elevated railroad.

Zambia, Red China Set Up Relations

TOKYO (AP) — The New China News Agency said today Communist China and the new African state of Zambia have agreed to establish formal diplomatic relations and exchange ambassadors.

Museum Economy Helped

'Star of India' Thieves May Have Been Amateurs

NEW YORK (AP) — Thieves who stole the world's largest star sapphire, the "Star of India," and 21 other gems from the American Museum of Natural History may have been rank amateurs — helped along by lack of security measures.

Police searching the museum's J.P. Morgan Hall of Gems and Minerals for clues to the daring burglary found fingerprints all over the smashed jewel display cases and on a partly opened window that may have been the way in for the thieves.

Experts also said that while the thieves took gems valued at more than $300,000, their choices did not indicate expert knowledge.

They took unique and easily identifiable stones, difficult to cut, while many costly gems that would be more salable were ignored.

Police said the museum's efforts at economy had made the job easier for the thieves.

The city-owned museum, with about one million square feet of space in 18 buildings, had only seven guards on duty during the night and museum officials have been pleading for more staff.

Detectives inspecting the display cases from which the gems were taken also found two burglar alarm systems, neither in operation.

One system, an electronic "eye" that set off an alarm, had not worked for years. Also long disconnected was a system of triggers under the bigger stones that would set off an alarm the moment the stones were lifted.

The theft, one of the largest in recent history, occurred between a 9 p.m. inspection Thursday and 10 a.m. Friday, when acustodian unlocked the hall of gems.

Huge iron gates at each end of the hall had not been disturbed but the custodian found the glass shattered in three exhibit cases.

One case contained only three stones. The "Star of India," 2½ inches in diameter and weighing 563.35 carats or nearly a quarter of a pound, is valued at $100,000 but is actually priceless.

The DeLong Star Ruby, 100.32 carats and said to be the largest and most perfect star ruby in the world, also was valued at $100,000. The third stone was a purplish "midnight sapphire," about the same size as the ruby and valued at $35,000. None of the gems was insured.

Experts disagreed on the difficulty of cutting the huge stones into smaller ones for easier sale. But all agreed that the stones could never be sold in their original size—unless to an eccentric collector who would keep them hidden—and that cutting them would involve a great deal of waste.

Insurance Test Law Advocated

"The life insurance industry is a giant industry, an industry with $150 billion in assets, doing business to the tune of $25 billion each year," said Wendell Locke, executive vice-president of the Missouri Association of the Life Underwriters, in his talk to 35 members of the Central Missouri Underwriters, Friday noon, Oct. 30, at Bothwell Hotel.

Now, however, he said, with the advent of certain sales misrepresentations of life insurance policies as "stock" and the resulting losses to the insurance buying public, it is time for the reputable life underwriters to seek laws and regulations to protect the public.

Locke pointed out that a law requiring those engaged in life insurance business to pass a test on the fundamentals of life insurance before being permitted to recommend so vital a commodity to an individual or family is critically needed. The reputation of the Life Underwriters Association has been built on integrity training and professionalism, and everyone in the life insurance business should meet these standards.

He stated that he hoped that all organizations engaged in insurance business in the State of Missouri could be brought under the jurisdiction of the Department of Insurance and by so doing the state would realize the premium taxes due on it.

During 1963, he said, the Division of Insurance received 150 complaints against insurance companies and organizations which were specially exempt from the jurisdiction of the state or which were engaging in the insurance business unlawfully.

The Missouri association of Life Underwriters has as its goal securing an expanded Division of Insurance with financing adequate to investigate and prosecute all who violate the life insurance laws of the state. An approach is being made, through the law and legislative committee, headed by the vice-president W. Stanley Stuart, for laws passed by responsible, conscientious legislators who are interested in the public welfare and contacts should be made with the state representatives and senator concerning the need for strong laws governing the recommendation and the sale of life insurance in Missouri, and a great deal of time is being put on these problems by the committee.

The speaker was introduced by E. L. McClung, program chairman for the month.

James N. Harms, president, welcomed the new members and made several announcements. He said that the board passed on the Louis I. Dublin Public Service program and as a project for this year the association members would help on the Heart Fund Drive.

Wray Schroeder, education chairman, announced that the Life Underwriters Training Council course would start that afternoon with 12 underwriters taking the course and Abe Silverman as moderator.

Elmer L. McClung, membership chairman, said the association would have a kick - off breakfast Friday at 7:30 a. m. at the Bothwell Hotel, Nov. 30. The associations goal is to have a membership of 75 for this year.

David Eisenstein, past president, gave a report of the National Convention held in Cincinnati, Ohio, last September.

James T. Denny, vice - president, made a few remarks about the tax - deferred annuities for school teachers.

William Hopkins, past state president of the Missouri Underwriters Association, was elected as national committeeman.

Abe Silverman was presented with his 16th National Quality Award and Harms a membership award.

Mock Votes Are Held In Local Schools

A mock election held at St. Patrick's School this past week saw the Democratic National ticket far in the lead. No balloting was made regarding the state and county election.

The two mock balloting were made in the fifth and sixth grade. Pupils voted 29 to 3 for Lyndon B. Johnson, Democrat, over Barry Goldwater, Republican.

In the seventh and eight grades the students' vote, according to information released, on it was 22 votes for Johnson and one for Goldwater.

A test vote is to be held Monday in Sacred Heart High School and reportedly also in the Senior Class at Smith-Cotton High School. A mock election was conducted the past weekend at Smith-Cotton.

The results of the election at Smith-Cotton were not released according to Don Lamm, Jr., publicity director at Smith-Cotton. Lamm explained the complete count had no been made Friday night anyway.

However, not on any authority of Lamm, a student in the school gave an unconfirmed report that while some counting was going on, the Democratic party appeared to have a better than 60 percent lead over the Republicans.

Whether the results of the mock election on Monday will be released is not known at this time. This is the first year the results of such mock elections in Smith-Cotton have not been released for publication.

In school areas in Central Missouri it has been reported such mock elections have shown a Democratic trend from a two to one vote in some areas to better than three to one in others.

Networks Will Name Winner With Computers

NEW YORK (AP) — Television news executives expect to tell the nation the name of the probable presidential winner before 9 p.m., EST, Tuesday—an hour when voters still will be marking ballots in 23 states.

The networks are confident that their multimillion dollar computer systems for projecting the outcome on the basis of returns from carefully chosen precincts will quickly show the winner.

American Broadcasting Co., Columbia Broadcasting System and National Broadcasting Co. planned to report some early returns, and possibly projections, on regular evening news shows. Their election broadcasts will begin at 7 p.m. in elaborately equipped special studios in Manhattan.

For the first time, all three networks, along with the Associated Press and United Press International, will cooperate in gathering returns nationally and the figures will be simultaneously available to all participants.

Eight Die In Two-Car Pile-Up

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Their bodies lay scattered grotesquely along the road, in a ditch, in a nearby field. Moments earlier there had been eight of them in one car, two in another.

Then, at a country road intersection 10 miles east of Wichita, the cars collided, one ramming the other broadside.

Eight of them were killed. Seven were Wichita teen-agers in one car. The eighth victim, in the other, was a former "blue baby" who once had his heart removed for 35 minutes for repairs. His mother said he may have had a premonition of his death.

The collison occurred Friday night. Of the 10 young people involved, the only survivors were David Saxe, 17, and Don E. Copening, 18, both of Wichita.

Saxe, reported in critical condition, was in the car with the seven teen-agers who were killed: Craig Miller, 14, and Carolyn J. Hull, Lyle R. Moore, John C. Todd, Mary C. Newsom, Diane Ralston and Carol Ann Merrill, all 15. They were high school sophmores, and some had attended a high school football game, authorities said.

Copening was the driver of the other car. His only passenger was Henry Kindred, 21, of Rose Hill, Kan. They were on the way to pick up Copening's mother, employed by an aircraft plant.

Kindred was the former "blue baby" — born with a condition that doesn't let the blood get enough oxygen and causes a bluish tint to the skin.

He lived with a congenital heart defect, she said, and developed a mental problem.

When he was 14 years old a psychologist said the mental condition traced to his physical defetcs.

Doctors at a hospital in Topeka, Kan., began experiments and brought in specialists from the University of Kansas Medical Center, who were developing an open heart surgery technique.

In 1960, Mrs. Kindred said, Henry underwent surgery and his heart was outside his body for 35 minutes while physicians but a plastic patch on it and cleared an obstruction in an artery.

"He was barely 17 years of age then and he had a 12-year-old mentality," his mother said. "Four months later he had the mentality of a 14-year-old.

"And ten months to the day — after surgery — he was taken into Uncle Sam's Army."

Kindred spent two and one-half years in the military, returning from Germany two months ago.

"He must have had a premonition," Mrs. Kindred said. "Because he said, 'You know, Mom, I haven't done very much good in this world. If I die, I hope to die in a hospital so I can give my eyes to the eye clinic and my heart to the KU Medical Center.'"

Soon after his death, Mrs. Kindred said, she and her husband, an Assembly of God minister, donated the eyes and heart to science.

For the last 30 or 40 years of his life, an African elephant sleeps in a standing position.

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) A judge has set aside a jury verdict of disturbing the peace against Lindsay Crosby, 26, youngest of Bing Crosby's sons.

He was convicted by a jury Oct. 19 on a complaint brought by a 46-year-old woman who accused him of shoving her off a barstool in a Sunset Strip nightclub June 19.

Judge Jacques Leslie ruled Friday that the evidence did not support the verdict.

BOSTON (AP) — Mrs. John F. Kennedy has been named the legal guardian of her two children, Caroline, 5, and John, 3. The court action Friday was a routine step toward putting into effect the provisions of the will of her husband, the late president.

The will left most of his estate in trust for his widow and children. The amount of the estate was not listed.

WASHINGTON (AP) — J. Edgar Hoover, FBI director, says "too many Americans no longer care about religious ideals and heritage."

In a Thanksgiving message to law enforcement officials, he said Friday that such persons "shirk the mere suggestion of individual responsibility. Their purpose in life is lost in moral lethargy, self-indulgence and neglect of duty."

He said the Pilgrim fathers, founders of the Thanksgiving Day custom, "were bound by spiritual unity and love of and faith in the supreme being."

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Evangelist Billy Graham reportedly does not plan to endorse either candidate in the presidential election.

A source close to Graham, who lives in Montreat, N.C., said in Asheville, N.C. Friday that Graham feels that "his task is to preach the Gospel."

Says Goldwater Wants to Turn The Clock Back

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Wilson Wyatt told a Democratic fund raising dinner Friday night Sen. Barry Goldwater wants to turn the clock "back to the darkened days of the 18th century."

Wyatt, former lieutenant governor of Kentucky and now Democratic national committeeman, was the main speaker at a $10 a plate dinner to help pay last minute campaign expenses.

He charged Goldwater has voted against many modern issues and has opposed the United Nations, saying "We should not take the UN seriously."

Actually, Wyatt said, the UN is the world's best hope for peace.

Wyatt said Goldwater was asked by a reporter how he felt about the possibility of occupying the White House and the senator replied "Frankly, it scares the hell out of me."

Wyatt agreed. He said "That is exactly what it does to all the rest of us."

Gov. John M. Dalton predicted a Democratic sweep in Missouri next Tuesday and said:

"The truth about Missouri is that we are moving forward on every front."

Tigers Fight Way To Win Over Higginsville, 13-0

Happy Night For Parents Honored At Football Game

It was a happy night for the Moms and Dads of the Smith-Cotton High School Tigers, Friday night, and a desire to give them a win was realized as the Tigers fought their way to a 13-0 victory over the Higginsville Cornhuskers at Jennie Jaynes Stadium. It was the second victory for the locals this 1964 season.

The game undoubtedly the best played by the Tigers this year — not because they won it — they played real headsup football. They won over a team which on paper were figured to be about a touchdown better ball club, and this victory was not only pleasing to the parents in the stadium but also to Coach Dick Rees who incidentally is also a parent of two of the players.

Probably most surprised was the Higginsville squad. They came, they met, and found a real fighting ball club in the Sedalians. They found a hard hitting line and a driving backfield rar'in to go.

The Cornhuskers lost the toss and kicked off to the Tigers, who took charge on their own 33-yard line, and a drive was staged which carried the ball to the visitors 27 yard stripe. On the first play, John Johnson was making a handoff, to brother Jim, it was missed the ball fumbled and Higginsville took over on their own 27. As the fumble was realized there was a groan from the stands.

It didn't last long but the 'Huskers picked up seven yards, got a first down on a Tiger penalty and it was on their own 39. One yard was gained and the visitors had to punt. The locals starting again on their own 39. Two first downs were made and the first quarter ended. The score being 0 - 0.

Opening the second quarter on the Higginsville 48, but Sedalia drew a five-yard penalty moving the ball back over to their own 47. John Johnson moved 11 yards, then A. C. Byrd picked up a first down on five. John sneaked through the line for another first down on 25 yards and it was on the 11 of Higginsville. Jim and brother John picked up 10 yards and two feet and it was laid down on the one foot strip. John on a keeper made the first score.

Con Rees with brother Ron centering the ball made a beautiful kick, but it was nullified on a Tiger five - yard penalty. Rees just backed up and kicked it over the cross bar for the extra point.

On the kickoff Higginsville took over on their own 22 and were held and forced to punt out. The locals took over on their own 47 yard line. A. C. Byrd was the whole show on the next three plays. He picked up five yards, then on the next he shifted back and forth through the Cornhuskers and headed for paydirt only to be stopped on the one yard line by Larry Kratz. Byrd skimmered through for the score.

Rees made the kick good but again it was nullified by the over anxiousness of a Tiger lineman who didn't want to see it blocked and a five-yard penalty resulted. This time Rees' kick was a little wide and the point missed.

The Tigers gained possession after the kickoff when Higginsville was forced to punt again and a nice return from his own 35 to Higginsville's 25 by John Johnson was the result. Byrd and Jim each picked up two three yard gains and it was to the 13. Jim and John Johnson moved it for another first and to the three. Jim lost one yard, John failed to gain, a John Johnson pass was incomplete, and as the half ended John was trapped for a six-yard loss.

The third quarter the ball was controlled by Higginsville, who succeeded in moving down to the Tiger one yard line, where they met a brick wall and the Tigers took over on their one-yard line as the quarter ended.

In that third quarter John Johnson attempted a short pass which was intercepted by Greg Leech on Sedalia's 49. It was on this drive it went to the one-yard line and failed.

John on two plays and Jim Johnson on one moved it out to the nine-yard line. John's punt was bad and the ball went out on Sedalia's 15. Again the Tigers held and they regained possession on the 13 and moved the ball down field to their own 49 and John punted again this time a bad kick resulted and he saw the ball drop dead only 10 feet down the field. Higginsville picked up a first down, but in the next series a five yard penalty, and one yard rush and five yard penalty forced a punt. The Tigers took over on their own 44, John moved to the Higginsville 46, and new faces were seen all over the place and on three downs picked up seven yards, the game ended before the fourth play could be made.

Next Friday night it will be St. Joseph Benton on the local gridiron, the last home game of the season.

Presidents Honored At Halftime

"Mr. President," was the theme of a Smith-Cotton High School band and Spiz half time show at Jennie Jaynes stadium Friday night during the football game between the Tigers and the Higginsville Cornhuskers.

The band, under the direction of Mrs. Geraldine Schrader, through various formations combined aspects of the lives of some of our famous presidents with some of their greatest sayings. To the tune of "Yankee Doodle," the band formed a cherry tree with prop cardboard cherries, and the narrator, Mike McMurdo, read an excerpt from one of the inaugural addresses of George Washington.

The band then moved into a tall hat formation which symbolized the man with the tall silk hat, Abraham Lincoln. John Owen read a portion of the Gettysburg Address.

To the song of "Home Sweet Home," the band moved into the formation of a fireplace, and majorettes Pam Price, Janice Walker, and Joyce Edwards performed an exhibition with flamed tipped batons. The fireplace theme was reminiscent of Franklin D. Roosevelt's fireside chats.

An officer's hat symbolizing one of World War II's great heroes, Dwight D. Eisenhower, was formed to the "Army Song." It was emphasized that Eisenhower had opened his inaugural address with a prayer.

The late President John F. Kennedy was honored with a band formation of a rocking chair and his famous lines, "Ask not what your country can do for you, but what you can do for your country." The band portion of the half time show was concluded with a salute to our present President, Lyndon Johnson, and to the present political candidates who are running against him. Tom Trout then led the fans in the singing of "America."

The second portion of the half time show included the introduction of the mothers and fathers of the varsity football players. As they stood up in the stands in their reserved seats, Gerhardt Jaeger, game commentator, praised them for their interest in Smith-Cotton and her activities.

After the game, the students attended a student council dance in the S-C cafeteria to celebrate the Smith - Cotton victory over the Cornhuskers.

Feel Ready For Job

S-H Cheerleaders Awaiting Season

By Teresa McGrath

With the beginning of the 1964-65 basketball season ahead of them, the Sacred Heart cheerleaders are anxiously awaiting the fruits of their labor. With long, hard practices behind them, with still more to come, and the never-ending execution of cheers to insure perfection, the cheerleaders feel they are ready for their job.

In preparation for the basketball season, the cheerleaders erected many signs which included a welcome sign, complete with a picture of the team mascot, a Gremlin. The sign will hang over the entrance to the auditorium.

Another task which the cheerleaders completed was a schedule drawn up to designate the sponsors for the job of putting on the pep rallies throughout the year. The "spirit" jug contest which did much to bolster spirit will again be used this season.

The varsity cheerleaders have ordered new sweaters and flags which will brighten up their attractive red and white uniforms.

Head cheerleader is Karen Tray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fran Tray, 2342 West Second Street Terrace. Karen, a senior, has been active in cheerleading for three years, this being her second season on the varsity. Karen participates in many sports: volleyball, softball and bowling. She is secretary of the student council and a member of the mixed chorus.

Teresa McGrath, a senior, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. McGrath, West Walnut Hills. Teresa is also in her second year on the varsity squad. She participates in volleyball, softball, bowling and tennis. She is publicity director of the student council.

Phyllis Lock, a senior, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Lock, 2511 Margaret. Volleyball and bowling are listed as Phyllis' favorite sports. Phyllis is secretary of the senior class.

Nancy Downs, a junior, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Downs, 600 West Fourth. This is Nancy's first year on the varsity squad. Tennis is Nancy's favorite sport. She is secretary of the junior class a member of the mixed chorus.

Betty Hogan, also a junior, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Hogan, 602 West Seventh. Betty plays softball, is a members of the mixed chorus and a student council representative.

Karolyn Lamb, daughter of Merel Lamb, 1902 Liberty Park, is the alternate for the varsity squad. Karolyn is a representative of the student council, a members of the mixed chorus, and plays volleyball, softball and bowls.

The "B" team cheerleaders are juniors and sophomores: Mimi Gonser, head cheerleader, Terri Dick, Estella Gravitt, Melody Cunningham, Debbie Meyers and Charlene O'Connor.

Down through the years of Sacred Heart, the cheerleaders have tried to be the best possible representatives of their school, by setting good examples for their followers. Among these examples courtesy has been high on the list. One of the main functions of the cheerleaders is to instill school spirit and Sacred Heart is proud of its record. The cheerleaders of 1964-65 will strive to maintain the same high degree of efficiency which has marked them in the past.

Sports Scraps

By D. KELLY SCRUTON

THE question has been asked me several times regarding the "hike" in admission to the Smith-Cotton Tiger homecoming football games and why children who are not accompanied by their parents have to pay the adult admission at other games. Personally since the subject came about I have wondered about it also.

A member of the Sedalia school system when queried about it said, "It has been done this way from what I understand for the past 20 years. It has been that way since I came to Sedalia." He then continued by saying he understood that it was instigated by the Central Missouri Conference and all schools have the raise in admissions on homecoming games.

To me I can't see why it should be, other than a chance to pick up a considerable amount of money on the one game. And what can the school accomplish by penalizing some youngster at adult price because their parents are not along. This is ridiculous.

Wouldn't the school officials in charge of these events rather see these youngsters at a football game than running the streets. It might encourage some of these boys to go out for football in their later school years. As a matter of fact the school system seems to be commercializing on the football games by having such a practice.

This is strictly my own opinion, but I believe the school should take inventory of the situation and start thinking in behalf of these young students and encourage them to attend football games, instead of discouraging them. There are a good number of parents who cannot afford to let their children go to a game and accompany them there, yet the child could make it and he could be picked up after the game, but in some cases where there are other children in the family where a baby-sitter would have to be hired, and so on it can become rather costly.

Maybe the conference should take another look at the situation and give it some thought, if it is a conference rule to charge a child adult prices when mon or dad aren't along, and reconsider the "price setting."

—o—

I have heard just about everything now, I have written a couple times lately on the Booster Club for Smith-Cotton High School for athletics and other activities of the school and where the school board turned thumbs down on it. What I heard is a member of the board has already paid his five bucks to one of the organizers of the club, but I haven't heard where he spoke up in defense of it.

It seems to me the group of men, 90 per cent who are business men, and a goodly number fathers of students in athletics, the band and such, should go right ahead and form the Booster Club. Give the team its support, offer their help to the school for better sponsorship and let the school board know they want to be of assistance — NOT HINDERANCE, as some would contend.

As I have learned the Booster Clubs in other towns have been well accepted, and do not try and dictate the operation of the schools or its acitvities. If it is such an evil, then why hasn't the board come out and committed themselves and given their raesons to the public why they do not apporve. Members have been awful quiet about the discussion.

—o—

SOMEONE is all wet when it was reported cla s are being made there is no school spirit at Smith-Cotton High School among the students. True there are a goodly number of students who do not have the "spirit," but on the other hand there are many, many more who do.

Looking back over the season, Smith-Cotton Tiger football team has received strong support. At the away-from-home games there have been from two to three full buses making the trip, and a goodly number of adults with students in private automobiles.

What is more pleasing are the remarks of the officials who worked the game. After the contest and in the dressing room they were discussing the game, and two said, "These were two well-coached teams. This game was the cleanest we have worked this year," referring to the penalties. Smith-Cotton drew 30 while the 'Huskers had 10. Only one major penalty of 15 yards was declared and that was on a holding penalty against the Tigers—no rough stuff.

If the Tigers continue to play next Wednesday night when they meet St. Joseph Benton, of St. Joseph, Mo., it is possible the Tigers might chalk up number three for the season. The visitors next week have, what is reported a not too bad record for the season.

Benton has won two conference games and lost one, with an overall season of three and four with scoring at 51 for Benton and 99 for their opponents.

Two days are left for the Tigers to shape up for this Wednesday night and pick on some of Benton plays. Maybe they can do it. Benton defeated Christian Brothers of St. Joseph Friday night, 24-0.

Stomper Joins Nemesis To Battle In Headliner

The powerful Stomper, a hulking 270-pounder, will join with Bob Geigel, an old nemesis, in team action at Convention Hall Wednesday night.

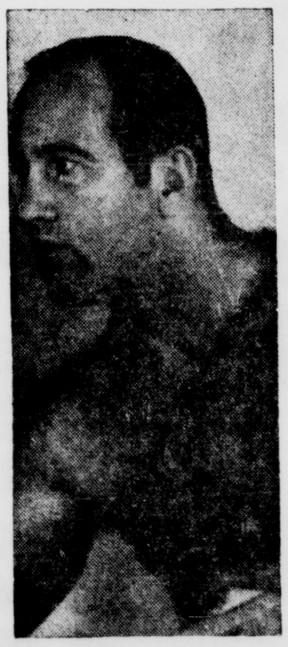

The two ring ruffians will go to the mat with the Lawman, another tall, hard-hitting belter, and his speed-minded partner, Don Jardine.

The team pairing will headline a four-event Legion-sponsored wrestling program.

Sailor Art Thomas, giant Negro heavyweight who has muscles on top of muscles, will match his 6-5, 265-pound structure against the roughing antics of Tiny Mills, another heavyweight in the king-sized class.

In separate events, the Lawman will oppose Geigel, Jardine will go against the Stomper.

Geigel and the Stomper are ex-enemies who have formed an alliance in quest of the tag team title. Geigel lends the speed and craftiness, the Stomper the power in what shapes up as a formidable twosome intent on mat mayhem in this area.

Hard Hours Of Practice

Gremlins Getting Ready For Games

By Teresa McGrath

The Gremlins of Sacred Heart High School have put behind them 72 hours of long and strenuous practice in getting in shape for the upcoming basketball season. Although the Gremlins are facing a tough schedule this season, they expect to fare well.

Sacred Heart coach, Jim Gladbach, is experiencing his fourth year at the school. Under the direction of Coach Gladbach, the Sacred Heart squads have upped their standings considerably.

Of the ten boys dressing out for varsity ball, three are seniors and seven are juniors. The seven juniors are stepping up from the "B" team, however, they have had some experience in playing varsity ball.

Two of the seniors are returning lettermen. Ken Barr, one of the returning lettermen, is 5-11 and will play center. Ken, although he did not see much action last year, scored 23 points with an average of 5.2 per cent per game. Six-foot Jim Downs, the other returning letterman, scored 26 points with an average of 8.4 per cent per game last season. Jim will play forward.

Rick Esser, the third senior, worked out with the "B" team last year. Rick is 5' 9" and will play in the guard position. He scored 32 points last year with an average total of 3.3 per cent.

The juniors are headed by Mike Maple. Mike was chosen captain of the varsity team this year. The 5-9½ guard scored 130 points last year with an average of 9.8 per cent.

Ronnie Kruse, 6-4 center, averaged 9.8 per cent last year, his scoring abilities leading him to 124 points. Tony Brown is 5' 10" and will see action as guard. Last year he scored 21 points for an average of 2.6 per cent.

Mike Fischer will occupy both forward and guard spots. Mike is 5-10 and scored an average of 8.9 per cent per game. Bob Scherer will likewise occupy two positions this year, those of center and forward. Bob is 6-2 and scored 27 points last year for an average of 3.8 per cent.

Bill Herring, a 6-3 forward, racked up enough points last year to rank him the number one scorer for the team. His total was 177, an average of 14.1 per cent. Bill's height enables him to be one of the key rebounders for the Gremlins. Carl Visentine will see action as a guard and forward. Carl is 5'11" and came up with an average of 2.2 per cent last year in points.

The "B" team last year which was composed of these last seven boys, scored 641 points compared with their opponents' score of 482.

Pigeon Shoot Is Staged Saturday

Members of Sedalia's Rod and Gun Club staged one of their periodic shoots Saturday morning to help ease the downtown pigeon problem and the noise of their shotguns was echoed by ringing of Mayor L. L. Studer's telephone.

Studer said he began receiving calls concerning the shooters as early as 6 a.m.—about the same time the hunters opened fire.

The gun club members, however, had permission of Chief of Police William Miller to kill the birds and city officials condone the shooting as an effective means of clearing away the pigeons.

Leo Richards, president of the gun club, termed the shoot a success and estimated 230 to 250 pigeons were killed. The club had 15 gunners out and they concentrated on the downtown area around the courthouse, City Hall and library. The sidewalks around City Hall, especially, have been heavily littered in recent weeks.

But all Sedalians don't look with favor on the early - hour shooting. Mayor Studer related one phone call from an unidentified woman went like this:

"Why are they shooting pigeons so early and waking us up?"

"Who am I speaking to?" Studer asked.

"It's none of your business. I'm a citizen and taxpayer!"

Studer said he then hung up after telling the woman he wouldn't speak with her unless she identified herself.

Police said one motorist complained the windshield on his car was pitted by falling shot, but he later requested the report be withdrawn from the police blotter.

Safety, Touchdown In Last Period Win For Nebraska

Cornhuskers Break Tigers' Brutal Scoreless Defense

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) Fifth-ranked Nebraska broke open a brutal and scoreless defensive battle with a safety and a touchdown in the final quarter against fired-up Missouri Saturday for a 9 to 0 Big Eight Football triumph.

Sophomore end Langston Coleman broke the ice by tackling Missouri quarterback Gary Lane in his own end zone with the final quarter less than three minutes old.

Seven minutes later, with Nebraska in posession on Missouri's 37, Cornhusker quarterback Bob Churchfield faded back to pass, shook off one tackler and hurled a high arching throw to halfback Kent McCloughan. The senior halfback had to escape a tackler then got a key block from tackle Larry Kramer and cut across field for a touchdown.

The victory ran Nebraska's string to 14 games, longest in the nation among major colleges. The Huskers are 7-0 for the season, 4-0 in the Big Eight.

Missouri is 4-3 for the season, 2-2 in the loop.

So vicious was the the defensive play on both sides that four long-range field goal tries were the only scoring threats of consequence until the final quarter. Missouri's Bill Bates attempted field goals of 40, 50 and 51 yards and Nebraska's Duncan Drum tried a 40-yarder.

Nebraska entered the game as national leader in defense with an average of 133 yards yielded per game, and fifth in total offense with a 374-yard; average, but had some difficulty living up to the billing. The Huskers gave up 157 yards while covering 270, to trim the averages.

Larry Wachholtz stopped what could have been a first quarter Missouri touchdown with a heel tackle from behind on Lane. The Tiger ball carrier had fooled the Huskers with a keeper, covered 37 yards in a sideline sprint and needed only 17 more to score.

Nebraska's only first half threats — and they never passed the 20-yard line — were stopped by Missouri pass interceptions, two by Vince Tobin and one by Ken Boston.

Husker quarterback Bob Churchich sat out the first half with a bad ankle, Doug Tucker taking over for him, but returned after the intermission to preside over the winning effort.

The full-house attendance of 48,875 set an all-time record.

Touchdown Insures Win For Okla. U.

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Larry Shields' 57-yard punt return for a touchdown in the fourth period after Lance Rentzel's 40-yard touchdown run in the first quarter insured Oklahoma's 14-11 Big Eight Conference football victory over Colorado Saturday.

Not one Buffalo defender touched Shields on his scoring trip along the east sideline. Rentzel sailed around his left end, cut back sharpley to his right and behind a wave of blockers rambled diagonally across the field on his touchdown journey.

In the waning minutes, Colorado marched 78 yards to a consolation touchdown. Bernie McCall's two passes covering 33 yards to Bill Fairband were the big gainers. Ben Howe plunged over for the touchdown and McCall ran over for a two-point conversion.

Two 15-yard penalties against Oklahoma, one for roughing the kicker and another for piling on, helped move Colorado to the Oklahoma 15 before the Buffs stalled and settled for a 31-yard field goal by Frank Rogers midway of the third quarter.

Oklahoma's crack defenders threw back two Colorado scoring threats in the second quarter.

Howe presented Colorado with its first opportunity by running back 61 yards with a stolen Bobby Page pass to Oklahoma's 21.

With the help of an offside penalty, Colorado moved to the Sooners' three but on fourth down the Oklahomans poured through to knock quarterback Hale Irwin back to his 13 on an attempted pass.

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — Fleet Gale Sayers of Kansas bolted 77 yards for a touchdown late in the third period breaking up a tense, scoreless battle with inspired Kansas State for a 7-0 victory Saturday that kept Kansas unbeaten in Big Eight Football.

The game-breaking touchdown play made Sayers the Big Eight career record holder for rushing, moving him past Dave Hoppmann of Iowa State. Until the big play, Kansas State had stopped Sayers cold.

The fired up Wildcats moved to the Kansas 15 at the gun with a pair of pass plays. Doug Dusenbury's booming punts kept Kansas ih the hole most of the game.

Just ahead of Sayers' run, K-State missed two good scoring chances. Jerry Cook missed a 27-yard field goal try. Then Kansas lost a fumble but George Harvey intercepted a Dusenbury pass.

Sayers finished with 110 yards on 10 carries giving him a career total of 2,605 yards, compared to 2,562 for Hoppmann. He has three games left in his last season.

Troops Pour Into Area For Exercise

FT. LEONARD WOOD, Mo. (AP) — U.S. Strike Command aircraft poured troops and equipment onto dirt landing strips near Ft. Leonard Wood Saturday for the third straight day of the Gold Fire I exercise.

Engineering units of the 1st Infantry Division from Ft. Riley, Kan., worked around the clock to complete several dirt assault strips. Those already in use required maintenance work by the engineers to insure a continued airlift of troops and supplies to Task Force Ozark, defending mythical nation of Oroland.

The influx of supplies by parachute provided the Ozark forces with a much-needed logistical base.

The Army and Air Force are cooperating in the 15-day Gold Fire I exercise to test the movement of combat units by air.

When the airlift is completed the Ozark force will have 10,000 men facing 6,000 men of the Task Force Sioux across the border.

The Sioux force already is on station, so most of the activity in the first phase of the exercise is concentrated on fast movement of the Ozark force.

Both sides were flying reconnaissance missions continuously along the border. Fight planes remained on alert. There has been light harrassment by guerilla units, mostly at night.

Focus On Nine State Races

WASHINGTON (AP) — Six Senate and three gubernatorial races will be drawing special attention in Tuesday's election.

In most of them state issues will predominate. But the candidates' support — or lack of it — for the presidential nominees, as well as the voter turnout stirred by the presidential campaign, will be factors too. In brief, here is the background on these nine key races:

SENATE

California — Democratic Sen. Pierre Salinger vs. Republican George Murphy, former Hollywood actor. Salinger, 39, is a former White House press secretary and has emphasized his ties with the late President John F. Kennedy. Murphy, 62, is making his first race, although long active in state Republican affairs. He reportedly has narrowed the gap in recent weeks. He is friendly to Sen. Barry Goldwater, the GOP presidential nominee, but has not endorsed him.

New York — Republican Sen. Kenneth B. Keating vs. former Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, brother of the late President Kennedy. Keating, shooting for a second term, has flatly refused to endorse Goldwater. Some polls have him trailing, but by much less than Goldwater trails President Johnson. Keating, 64, has been hitting hard on the "carpetbagger" issue — the fact that Kennedy, 38, has not lived in New York since he was a youngster. Kennedy, drawing big and often emotional crowds, has pledged support of the Kennedy-Johnson administration policies.

Ohio — Democratic Sen. Stephen M. Young vs. Rep. Robert Taft Jr. Young, 75, seeks a second term as a strong supporter of the Kennedy-Johnson administration. Taft, 47, is going for the seat once held by his late father, Sen. Robert A. Taft. With it could go speculation about a possible GOP presidential nomination in the future. Taft has endorsed Goldwater, and campaigned for him, but also has pointed to differences in their views.

Oklahoma — State Sen. Fred R. Harris, a Democrat, vs. Republican Bud Wilkinson, record-setting football coach at the University of Oklahoma for 17 years. Harris, a legislative veteran at 33, is trying to keep in Democratic hands the seat held by the late Sen. Robert S. Kerr. He has supported Johnson just as strongly as Wilkinson has endorsed Goldwater.

Pennsylvania — Republican Sen. Hugh Scott vs. Miss Genevieve Blatt, Democratic state secretary of internal affairs. Scott, 63, is campaigning for a second term on his record as a liberal Republican. He endorsed Goldwater somewhat reluctantly, but has not campaigned with the GOP nominee. Miss Blatt, who is 51, overcame regular party opposition to win the nomination in a primary. She has been critical of Scott's endorsement in hopes that a predicted Johnson victory in Pennsylvania will put her in the Senate.

Texas — Democratic Sen. Ralph Yarborough vs. George Bush, Republican son of former Sen. Prescott Bush, R-Conn. Yarborough, 60, has the backing of a former foe, President Johnson. But many conservative Texas Democrats have never favored the liberal Yarborough. And Bush, a 39-year-old Houston oilman, has been waging a vigorous campaign across the state. Some polls show him running ahead of Goldwater, whom he has endorsed.

GOVERNORS

Arkansas — Democratic Gov. Orval Faubus vs. Winthrop Rockefeller, Republican brother of New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller. Faubus, 54, wants a sixth straight two-year term — and has a fight on his hands. Rockefeller, 52, moved to Arkansas in 1953 and served as chairman of the state's industrial development commission from 1955 until early this year — as a Faubus appointee. He has helped develop the state's first real grassroots Republican organization. Both men have given nominal endorsements to the presidential nominees.

Illinois — Democratic Gov. Otto Kerner vs. Charles H. Percy, who in 1960 headed the Republican Convention Platform Committee. A moderate, Percy would probably jump into future presidential speculation if he blunts Kerner's bid for a second term. Kerner, 56, has been campaigning on a record of improved state finances and trying to link the 45-year-old Percy, who was president of a major company at 29, with Goldwater. Percy has endorsed and campaigned for the GOP nominee, but has concentrated on his own campaign.

Michigan — Republican Gov. George Romney vs. Rep. Neil Staebler, the state's Democratic congressman-at-large. The main issue here is who is responsible for an improved business economy and state financial picture. Romney, going for a second term, says it's mostly his administration. Staebler says it's national prosperity — under a Democratic administration. Staebler, 59, has tried to tie Romney to Goldwater. The governor, 57, has pointedly refused to endorse the Arizona senator.

BACK IN TIME—How good were early man's farming techniques? That's just what the Ancient Fields Research Committee of the British Council of Archaeology is trying to find out. This fellow pours grain into a wicker-lined pit near Salisbury the same way farmers did during the Iron Age. It will be stored until spring and then tested.

THE FARMER'S DAUGHTER

Linda Kimmons has chosen a wagon load of ear corn as a favorite place to play. She is 4 years old and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Kimmons of Ozark. Last year Kimmons grew more than 286 bushels of corn per acre to win the corn growing contest sponsored by the Missouri Farmers Association. He has another big crop to enter in this year's contest.

Okay School Bonds

OAK GROVE, Mo. (AP)—A $95,000 school bond issue was approved in a special election Friday.

The vote was 373 to 28 in the Jackson County school district. The money will be used for additional grade and high school classrooms.

Peck Works On a Movie In New York

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A middle-aged gentleman walked up to Gregory Peck in Central Park Zoo and commented, "You look 10 years younger in person than you do on the screen."

It was a remark that might have sent a more vain actor into a tizzy. Peck merely turned on the grin that crinkles the right side of his face and replied, "I AM 10 years younger than I am on the screen."

Nothing much perturbs Greg Peck. He was happily starting his new movie, "Mirage," which happened to be shooting East Side, West Side and all around the town. At the moment, he was doing a scene with his co-star, Diane Baker, beside the pool of California seals in the zoo.

Traffic continued humming up and down nearby 5th Ave. Troops of first-graders marched two-by-two on their visit to the zoo; one was heard to shout "Hey, lookee — they're shootin' a TV show!" The seals were lured into camera range by donations of fish, and director Edward Dmytryk ordered the camera to roll.

Peck's performance was letter-perfect, as might have been expected of a pro who has been nothing but a star in his two decades in films. After the scene he came over for a chat, and I suggested he might be enjoying a bit of nostalgia to be back in the city where his career began.

"I never have any nostalgia," he remarked, straight faced. "A little sherry now and then, perhaps."

Still, I persisted, inquiring about the circumstances of his arrival in the big town as a lean- raw-boned young man fresh from the University of California campus at Berkeley.

"It was in 1939," he reminisced, "and I arrived in New York with $195. That wouldn't last very long, so I started looking for a job. My only lead was a friend of a friend who was a big money man in Wall Street.

"I went down to his office and presented my letter of introduction. My friend had suggested that this man might have a job for me at the World's Fair.

"'Yes, I believe I do have some investment at the fair,' he said, and he riffled through his portfolio and came across something called meteor race. He sent me out there, and I got a job as a barker, trying to induce people into the auto-racing show. My salary was $25 a week.

"I did that for a month and then got a job as a tour guide in Rockefeller Center for $40 a week. My work was to herd people through the buildings and give them all kinds of facts and figures. If someone asked me how much the Radio City Music Hall weighed, I had the answer.

"I stayed on that job for the rest of the summer, and then I got a position at the Neighborhood Playhouse, where I studied under Sandford Meisner. I was really a method actor, though we called it the Stanislavski system then."

NEW ROLE FOR ELLIS ISLAND?—Ellis Island, a 26-acre sand bar in New York harbor, was once the first American soil touched by millions of immigrants. Decaying for a decade, it may soon become a National Historical Site with recreational and cultural facilities, Interior Secretary Stewart Udall has made such a recommendation to the President. This is a recent photo of the battered main building, which may become a museum.

Columnist's Mail Sack Open Again

NEW YORK — (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

The safest day for driving a car is Tuesday. One in five Americans killed or hurt in a traffic accident is a victim of Saturday driving. The second most dangerous day is Sunday.

Science has found that a hummingbird beats its wings only about 55 times a second while feeding, but up to 200 times a second while courting.

Ever hear of the spinster's prayer? It goes like this: "Dear Lord, please answer my prayer. It's not for me, but for another. Please send a son-in-law—to my mother."

If you've got a secret, don't tell it to the federal government. Uncle Sam already has enough of his own to keep. His agencies are reorted to have on file some three billion secret or restricted documents.

A third of all families in the 18-to-24 age bracket buy a car every year, but four out of five are used cars.

Quotable notables: "Life was meant to be lived, and curiosity must be kept alive. One must never, for whatever reason, turn his back on life" — Eleanor Roosevelt.

The only person our astronauts may meet when they land on the moon may be earth's first murderer. An Italian legend holds that the biblical character Cain, as punishment for killing his brother Abel, was doomed to wander friendless forever on the moon.

Can you name a U.S. First Lady who wasn't born on this continent? She was Mrs. John Quincy Adams, wife of the sixth American president. Her birthplace was London — Feb. 12, 1775. As hostess, she improved the White House table by serving choice foods and rare wines.

Insurance companies say obesity threatens the longevity of 10 per cent of men between 20 and 30 years old, 20 per cent of those in their 30s, and a third of those in the 40-69 group.

Folklore: According to a Chinese belief, a child who teethes early will grow up to eat his parents, but if he gets his teeth late he will support them in their old age. The Chinese also believe that one isn't mature until 40, and shouldn't speak his mind in the presence of the wise before that time.

Quickies: Farmers are almost twice as likely to get arthritis as city dwellers. Germans and Irish are the world's greatest potato eaters. Indians along the Amazon River can catch fish with their hands. Americans are now buying a million paperback books a day.

Little Federal System An Issue

The Missouri State Chamber of Commerce has issued a warning to its membership that "The 1965 Missouri Legislature which will be elected on Nov. 3 may well be the most crucial in the history of the state — and the Congress elected this year will determine whether our federal-state constitutional system is to survive.

A basic constitutional conflict results from the June 15, 1964 United States Supreme Court decisions decreeing that both houses of a state legislature must be based on population and that the people of a state are not entitled to have a "Little Federal" system such as we have in Missouri whereby one House is based on population, and the other House takes other factors into consideration."

The State Chamber in a recent bulletin to its members explained that if, in complying with the United States Supreme Court decree that both houses of a state legislature must be based on population, the Missouri House were to be kept at its present size (163) a county would need to have a population of at least 28,000 to continue to be entitled to a representative of its own as Missouri counties have always been throughout the history of the state.

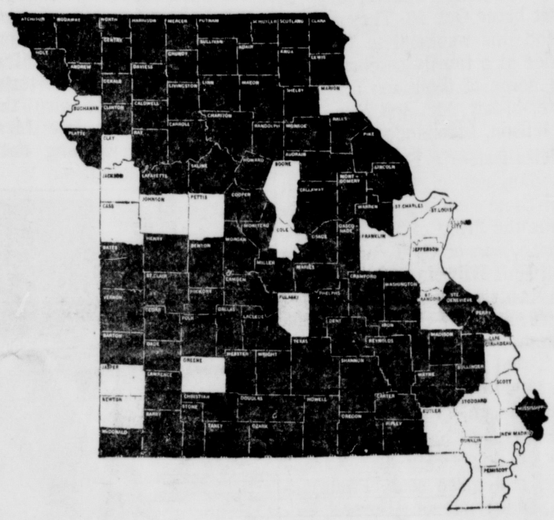

As shown by the black counties on the accompanying map, 89 out of Missouri's 114 counties would not be entitled to a representative of their own. Pettis County is one of the few in the area that could, however.

The State Chamber advised its members in its bulletin that the citizens of Missouri and other states face the following major challenges:

1. "Election of a Congress that will submit a constitutional amendment to the states for ratification which will preserve our historic, constitutional federal-state system by permitting states to continue to have 'Little Federal' systems, basing one House of the state legislature on population and taking other factors into consideration in the other House."

2. "Election of a state legislature which will ratify a 'Little Federal' Constitutional Amendment. If Congress fails to submit such an amendment, then this Legislature will be forced to determine how Missouri is to comply with the Supreme Court decrees. How these problems are handled will determine how good Missouri's Business Climate is for many years to come."

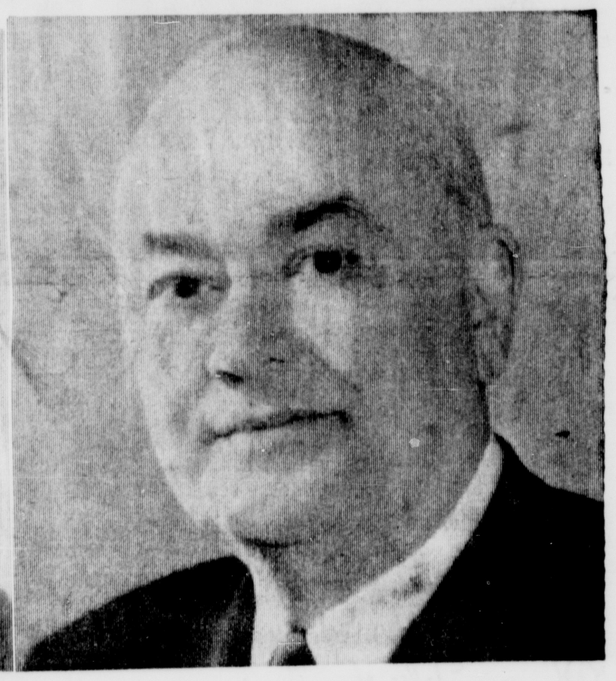

The Chamber said that, "if Congress fails to submit a 'Little Federal' Constitutional Amendment to the states for ratification early in 1965 and Missouri is forced to comply with the Supreme Court decree, control of the Missouri Legislature will be exercised much of the time by certain big city special interests that will seriously injure Missouri's good business climate which will make Missouri less attractive for business and industry to locate and expand and so cost the state jobs and income."

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Milburn Observe Fiftieth Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard L. Milburn, Route 1, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary Oct. 28.

Miss Frances E. Elliott and Leonard L. Milburn were married at high noon Oct. 28, 1914, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Elliott, by the Rev. J. R. Scott, Arcadia, former pastor of New Bethel Church. Mr. and Mrs. Milburn have lived their entire lives in and near Sedalia. They have one daughter, Mary Maud, wife of Dr. Truman D. Cramer.

Dr. and Mrs. Cramer were hosts at a luncheon Oct. 25 at Holiday Inn, honoring the couple.

Guests, besides Mr. and Mrs. Milburn were Mr. and Mrs. Ab Ball, Mr. and Mrs. Wright Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn McFatrick, Larry Cramer and Judy Haynes.

Mrs. Milburn was given a corsage of yellow roses and Mr. Milburn, a yellow rose boutinniere.

Open house was held that same day at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Cramer, 1711 West Tenth. The home was decorated with flowers and plants, gifts to the couple from relatives and friends.

The reception table was decorated in white and gold. A white cloth with net ovrelayment, scallops of smilax and gold bows, was the setting for a miniature wedding cake. Its two tiers were highlighted with tiny pompon chrysanthemums and gold doves encircling a numeral "50." Four gold tapers flanked the cake. Cake, punch, coffee, mints and nuts were served by Mrs. Ball and Mrs. Wilson. Gifts and the guest book were attended by Mrs. McFatrich.

Mrs. William Dick and Mrs. Glenn Wissman made reception arrangements.

Larry Cramer, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Milburn, played violin music. A special number, "50th Anniversary," was dedicated to his grandparents.

Discontent And Turmoil In India

NEW DELHI (AP) — There were sounds of trouble in the air — distant rumbles and murmurs that made small boys run about excitedly and started police horses prancing sideways.

It was 11 a.m., on March 13, 1964, and 10,000 ragged, hungry-looking villagers were riding into New Delhi on squeaking ox carts or ancient buses that coughed and steamed. Many plodded wearily along on bare feet.

And with them came a new era for India.

For the ragged 10,000, demonstrating under a Socialist canopy of red flags, were driven from the countryside by hunger, anger at rising prices and frustration with their government.

At that moment Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru—with just 75 days to live — must have known that despite his lifetime of toil for "Mother India" an unavoidable part of the legacy he would leave behind would be discontent and turmoil.

Thus it has been since that sunny, pleasant day in New Delhi.

India's millions, buffeted by man and nature, are discontented and show it. Food riots and demonstrations have exploded in scores of cities. Thousands have been arrested.

Bright young men, too citified and smooth-talking to fit in with India's peasants, are laboring night and day to exploit that discontent, often in the name of Communism.

Nehru's shy, soft-spoken successor, Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri, is on the spot. He must combat the discontent — and the young agitators — or go under.

It won't be easy, for India's problems read like a catalogue of ills for underdeveloped nations.

There are too many people — 465 million — and too little food; not enough factories to meet the consumers' needs, let alone their desires; sickness, illiteracy, social injustice, government red tape—all are present in stunning quantity.

There also are heavy external pressures, primarily from neighboring Communist China, that distract, worry and confuse. When all effort should be directed at providing bread, India must also manufacture bullets.

The question — and this worries many Indians — is whether the nation can wrestle with its ills and, win or lose, maintain its dedication to democracy and the parliamentary form of government.

For all around India — in Pakistan, Burma, Indonesia, Viet Nam — are examples of "new" Asian nations that turned to the army or authoritarianism when civil governments failed. Conditions existing in those countries prior to the failures — economic shortcomings, political turmoil, diplomatic problems—now exist in some degree in India.

Leftists, at the moment incapable of taking power, have assumed the role of spoilers. They want to disrupt and confuse in hopes of finding political gold in turmoil.

Rightists work more quietly, hoping to swing the government away from nonalignment abroad and "democratic socialism" at home toward firmer ties with the West and heavier reliance on capitalism.

A battle is under way between these two groups for control of the countryside, and for positions of power within Prime Minister Shastri's government and the ruling Congress party.

The 59-year-old Shastri, a compromise candidate picked to avoid an all-out succession battle after Nehru's death, tries for middleroad balance in his cabinet.

Left of center are Home Minister G. L. Nanda and Information Minister Mrs. Indira Gandhi, Nehru's daughter. Balancing them on the right are Finance Minister T. T. Krishnamachari and Railways Minister S. K. Patil, political boss of Bombay.

Looking on are Morarji Desai, "Mr. Conservative" of India, and V. K. Krishna Menon, anti-American leftist. Both are out of the government but have large followings.

Of all his colleagues — and competitors — Shastri feels the most pressure from Desai, a stern, unyielding man who thinks India needs tough leadership and that he can provide it.

But there is widespread feeling that the Shastri-Desai generation is providing only interim leadership and that within a few years young political unknowns will take over. Shastri has been stricken twice with a heart ailment; those around him are in their 60s.

Having never traveled outside the Indian subcontinent before becoming prime minister, Shastri is heavily dependent on advisers in formulating foreign policy. For the time being, at least, he is sticking with the nonalignment formulated by Nehru.

Thus when India makes an arms aid deal with the United States and Britain, it sends Defense Minister Y. B. Chavan off to Moscow to sort of balance things out.

To the great delight of many Indians, both Moscow and Washington are anxious to aid India, for both see India as the true anti-Chinese bulwark in Asia.

Though neither the United States nor Russia feels it can swing India into its orbit, each is paying heavily to keep India a viable, going concern. The U.S. bill since 1951 is approaching $6 billion.

Considerable resentment has been aroused throughout India at having to depend on U.S. help of almost every kind. There is bitterness—almost shame—that India, 17 years after independence, still cannot feed itself.

The Congress party's health is one of the most crucial problems Shastri faces because it has been the instrument used by India's leaders for years to unify the nation.

Overriding language differences and sectional bickering, the Congress was Nehru's tool. The party and his driving, brilliant personality made India one.

Now, with party revolts breaking out in half a dozen states, Shastri finds he no longer can count on the loyalty of his own men. In Kerala state, 15 party members deserted at a crucial moment and the state regime fell before a Communist-led opposition.

YOUTH IS SERVED—When four-year-old Bobby Slagleage, of Los Angeles, stuck his fingers through the lensless eyeglass frame he wears, it caught the eye of Sen. Barry Goldwater, left. It also stirred a memory, for the Republican presidential nominee was recently photographed in a similar gesture with the empty frame he wore during filming of a campaign message. Sen. Goldwater also managed to get in a few words with comely Goldwater Girl Jan McCall before his train pulled out in his West Coast whistle-stop tour.

Kaduna Has African Key To Balance

KADUNA, Nigeria (AP) — The way of life is slowly changing in Northern Nigeria, where African and Arab worlds meet.

Though little-known outside Africa, this sprawling region on the southern fringe of the Sahara Desert is one of the important keys to the continent.

The northern region is only one of four in Nigeria but 29 million people live here, more than in any other single African nation.

The most powerful single figure in Africa's most populous country may well be Sir Ahmadu Bello, premier of the northern region. Federal Prime Minister Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa is his deputy in the powerful Northern People's Congress party and reportedly takes much direction from Bello.

Bello, 54, expects to be and usually is treated as a visiting head of state and not a provincial leader when he travels elsewhere in Africa, especially in Moslem nations. He comments freely on foreign policy, sometimes to the anguish of federal officials in Lagos. During a recent visit to Jordan he termed himself an Arab first and foremost, and suggested that Nigeria side with Middle East Arab states in their dispute with Israel.

The 281,000-square-mile region is bigger than Texas. It came under British colonial rule much later and with less conflict than the coastal areas.

Britain found a comparatively well-developed system of government and decided to rule through it instead of creating an entire new administration, as was necessary elsewhere in Nigeria.

As a result, the former colonial power is now regarded far more kindly in the north than in other parts of the country. About 1,200 Britons work in the northern region's government.

One of the hard facts of Nigerian life is a deep-rooted, mutual suspicion between the conservative, Moslem north and the better educated, non-Moslem south.

Because 29 million of Nigeria's 55 million people live in the north, Bello's Northern People's Congress holds the balance of power. It is the dominant partner in the federal coalition.

Washington Capsules

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. Philip Abelson, a nuclear scientist and editor of Science magazine, says the Red Chinese could conceivably produce a hydrogen bomb in the latter part of the 1960s.

In an editorial in the latest issue of the magazine, Abelson said the possibility stems from indications reported by the Atomic Energy Commission that the Red Chinese used uranium 235 for the atomic device they exploded Oct. 16.

Dr. Abelson, reiterating views previously expressed in an interview, said the apparent ability of the Red Chinese to master the complex task of separating weapons-grade fissionable U235 from essentially nonfissionable U238 would expedite production of weapons- grade plutonium for nuclear reactors.

But he added in the editorial: "More serious is the greatly enhanced capability of producing tritum, a key constituent of thermonuclear bombs (H-bombs)."

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Committee for Economic Development says the nation's 600 colleges and universities offering business courses should overhaul their programs to give future businessmen a broader education.

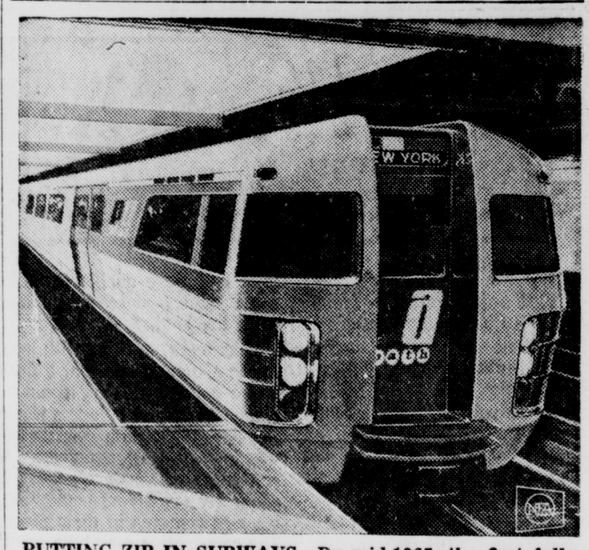

The committee, a nonprofit, nonpolitical group of 200 businessmen and educators, said in a report issued Thursday: "There is a danger that American education is becoming a routine process, capable of producing reasonably efficient technicians and specialists, but not nearly good enough at developing people with the depth, drive, imagination, creativity and character that our society most requires."

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army has received bids from five firms for production of its "image intensification" device for seeing and killing an enemy in the dark.

The Army's command research and development laboratories have been working on the device for several years.

Development cost has totaled about $18 million. Army officials told a news conference Thursday that they believe the device might cost between $1,000 and $5,000 apiece in mass production.

The device uses three lens elements, each of which magnifies the image from the previous stage. Power is supplied by a small six-volt mercury battery which is amplified to 45,000 volts.

PUTTING ZIP IN SUBWAYS—By mid-1965, the first fully air-conditioned rapid transit fleet in the United States will be on the tracks of New York's Port Authority Trans-Hudson system. Artist's drawing above shows exterior of one of the new cars. The fleet boasts curved-car sides and cross-car as well as longitudinal seating for maximum room at shoulder level of seated passengers. The new fleet will replace cars now in use, built 1909-28.

ACTIVITIES FOR 4-H CLUBS FOR 1965

4-H Clubs are in the process of planning programs for the 1965 year. One of the first tasks that they will face will be the selection of individual projects for the boys and girls enrolled in the club. A second task which follows closely behind project selection will be that of selecting the educational activities. In 4-H Club work, educational activities have a special meaning. We are referring to some nine different areas of educational endeavor from which a club may select one or more for intensive study during the next club year. Activities also have special meaning in that they refer to group work rather than individual project work. The nine activities are career exploration, everyday courtesies, community improvement, good personal grooming, first aid, health, recreation, safety and wildlife conservation.

With such variety to select from, how should a club proceed in selecting their educational activities for 1965? Most all families have some needs and interests in the activities just mentioned, so a good method would be for a 4-H Club to study the needs of the members and families, and try to develop an educational program to meet at least some of these needs.

A very excellent way to accomplish the study would be for the 4-H Club president to appoint an activity committee. The committee would not only study the needs of the members and their families, but would look at the activities they have carried previously. The committee should also check with the County University Extension Center to see if there will be special emphasis on a county-wide activity, and then make a recommendation to the 4-H Club. Members in the 4-H Club then should have the privilege of voting in a democratic manner in order to reach a decision. The advantage of having the activity committee make a study is that it may save time at the business meeting, and it has the advantage of more thought being given to the selection of the activity.

Several reasons why we encourage a 4-H Club to carry one or more activities in the club program are: Boys and girls improve their social adjustment by group work; they also have additional opportunities to work on committees, to learn how committees function and how important they are in our everyday life; when the club carries out the plan made for reaching goals established for the activity, boys and girls find useful work experiences which help them mature; and certainly we should not overlook new knowledge that is learned if the club has included educational activities in their program.

All of the educational activities are suitaule for 4-H clubs in the city as well as those in small towns and rural areas of Missouri.

THE PEACE CORPS AND COOPERATIVES

Two years ago a Peace Corps husband and wife team was sent to a small village on the coast of Ecuador. This village was once the hub of a thriving agricultural community, but several years of insufficient rainfall had made a complete change in the area. Gone were the lush grasses and the cattle, the orchards and the timber. Villagers were reluctant to move to a new area and were unable to make more than a bare subsistance from the land.

Volunteers, working with local leaders, determined that a profitable poultry industry could be established if the villagers would work together. So a cooperative was formed. Now, two years later, the Americans are gone, but a quickly expanding poultry enterprise remains in their place. The cooperative may be a small operation by American standards, but to the people of that village it is a hope for a better life.

Peace Corps Volunteers are making an impact on many areas through the establishment of rural cooperatives. Management is the major factor in success or failure of a coop. To most villagers in Latin America, the idea of working together for the good of all is entirely new. Volunteers are teaching people through on-the-job experience how to make cooperatives work.

Peace Corps Volunteers are working in the development of small cooperatives of all types—and some not so small. Most are marketing cooperatives, some are consumer type, while others include all phases of production such as the one developed by the couple in Ecudor. All are designed to contribute to the economic progress of the common people, but they also contribute toward the understanding, acceptance and development of a more democratic way of life. As it's been said, "Cooperatives represent democracy in action."

Few volunteers now working in cooperative projects had experience in this type of work before joining the Peace Corps. Most were rural people with a general knowledge of how a cooperative works. Through a Peace Corps training program they learned how to organize a cooperative and the mechanics of operating it. Rural cooperative volunteers do not have to be college graduates, but need a good background in agriculture.

In practically every country of Latin America and in many countries of Africa and Asia, small but efficient cooperatives are springing up and the Peace Corps is expanding its cooperative projects even more. If you would like to help a village like the one in Ecuador, just fill out a Peace Corps Questionnaire and send it to Peace Corps, Washington, D.C. 20525. Questionnaires are available to our office, the University Extension Center, or at your nearest Post Office.

European Elections Will Determine Alliance Path

By CARL HARTMAN

BONN, Germany (AP) — The future of America's alliance with Western Europe depends on two elections next year — in France and West Germany.

The French polling date probably will be set for the late fall of 1965. It is expected that President Charles de Gaulle will run again, and he should win easily against any opposition now in sight.

In West Germany, Chancellor Ludwig Erhard is already deep in the campaign for the election, also due next fall. Mayor Willy Brandt of West Berlin hopes to put him out and give West Germany its first Socialist government.

Prosperous, and skeptical of any immediate war danger, both Frenchmen and West Germans are likely to be more concerned with bread-and-butter issues than with defense or foreign affairs. Many also want to reassert themselves as Europeans after two decades of American leadership in world affairs.

Such Europeans are ready to see the alliance with America weakened. Their leaders, however, know they can not get support for the military spending that would make them truly independent of American nuclear weapons. Nor can they get the kind of European unity they would need.

So there is a good chance that the next few years will see more pulling and hauling within Western Europe. On one side will be the Gaullists who want to make the continent as independent as possible of Anglo-Saxons, as they call the United States and Britain. On the other will be leaders like Chancellor Erhard and Britain's Prime Minister Harold Wilson, who are ready to accept American leadership though they want a stronger voice in the way it is exercised.

In the West German campaign, Erhard can expect more trouble over this issue from some of his political allies than from Brandt — who sees pretty well eye-to-eye with him.

Erhard's chief foreign policy opponents are ex-Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and former Defense Minister Franz Josef Strauss, both influential members of his own Christian Democratic group. Adenauer and Strauss are working hard for more cooperation with De Gaulle.

This dissension will weaken Erhard, and the chance for his party to win the majority it wants in Parliament. The Christian Democrats do not have a clear majority now, and it will be an uphill fight to get it. They have been hurt by the Socialist victory in Britain, losses in local elections, and setbacks on both foreign and home policy.

In France, the only apparent chance for a change in policy toward America will come if De Gaulle decides not to run — one of the main reasons why he probably will be a candidate. Should he withdraw, his place on the ticket would most likely be taken by Premier Georges Pompidou.

Pompidou does not have De Gaulle's tremendous prestige and he would have more trouble beating the most prominent opposition candidate — Gaston Defferre. The odds would be on Pompidou, though. Deferre's candidacy has not caught fire, even in his own Socialist party, and the Communists may split his support by putting up a candidate of their own.

Building Up Forces In Mock Battle

FORT LEONARD WOOD, Mo. (AP)—The buildup of joint tank force Ozark troops and their supplies continued Friday in exercise Gold Fire 1. Tactical Air Command (TAC) C130 aircraft performed a variety of airlift missions.

The delivery of supplies highlighted the day's activity that saw the continued deployment of the Ozark army forces to assault landing zones in the maneuver area.

Several hundred tons of supplies were delivered to the mock Ozark forces, using low altitude delivery techniques.

Fuel, rations and other supplies were dropped from C130s Friday. Low altitude parachute extraction, ground proximity extraction and parachute low altitude delivery systems were used.

In the low altitude parachute and the ground proximity extraction methods the cargo plane passes over the extraction zone at an altitude of about five feet and at a speed of 120 miles an hour.

In the ground proximity system, the load is extracted by a hook which engages a cable stretched across the extraction zone. In the parachute low altitude method, the load is pulled by a parachute from the C130 flying at 200 feet.

Army engineers continued the construction of assault troop landing zones. The wilderness dirt strips will be ready to receive the first C130 in less than 24 hours from the time construction began.

Since the last report F100 Super Sabres flew air superiority and combat patrol missions over the maneuver area.

Guerilla activity saw increased contact between arriving troops and guerrillas. There were simulated casualties on both sides. Orbiting air commando B26s were called in to help repel guerrillas with simulated napalm strikes.

In mock political activity, the prime minister of Oroland appealed to all citizens to be on the lookout for enemy guerrilla fighters from Argentia.

Music Club Transported Far By Song

Program at Helen G. Steele Music Club Oct. 28, at Heard Memorial Club House, entitled "Magic," was presented under the chairmanship of Mrs. A. J. Harlan, Mrs. Beulah Lowe and Mrs. William Hurt.

With the year's theme, "World's Fair" Mrs. Harlan explained the word "Magic" in a form of a poem, in which she said magic may come from a box or a wand, but that they had a magic word — the word was music.

The program opened with "Come to the Fair," with the magic word taking the audience first to England. The chorus sang: "Johnny's So Long at the Fair" and "Drink to Me Only with Thine Eyes." Members of the chorus were dressed in peasant costumes. The setting was gay with colored balloons and flags of many nations, which belong to Mrs. Lawrence Geiger. Posters carrying out the theme were loaned for the setting by Mrs. Allen Cavaness.

Chorus members were: Frances Green, Alice Fairfax, Della Gasperson, Frances Stevens, Dorothy Kirkpatrick, Jean Gray, Michelle Mason, Nadine Fingland, Mary Jane Mahoney, Esther Baker and Mary Harlan, with Bernice Lovercamp as accompanist.

The second place visited was Germany, with Mrs. Gary Swartz, playing two piano numbers, "Bach Fugue" and "A Ballade" by Brahms. Mrs. T. E. Gasperson sang "Die Lorelei" in German.

The next visit was to Russia in the 19th Century with Mrs. Beulah Lowe playing a piano solo, "Romance" by Rubenstein and Mrs. John Rundelepte a piano solo, "Dark Eyes."

In Italy music was "O Sole Mio" a violin solo by Mrs. Hugo Reisel, Jr., and Mrs. Jack Herndon, in an Italian costume with a basket, from which she scattered flowers, singing the "Italian Street Song."

For Romany was the violin solo "Caprice" by Mrs. Reisel, and "Claire de Lune" a piano solo by Mrs. John Rundelepte.

To depict Scotland, the chorus sang "Loch Lomond" and "Annie Laurie."

A string ensemble and two pianos for the United States, played "America the Beautiful" with the chorus singing the first verse and chorus, and the audience joining in at the request of the chorus, for the closing number.

Accompanists were Mrs. William Hurt and Mrs. Gary Swartz.

California Vote GOP Necessity

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—California, rich in electoral votes and flexible in its political loyalty, has become a Republican necessity and a Democratic prestige factor in the 1964 presidential election.

GOP candidate Barry Goldwater has tagged California as one of four states he must carry in November to win the presidency. The others are Ohio, Illinois and Texas.

President Johnson wants California, the most populous state in the nation, removed from the Republican column where it has rested since 1952.

Most Democrats say privately they believe Johnson can win the election without California.

Goldwater has appeared frequently in California, campaigning, fund-raising and vacationing. Johnson visited the state this week for the third time.

But while the President has been in Washington or other sections of the nation, others singing his praises have been heard throughout California, including Gov. Edmund G. Brown; Democratic Sen. Pierre Salinger, seeking a full six-year term; and Cabinet officials.

Most Democratic congressional candidates have sewed their campaigns to the Johnson coattails.

Goldwater depends primarily on himself and a volunteer organization that is working relentlessly ringing doorbells, making personal contacts and mailing campaign material.

GOP senatorial candidate George Murphy admits he is running a "pro-Murphy campaign" without embracing the Republican presidenital nominee.

Republican Sen. Thomas Kuchel has avoided a public endorsement of Goldwater.

Goldwater has saved his best shots for Southern California, while Johnson, who earlier made his major campaign speeches in the northern area, invaded the southland this week. Goldwater must build a large lead in Southern California to offset the traditional Democratic counties of the north.

Democrats who expect a Johnson victory point to the polls and recently released registration figures.

The California Field Poll, considered a reliable political gauge shows the President leading Goldwater 58 to 32 per cent with 10 per cent undecided.

This October poll, however, reflected a decline of 4 per cent for Johnson. Goldwater dropped 1 per cent, with the undecided column the only gainer.

Democrats also boast their heaviest registration in 14 years, claiming 57.9 per cent of the state's record 8,184,151 eligible voters.

The Republicans have 38.9 per cent with the remainder distributed between miscellaneous and those who decline to list party preference.

Not since 1950, when the percantage were 58.4 and 37.1, have the Democrats had such a margin.

Californians gave Richard M. Nixon a victory margin of 33,000 votes in 1960 out of seven million cast.

The Business Week

Lyndon Expresses Concern On Price and Wage Demands

NEW YORK (AP) — President Johnson expressed concern during the week over the prospect of rising prices.

For the second time in recent months, he indicated to the steel industry that he would not be happy if steel prices were boosted.

Aides said the President thought that sharply higher steel company profits, plus the growing threat of cheaper foreign steel, would make it hard for the troubled, up strongly in recent weeks. Some increases have followed but these affect only about 5 per cent of the market.

There was renewed price talk during the week, too, in the nonferrous metals industry, where prices of copper, aluminum, lead, zinc and tin have gone up in response to brisk demand and shrinking supplies. All but aluminum have moved up this month and the president of Reynolds Metals Co., Joseph N. McConnell, predicted aluminum increases before long.

Johnson twice during the week called for moderation by labor and industry in wage and price demands, to keep the economy from overheating. The nation's business expansion is now heading into its 45th straight month.

Inflationary concern was also voiced by the nation's bankers, meeting in Miami. It is too easy today, said the American Bankers Association, for the average man to borrow money and obtain other credit. The ample money supply may start buyers outbidding each other for goods and services, thereby raising prices. The bankers urged a tightening of credit through the federal reserve system.

The automobile industry, meanwhile, inched ahead toward full production as General Motors workers voted to accept a three-year contract. Still idle were about 15 of GM's 23 car assembly plants where plant-level agreements remained to be worked out.

GM's return to limited production boosted the nation's automobile output to 113,603 units during the week, compared with 89,402 the week before. Last year the strike-free auto industry turned out 175,560 units in the comparable week.

Labor problems also remained to be worked out at Ford, the No. 2 automaker, which was handed a Nov. 6 deadline by the United Auto Workers Union for settlement of issues at more than 20 key plants. Ford and the UAW reached a national contract agreement last month without a strike, but plant-level talks have dragged on since.

Ford was among more than a score of major companies that checked in during the week with sharply higher earnings. The automobile company's profits picked up 14 per cent in the third quarter over the same period last year. The nation's largest petroleum company, Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, reported record profits for the first nine months of this year of $799 million.

Third-quarter earnings of the Pennsylvania Railroad soared to $18.6 million from $500,000 in the July-August-September period last year. Other profit gains for the quarter were reported by National Steel Corp., 50 per cent; General Telephone & Electronics Corp., 27 per cent, and Minnesota Mining & Manufacturing Co., 11 per cent.

Steel production climbed during the week to its highest level since May 1963 as the industry roared toward a record production year. Steel mills poured 2,621,000 tons in that week, up .9 per cent from the previous week.

Other healthy economic signs came from a 20 per cent jump in machine tool orders last month and a rise in new construction contracts. Both are indicators of future spending by industry.

Machine tool orders—for cutting and forming tools used to make machinery — totaled $107.45 million in September, compared with $89.6 million in August. Construction contracts last month came to $3.7 billion, making the volume of new contracts for the first nine months of this year 6 per cent higher than a year ago.

Elsewhere, Comptroller of the Currency James J. Saxon urged that the Federal Reserve Board and the Federal Deposit Insurance Co. relinquish control over state banks.

"What we need in banking is not greater centralization of authority, but enlarged freedom," Saxon told the American Bankers Association.

TRINITY LUTHERAN Church confirmed six young people during services last Sunday, the Festival of Reformation. They were Kathy Anderson, Dale Blatterman, Douglas Brown, Sherry Fingland, Rosemary Mumbower and Donna Pummill. The Rite of Confirmation concluded two and a half years of study, under the pastor's guidance, of the Bible, Luther's Small Catechism, Lutheran doctrine, church history and Christian hymnody. During the afternoon the class was honored with a reception in the fellowship room of the church. The Rev. David Funk, a former pastor, brought special greetings at this time.

White, Negro Youths Tangle After a Dance

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A fight between white and Negro youths broke out Friday night following a high school dance in North St. Louis. Three white youths were injured, one of them seriously.

Police said about 50 youths took part in the fight and about 200 others milled around. Thirteen of the participants were questioned by police.

Thomas Walker, 21, suffered a stab wound in the left side and was admitted to City Hospital. His brother, Mike, 22, was treated for a stab wound in the back, and an unidentified third youth was treated.

The incident occurred at Riverview Boulevard and Thekla Avenue, two blocks from northwest high school.

A witness told police some Negro youths were standing on a corner when a carload of white youths drove up. Words were exchanged and a police officer told them to disperse. The fight broke out moments later.

Police said the Walker boys told them they were driving by when they saw their 15-year-old brother engaged in a fight. They jumped out to help.

Three Life Terms For Slaying, Theft

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Dist. Judge Edward A. Tamm Friday sentenced three young men to life prison terms for the slaying and robbery last year of Oberlin College English instructor Newell Ellison Jr., 27, who was shot and robbed of $31 near his home on the night of Aug. 25, 1963.

Sentenced were R.C. Earle, 19; William E. Huff, 20; and James C. Long, 19, all of Washington.

A jury which heard the case recommended last June 24 that the three Negro defendants draw life sentences.

Campaigning Techniques Are Still the Same

CHICAGO (AP) —"Flattery is disgraceful in private life, but necessary in electioneering."

That isn't a spokesman for the Republican or Democratic national committee speaking. The advice comes from Quintus Cicero, brother of Julius Caesar's famous foe, Marcus Cicero.

Dr. John F. Latimer, president of the American Classical League, said Quintus threw in that advice about "flattery" in his "Handbook of Electioneering," which appeared in the campaign of 64 B.C.

Here are a few of Quintus' suggested procedures:

"The chances are that the politician won't have to fulfill any promises he makes, and, at any rate, animosity can be delayed until it is too late.

"Be all things to all men while electioneering and if possible, indicate that your opponents are criminals, grafters, or morally low.

"Put on a big show during your campaign—the people will like it.

"Call your friends by name, nothing is more popular."

"That's the way it had to be done in ancient Rome when the highest office in the land was at stake," Dr. Latimer observed.

One TV Show Has Excess Of Injuries

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Jokesters answering phones on CBS' 'The Entertainers" set often say "Entertainers Ward" these days. And Bob Newhart, one of the show's stars, refers to it as "The Hope Diamond Show."

Carol Burnett, its top star, is hospitalized — in traction — with an injury to the spine — "probably the result of five years of pratfalls because I'm not a professional tumbler."

Imogene Coca, in her guest-star appearance on the show tonight, will be immobilized on a swivel chair — result of breaking an ankle bone two weeks ago.

Now Gwen Verdon, the dancer, scheduled to appear on Nov. 6, has fractured a small bone in her foot. She will be able to walk — gingerly — and perhaps play in a sketch, but there will be no dancing.

Miss Burnett, while having her vertebrae stretched, has been exposed to day-time television.

"I can turn a little to one side," she explained, "but I can't move my head down, so I can't read. There's nothing to do except watch television.

"I watch the reruns of old movies, reruns of 'My Little Margie,' reruns of 'I Love Lucy,' and of course 'Password' and 'You Don't Say.'

"But the real excitement is the soapoperas — 'As the World Turns' and 'Guiding Light' and the rest."

Her doctors are X-raying her neck and back today, and if her condition is sufficiently improved, she may be able to go home next week — "to hang myself."

"Literally, hang myself," she added mournfully. "There's a machine with seven pounds of weight attached to it and I have to keep using it."

At the moment, however, she has no idea when she'll be well enough to go back to work.

Weekend television is awash with political shows, particularly on Sunday afternoon and early evening. In addition to news shows about the candidates, the issues and the polls, the three major networks are busily promoting individual plans to cover the returns on election night.

Recommended weekend viewing:

Saturday — "Hollywood Palace," ABC, 9:30-10:30 p.m. (EST) with Buddy Ebsen as host.

Sunday — "The Rogues," NBC, 10-11 p.m., with Gig Young and Robert Coote, debonair con artists, outwitting some greedy officials.

Men Outnumbered, But Not at Polls

NEW YORK (AP) — Women outnumber men in this country, but not at the polls.

Tuesday's presidential election is expected to underline this fact of political life.

Bureau of the Census figures for 1964 show that there are about 64.6 million men of voting age in the United States compared with 69.2 million women.

Yet if experience means anything, it is the masculine vote that will decide the election.

In 1960, with the population figures slightly lower but the sex ratio about the same, more than a million more men showed up to vote than did women.

This is progress. In the presidential election of 1920, the same year that women gained the right to vote, only about a fourth of the eligible women balloted.

Why don't more women vote?

Researchers have come up with a variety of reasons for 1960's general 10 per cent difference in voting turnout between men and women. Mostly it boils down to women's considering politics dirty and unladylike and best left up to men who, they fondly believe, are used to thinking about issues.

Nikita Scalp Only First Installment

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
A.P. Special Correspondent

A world Communist meeting —with Red China attending—is a probability in the near future. But any attempt to heal the split in the global revolutionary movement seems headed for failure.

hTe new Soviet regime in all likelihood will be unwilling and unable to pay Peking's high price for peace.

Nikita Khrushchev's scalp was only the first installment the Chinese Communists demand for muffling communism's internal warfare.

Khrushchev's successors — party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin — seem anxious to mute the noisy criticism from Red China and its allies. But if they are going to get anywhere, they must eventually show a tougher policy toward the United States and even risk new tensions.

It is doubtful the new regime wants to alarm the Soviet people with a prospect of a turn backward toward Stalinism. It does not want to alarm the European Communist satellites, which have had a faint taste of independence. It does not want to alarm West European Communists, whose only prospects for gains lie in lulling the opposition.

Khrushchev's successors claim to support his policies of peaceful coexistence and higher living standards at home. At the same time they claim to stand for restoring world Communist unity.

Brezhnev and Kosygin cannot have all these things. The best they can hope for is a lull in the wordy battle with Peking. A lull is in effect now. Since Khrushchev's fall the Soviet press and the Red Chinese have been silent about differences with Moscow. But the aloof Chinese are watching and waiting developments.

The Chinese Communists seem interested now in a meeting with Moscow. They had rejected Khrushchev's call for a preparatory meeting Dec. 15 intended to lead to a world conference of 90 parties in mid-1965, but things have changed.

A conference, now likely, would be welcomed by Peking, anxious to probe Soviet intentions and seek tokens from Moscow that it has mended its ways.

To The VOTERS of PETTIS COUNTY:

As the November 3rd election draws near, I know I will not be able to see each one of you to ask for your vote and support because of the time required to take care of the duties of my office, and because of my disabilities.

I hope all of you will understand this and realize I have had to confine myself to attendance at gatherings and meetings during this campaign.

I have worked hard to try to be an assessor of which you, the people of Pettis County, can be proud. Long hours have been spent to try to prevent the State Tax Commission from raising the valuation of Pettis County property.

I hope my record in office will merit your confidence, vote and support.

'Red' Greeks Ask British To Quit Land

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Led by a sound truck blaring a Beatles record, more than 10,000 perspiring Greek Cypriots marched in a Communist-organized demonstration demanding the withdrawal of Britain's three military bases from Cyprus.

The crowd was a mixed one, with peasants and priests, Marxists and merchants, and the mood was festively enthusiastic.

The march gave a capsule picture of how events in Cyprus are playing into the hands of the Communists, the only organized political party on the island.

Since the Cyprus crisis erupted last December, the feelings of many Greek Cypriots — by no means Communists themselves — have gradually come into line with Communist policy: neutralism for the island, down with the West and down with NATO.

Communist tactics have been to stay off the stage, organize, and let events take their course, while the popularity of Akel — the reform party of Cyprus workers — feeds and grows on the anti-Western feelings.

While the West has restricted its Cyprus policy to avoid jostling Greece or Turkey, their allies in NATO, the Soviet Union has declared its support for President Makarios and signed an aid agreement.

No details of the agreement have been published, but many a Cypriot is convinced that boatloads of Soviet military equipment are coming to Cyprus, and that Moscow and Cairo have become Nicosia's best friends.

Soviet Ambassador Pavel Ermoshin is cheered when he appears in public. Western statesmen are booed when they appear in newsreels. Prominent and conservative Greek Cypriots have joined the Cyprus-Soviet Friendship Society.

Many Cypriots are alarmed at the trend. Some members of the government, plus Greek officers sent to train the island's new army, are known to share their concern.

The possibility of Cyprus' slipping toward the Communist orbit has been partly responsible for opening a rift between Makarios and right-wing army officers who oppose Soviet aid and support immediate union of the island with Greece. Makarios wants to consider the possibility of union later.

Akel claims more than 10,000 members, but Ezekias Papaioannou, secretary general, says "we do not keep statistics and I am not sure how much we have grown recently."

The party has a well-organized labor movement, a thriving youth organization, a women's group and a farmers' society, plus the second largest newspaper in Cyprus.

Historical Society Meeting Attracts Some 200 Sedalians

Mrs. T. H. Yount was the speaker at the Pettis County Historical Society meeting Wednesday night at which time she showed slides of early Sedalia homes and business places, telling interesting things about them and the people who lived in the homes or operated the businesses. The meeting was attended by about 200 people and was held in the Assembly Room of the Court House.

This was, at one time, Mrs. Yount said, a very beautiful prairie that sloped in all directions. People later came here with their slaves from Virginia and other states. The town was started, of course, through the efforts of George R. Smith and other men who succeeded in bringing the railroad this way instead of the river route. There were about 1,000 people who came and it was a community of frame houses. During the Civil War this was a military post she said, and since people had to come here for supplies they formed a habit of coming.

The county seat Mrs. Yount explained, was brought here from Georgetown in 1862, and they had to have a certain number of wells for the water supply for the town. The first gas company was located at Kentucky and the Missouri-Pacific tracks, the first gas being with kerosene. The gas plant was there until Sedalia got natural gas in 1930.

Broadway was the highest point in the town so they made a street 125 feet wide and bordered it with two rows of trees. Although they felt that the town would go north, it went south, and beautiful homes, some mansions, were built on Broadway each on an acre of ground and enclosed with iron fences. Many had lions and other statuary in the yards.

Among the homes shown were that of John Galley, Broadway and Missouri, built of the finest lumber. This was the father of Helen G. Seele for whom the music club was named. The Crandall home at Broadway and Osage recently torn down for the new Broadway Presbyterian Church.

The Jaynes home, which was a real show place, where many dignitaries were entertained, among them Rutherford B. Hayes, who was at that time President of the United States. In the Sedalia Public Library is the set of dishes purchased at that time for a dinner given in honor of President Hayes. This home later became Maywood Hospital, and later torn down for a service station, Garsts and the armory, for the home was located on an entire block.

At the time President Hayes was here they had such a big celebration, Mrs. Yount said, and shot off cannons. John Henry Summers, a character of early Sedalia, got too close and his arm was shot off.

The Porter home was located at 14th and Ohio and still stands. Porter came to Sedalia, liked it so much he stayed, opened a business on Main Street and later changed to real estate establishing the Porter Real Estate.

Among the pictures, too, was the Henry Lamm home and is now the home of Mr. and Mrs. Don S. Lamm. The cupola has been removed. Most of the houses in those days had cupolas, which were lookouts, Mrs. Yount said.

The Newkirk home was where the homes have recently been torn down by the Safeway Co., at Broadway and Ohio.

These homes had fabulous mirrors, fireplaces and many things, with one in the 400 block on West Broadway having a fireplace upstairs that was supposed to have been from King Arthur's estate.

The Smith-Cotton home was where the high school now stands.

Where the Kresge store now is was the Meyers Store. He was not married and at Christmas he gave his customers fine presents, so his business was really good.

The LaGrande Hotel was where the post office is now, and was the first MKT Hospital. It was also the first laundry in Sedalia, she said, and before that they had to send their laundry to Quincy, Ill. She also had a picture of the old Katy Hospital where the Washington Park was located. This was first the Katy offices and then became the hospital.

The Water Works was built in 1871 and she had a picture of that which looks very much like it does today. They floated a $100,000 bond for that plant. It was built by the Holly Co., and there were also two stand pipes both 125 feet high. They said they didn't need them any more so they tore them down, she said, but then they had to build another over on Main Street so they must have needed them after all.

The Crawford building is where Scott's Book Store is and that book store was originally West's Book Store. Mrs. West, who died a couple of years ago and though she had been away many years, willed quite a bit of money to various things in Sedalia.

The McLaughlin building is the same as it was in 1885, but the furniture store was on the ground floor and the other two stories were offices.

Mrs. Yount showed pictures of the Third National Bank at that time which has grown and changed completely and of the Ilgenfritz building now the Gordon building.

In the building just south of the Union Savings Bank recently torn down for the bank's new drive-in was located the Taylor Jewelry Co. in front of which was the big clock that now stands in front of the Bichsel Jewelry Co.

Mrs. Yount had pictures of the fire on June 16, 1920, which started in the cupola and destroyed the building.

She had pictures, too, of the Old Wood's Opera House, now Terry Hotel, where many top performers were presented as the troups scheduled a stop-off in Sedalia between their performances in Kansas City and St. Louis. Of the Kelks Carriage Works, where all the fine buggies came from; the old St. Louis Clothing Co., building recently torn down for a parking lot, and was originally the Dempsey building. The Latour building, is now the Missouri Public Service Building.

At Third and Ohio, northeast corner was the Schisher Hotel, built by the Schisher brothers who also had the Association Park, now Liberty Park, where there was a lake, a race track, a huge hotel and many types of entertainments.

The Blair building was on the southwest corner of Second and Ohio and was built by the Blair brothers one of whom was Miss Jessie Blair's father. She had a picture of the Merchants Hotel and it was really something, she said. It had a bathroom on each floor, and rooms were $2 a day. She had pictures of the old school buildings and many other buildings and homes which she told about.

Mrs. Yount asked that all who have information or pictures on old Sedalia to assist the Historical Society in making a record.

The meeting was presided over by Dr. T. J. Norris, president. Mrs. Yount was assisted in showing the pictures by Mrs. Ike L. Warren.

Pre-Halloween Party Given By G. Marcums

Mr. and Mrs. George Marcum, Otterville, entertained a group of young people Oct. 24 at a pre-Halloween party. The house was decorated with orange and black streamers, pumpkins and black cats.

New Neighbors Feted At R. Alexander Home

A group of friends and neighbors met recently at the home of Mrs. Roy Alexander, Route 3, to entertain at a turkey dinner, honoring Mrs. Dale Clingan and Mrs. C. Nolan, who recently moved to the neighborhood.

Invocation was given by Mrs. Alexander. Mrs. George Buehotz and Mrs. Frank Chaney extended welcome.

Game awards were given to Mrs. Clingan and Mrs. Jake Kraus.

Government Holds Firm

French Farmers Ask Wider Slice of Prosperity Pie

By JOSEPH E. DYNAN

PARIS (AP) — French farmers are up in arms about their role in the national economy. They want a wider slice of France's current prosperity. As they see it, they are being treated as poor relations in a family of incresing affluence.

That, in brief, is the story behind this week's unsuccessful attempt to unseat Premier Georges Pompidou through a vote of censure in the National Assembly, a parliamentary move aimed really at President Charles de Gaulle. As expected, the government's majority held firm and the motion got only 209 of 242 votes needed to overthrow the government.

Farm spokesmen insist, however, that this was only the opening gun in a campaign looking to next year's presidential election and to various municipal and departmental elections. The heat will be on deputies from rural areas who supported Pompidou and thus, in the eyes of farm organizations, betrayed their constituents.

The government, fighting inflation, says any concession to the farmers on produce prices would push open the floodgates to higher living costs. The farmers contend that the remedy lies in reform of the nation's antiquated distribution channels which frequently double an item's cost between farm and retail market.

This French farm unrest is reflected in the French threat to pull out of the European Common Market unless the six-nation organization soon establishes a common market for agricultural products. The government's aim here is to give French farmers new markets in West Germany at prices a cut above those now prevailing in France.

Farm produce in France comes under a complicated system of governmental price ceilings and guaranteed minimum prices — a sort of farm support mechanism. As far as the producers are concerned, these ceilings and minimum rates tend to be the same. Farmers, citing their own rising costs, say the ceilings must be raised.

French farmers are also developing new wants. Many seek machinery and modern equipment. Like their cousins in the cities or the expanding suburbs, they, too, have developed a taste for television sets, motor cars and washing machines.

The government contends that any retreat from the present farm price line would put an intolerable strain on its anti-inflation policy.

INSTRUCTIONS TO VOTERS

A vote for names of candidates for president and vice-president is a vote for the electors of that party, the names of whom are on file with the secretary of state.

On receipt of his ballot the voter shall forthwith, and without leaving the enclosed space, retire alone to one of the voting booths so provided, and shall prepare his ballot for voting in the following manner:

Should the voter desire to vote a "straight" party ticket he shall place a cross (X) mark in the circle immediately below the party name.

If the voter desires to vote for one or more candidates on more than one party ticket, by voting what is commonly called a "split ticket" he may place a cross (X) mark in the circle immediately below one party name and mark cross (X) mark in the squares at the left of the names of candidates on other tickets for whom he wishes to vote; if the voter desires to vote for one or more candidates whose name or names do not appear on the printed ballot he may do so by drawing a line through the printed name of candidate for such office, and writing below such canceled name the name of person for whom he desires to vote, and placing a cross mark in the square at the left of such name. The squares so marked shall take precedence over the cross marked in the circle.

Where there are two or more candidates for like office in a group, a cross (X) mark in the square to the left of a candidate's name automatically votes against the candidate whose name appears within the same horizontal lines in the column under the circle in which appears the cross (X) mark, unless the voter indicates another candidate to be voted against by drawing a line through such candidate's name.

All candidates of the party whose circle is marked shall be counted as voted for excepting where squares are crossed preceding the names of the candidates in other columns. If two or more candidates for the same office are thus designated, neither shall be counted. If the cross (X) is not placed in the circle immediately below the party name at the head of the column, but does appear in the squares opposite the various candidates' names, then only these names shall be counted for, and none other. A cross (X) mark is any line crossing any other line at any angle within the voting space, and no ballot shall be declared void because a cross (X) mark therein is irregular in form.

It shall not be lawful to deface or tear a ballot in any manner nor to erase any printed name (except as provided above in this section), figure, word or letter therefrom, nor to erase any mark made thereon by such voter, nor enclose in the folded ballot any other paper or any article. If the voter deface or tear a ballot, or wrongly mark the name or make an erasure therein, he may obtain one additional ballot on returning to a judge in charge of the ballots the one so defaced or wrongly marked.

A ballot placed in the ballot box without any marks shall not be counted. Ballots shall be counted only for the person for whom the marks thereon are applicable; when a voter shall place a mark against two or more names for the same office, and only one candidate is to be chosen for the office, none of the candidates shall be deemed to have been voted for and the ballots shall not be counted for either such candidate.

Before leaving the booth the voter shall fold his ballot in such a manner as to conceal his marks thereon. He shall mark his ballot without undue delay. He shall then hand the ballot to the judge of election selected to take ballots. The voter shall quit and leave said enclosed place as soon as possible.

Surveys Are Mixed

Bob Kennedy At Crossroad Of Career In Senate Race

By RELMAN MORIN
AP Special Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP) — Robert F. Kennedy comes to the crossroads of his career in next Tuesday's election in New York.

By nightfall, he will either be a U.S. senator or a man without a job, after more than 10 years in public life.

He will either be the third member of the Kennedy family to go to the Senate or the first to have failed in the attempt.

He will either have a powerful political base for his future or, for the time being at least, a sharply reduced chance of going anywhere at all, politically.

But if Tuesday is a critical day for Kennedy, it is equally critical for his opponent, Republican Sen. Kenneth B. Keating. Keating is 64 years old and not likely to have another chance to run for the Senate.

In the final hours of the contest, surveys of voter sentiment came up with mixed results.

The New York Daily News straw vote gave Kennedy a long lead. However, pollster Samuel Lubbell reported during the week "an edge of victory for Sen. Kenneth Keating but, with one in every 12 voters undecided, the election still could go either way."

The Daily News said late in the week that Kennedy was running ahead of Keating by 57.4 per cent to 40.3, in tabulations of 24,716 straw votes.

Most surprising was Kennedy's showing in Upstate New York, which is considered predominantly Republican except for the major cities. The Daily News' figures gave Kennedy a percentage there almost as big as the statewide figure. New York City votes heavily Democratic.

The rival candidates —

Keating is a onetime Latin teacher, graduate of Harvard Law School and then a lawyer. He has been in Washington 18 years, 12 in the House of Representatives and now in the Senate.

He came into national prominence in the summer of 1962 when he began issuing statements about Soviet missiles and military activity in Cuba and demanded action by the State Department.

Kennedy is 38. He graduated from Harvard and the University of Virginia Law School. He then entered the Department of Justice in the Criminal Division. In 1954 he became chief counsel for the McClellan committee. The committee's investigation of labor-management problems brought Kennedy national attention.

Telephone Executives Fete Women

Several women in professional and business life of the community were guests at a luncheon Oct. 27, given by the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., in the Green Room of the Bothwell Hotel. Hosts were Paul P. Cheatam, St. Louis, general traffic manager of the Missouri area; E. W. Abend, Kansas City, western division traffic superintendent and Ken Yunker, Kansas City, south district traffic superintendent. Luncheon was arranged by Mrs. Genevieve Watson, chief operator of the Sedalia office.

Guests included: Mrs. Vivian Warren, office manager of the Chamber of Commerce; Miss Hazel Palmer, attorney; Mrs. Vinnie Denny, office manager, J. P. Lamy Manufacturing Co.; Miss Eva Evans, secretary-treasurer, Adco Inc.; Mrs. Mildred Goddard, catalog sales manager, Sears Roebuck and Co.; Mrs. Ena Killingsworth, district child welfare supervisor for the State Division of Welfare; Mrs. Imogene Peoples, principal of Jefferson School; Mrs. Shirley Wagner, CPA, Taylor-Wagner Co., Mrs. Anna Marie Eding, Town and Country Shoes and Miss Hazel Lang, Sedalia Democrat Co.

Each year, for several years, said Paul Cheatam, the company has had a luncheon at which they have had as their guests some of the business and professional men of the community. This year, with the ever growing importance of women in business and professions, he said, they felt that they would have a luncheon to give them an opportunity to meet some of the women.

He complimented Mrs. Watson on her supervision of operators in the Sedalia office, of which there are 74, and pointed out that there are interesting jobs for women at Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. There is always a need, for some of the older ones retire and the younger ones get married and quit at that time or quit later when they start their families. Sometimes they return after their children are in school.

The Telephone company, he said, tries to start at a salary that will attract employes and continue to go up so that they can keep them. Women, he said, are very necessary in jobs in the community, and are doing a good job in all fields.

A discussion on women on the job and their value when they truly apply themselves brought out many phases of women at work.

Cheatam also told of the complications in the telephone business, of dialing operations, and various other things they are trying to do to help give better service. He asked for any criticism for, through this, he said, they know what isn't satisfactory with the people and tries to do something about it.

Favors were key rings with miniature telephones and rain bonnets in umbrella shaped cases.

Broadway As Attraction To Franchi

By JAMES BACON
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Sergio Franchi, the Italian singer with the voice of a Lanza and the looks of a Bogart, is passing up movies for Broadway.

Ever since the handsome singer opened at the Cocoanut Grove here before a big filmland party, he has been besieged with movie offers.

"They all want me to play a gangster," the 32-year-old Franchi said at a recent interview. Why does Hollywood think everyone who comes from Italy to America is a gangster?

"Why can't an Italian play a Western hero? America in those days was the melting pot. I'm sure there were plenty of Italians out in the old west."

Franchi went into another room and came out with a six-shooter strapped around him. He gave an expert demonstration of gun handling and fast draw.

Said Franchi: "How about that? I could be another Giovanni Wayne."

Franchi is passing up $200,000 in night club and concert dates to play the Italian lover in the Richard Rodgers' upcoming musical version of "Time of the Cuckoo." It was done in the movies as "Summertime" with Katharine Hepburn as the visiting schoolteacher in Venice who fell in love with Rosanno Brazzi.

Franchi was born in Cremona but started out in life studying to be an engineer. When his family moved to Johannesburg, South Africa, Sergio went along and got a job as a draftsman.

"I felt I was trapped, so I quit and started studying opera. I became the first tenor in history, I think, to leave Italy to study in South Africa."

He starred with South African opera companies and eventually went back to Milan to study.

As a night club and television performer, he is unique. He mixes American folk songs, jazz and operatic arias.

Bus Collision Kills Seven, Injuries 11

RAWALPINDI, Pakistan (AP) — The Times of Rawalpindi said today seven persons were killed and 11 injured when two buses collided 350 miles south of this town.

WITH TWO MEN as her fiances in the new romantic comedy in color, Universal's "I'd Rather Be Rich," Sandra Dee finds it difficult to choose between Robert Goulet and Andy Williams. Maurice Chevalier, her dying and doting grandfather, suggests an ingenious manner which makes everything come out right. Now showing at the Fox Theatre.

March Into Battle

Push Nationalization Plan For British Steel Industry

By TOM OCHILTREE

LONDON (AP) — Despite opposition, Prime Minister Harold Wilson intends to push ahead in the next few weeks with his plan to renationalize the British steel industry.

The advocates of socialism and the believers in private enterprise are marching resolutely toward battle on this issue.

Wilson's Labor party controls the House of Commons by only four votes, a thin margin for getting controversial legislation through Parliament.

Yet party sources predict there will be no hesitation, no temporizing. They say Wilson is determined to get Britain's steel industry — nationalized for a brief period 13 years ago — back under state ownership.

The new takeover, in case Wilson pulls it off, will have an air of finality the old one lacked.

The Conservatives are organizing for last-ditch opposition. The Liberals also are against renationalization. The struggle to keep steel in private hands has the backing of many leading figures in industrial and banking circles.

Why then are the Laborites undertaking this difficult fight?

They say the steel industry is not as efficient and forward-looking as it should be and that it must come under public ownership to help revitalize the nation's economic life.

Opponents have a different version. They contend Wilson must move to take over steel to keep the Labor party's restive left wing in line.

The Economist, an independent journal of opinion, says renationalization of steel could be regarded "as a ritual sacrifice to Labor's tribal deities." But it pointed out that the British steel industry could hardly be regarded as a shining example of competitive free enterprise. The various firms do not compete on price, but say they compete on quality.

As now organized the industry combines private ownership with public regulations. It has been subject to some form of government supervision since 1932 when its rate of unemployment ran as high as 40 per cent.

The previous nationalization of steel was done "so that the eggs weren't scrambled," as the political expression goes. The individual companies never lost their identities. Most managers stayed at their posts.

The industry grew all during the time from World War II to 1960 regardless of changes in ownership and the political uncertainties these involved.

In 1946 the level of crude steel production was 12.7 million tons. A record level of 24.3 million tons was reached in 1960 when utilization of plant reached 94 per cent of capacity.

Dick Crenna Keeping His Vote Secret

By DORIS KLEIN

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Only Dick Crenna knows how Dick Crenna will vote on Election Day next Tuesday. But it's been tough keeping it a secret.

"It's one of the hazards of playing a legislator on television during a political campaign," says Crenna.

Dick plays Slattery, a legislator in a mythical state, on "Slattery's People."

"You name it, and I've been asked it," says Dick, "Who do I like for president, what I think about extremism, what's my position on civil rights.

"I've learned to talk just like a politician and give a politician's answer."

The Crenna all-purpose answer:

"'Well, now I've studied the matter and I see your point of view and I knew that in such a serious situation there are always two sides to the problem and I'm going to give it further consideration before I come to a final conclusion.'"

The answer almost always works — except with the television critic.

"We've had only two critics who don't like the show," says Dick. "And one of them has been knocking us almost weekly. But he doesn't criticize the acting, he takes shots at our political stands."

When the show started out, most of the letter writers asked for an episode on civil rights.

"We haven't done one, because that wasn't the type of situation we had in mind. People are getting the hang of what we're doing now — like the show on bribery we just finished rehearsing."

For years, Crenna was squeaky - voiced teen-ager Walter Denton on "Our Miss Brooks." Then he switched to hillbilly Luke McCoy on "The Real McCoys."

Crenna's career is on the upswing. He also has the title role in the comedy movie "John Goldfarb, Please Come Home" which will open during the Christmas holidays.

Privilege Not a Convenience

Any more information on candidates for public office and issues between now and election day—Tuesday—will have about as much effect on the electorate as a blow torch on an elephant's head, like we saw the other night on Steve Allen's TV program.

What may be produced Monday by character assassins will be a waste of time for the authors. The public is now accustomed to such tactics and very properly discounts them. Even Halloween itself at the expiration of October didn't produce smears comparable to the political daubing that has been going on the past few months.

Voters have made their decisions—some based on a careful study of men and issues, some based on party loyalty, some on the way a candidate smiles, some on the tone of a candidate's voice. Inclusive with these reasons is the impediment of separating fact from fiction. As might be expected in this election, as in almost any, prejudiced opinions have developed among many by virtue of listening to a favorite commentator verbally draw an acceptable image.

In other instances voters are persuaded to follow the polls. Contrariwise, those with a disbelief in the accuracy of polls remind their friends of what O. Henry said :"A straw vote only shows which way the hot air blows."

More often during this campaign than any other, comments have been heard to the effect that many persons are so disenchanted by the two presidential candidates they do not intend to vote at all.

Any such determination by man or woman qualified to vote becomes a repudiation of the fundamental act of self-government. This was emphasized by the President's Commission on Registration and Voting in its report last fall, noting that only 63.8 per cent of eligible voters bothered to go to the polls in 1960: "Voting . . . provides the citizen in our free society the right to make a judgment, to state a choice, to participate in the running of his government . . . the citizen who does not vote relinquishes the opportunity to govern."

The old cliche: "what difference does my one vote make?" still persists although abundant and valid statistical information is available to prove that one vote in many instances makes a lot of difference. Councilmen, mayors, legislators have been elected by one vote majority. That happened to a former Arizona councilman now running for president.

The opportunity to govern, offered on election day Tuesday, is more than a temporary convenience. It is a privilege that must be protected, a right that must not be relinquished if self-government in this country is to be preserved.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Highly Inflated Campaign Charges

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — As this vituperative presidential election drags to a close, here are some facts regarding certain controversies which have highlighted the campaign. They pertain to Republicans, because it's the Republicans who have been flooding the airways with charges.

Security Risk Jenkins? — Col. Walter Jenkins was a member of the famous 9999th Air Force Reserve Squadron commanded by Maj. Gen. Barry Goldwater, which included various senators, congressmen, and administrative assistants on Capitol Hill. The squadron not only took annual junkets abroad as alleged "training flights" at the taxpayers' expense, but also scheduled meetings about once a week on Capitol Hill.

At these meetings classified information was discussed. At no time did Gen. Goldwater demur at Col. Jenkins attending these meetings, nor did he protest the very high ratings given Jenkins — despite Gen. Goldwater's current protests that Jenkins was a dangerous security risk.

Who Paid For Smear Books? — The Republican National Committee has been steadfast in its denials that it has had any connection with the smear books which have flooded the nation against President Johnson. However, the committee's confidential vouchers for July show a $1,000 payment to Frank Kluckhohn, who wrote two of the anti-Johnson books — "The Inside on LBJ" and "Lyndon's Legacy."

Kluckhohn collected another $1,000 from the Right-Wing Americans for Constitutional Action.

Kluckhohn was dropped by the New York Times after a career in Mexico and Argentina, more recently has been a crusader for Rev. Billy Hargis's Christian Crusade.

Crime and Morality — The chief GOP expounder of morality and denouncer of crime is throwing stones from a glass house.

His home, Phoenix, has the fourth highest crime rate in the nation, and Barry spent some years as a member of the City Council. Crime prevention is the responsibility of cities — not the federal government. Washington can intervene only where interstate crime is involved.

On Feb. 5, 1954, a Chinese citizen of Arizona, George K. Jue, was convicted of bribing a Hong Kong vice consul to obtain fraudulent visas. Jue peddled phony passports for $300 each, phony visas for $1,500 each. After serving in the federal pen at Florence, Ariz., he faced deportation back to China. But the accommodating senator from Arizona stepped in with a private bill to save him. Jue is still in the United States.

GM's Lobbyist

General Motors executives, most of them supporting Johnson, don't know that their political scout is a strong and secret backer of Barry Goldwater.

You can't blame GM executives for not knowing, because only Goldwater's top aides are hep to Gordon Hall and are trusted with his unlisted home phone number (TR-1-3739). But behind the scenes, Hall has been a confidant, consultant, and ghost writer for the senator.

Hall also arranged for Goldwater to buy his famous Sting Ray sports car at a discount and obtained a company car at a discount for Goldwater's aide on the Senate Labor Committee, Michael J. Bernstein.

Hall divides his time between Washington and his home in the Bloomfield Hills suburb of Detroit. Reached on the long distance phone, Hall at first claimed he had been keeping away from Goldwater since the presidential boom, then admitted he was a confidential campaign adviser.

"I agreed to be an adviser," he said, "but they haven't asked me for any advice." But he keeps in touch with what is going on at the Republican National Committee, he admitted, through a researcher named Pam Rymer.

Hall denied that he helped Goldwater write his book, "Why Not Victory?", but he admitted writing speeches for the senator. Sometimes he works in Goldwater's Senate office, though on General Motors' payroll.

At first, Hall denied that he helped Goldwater get his Sting Ray roadster; then said he "knew about it"; finally admitted he may have "helped" with the arrangements.

"The Senator was riding down the street in his Thunderbird, and the wheel rolled off," explained Hall. "He decided to switch to a Sting Ray."

The General Motors executive would not say how much of a discount Goldwater got, but admitted the price was below the market value. "I got the car off the proving ground," he explained.

Hall also admitted he arranged for Bernstein, who handles labor legislation for Goldwater, to buy a company car at below-market cost. General Motors has an interest, of course, in labor legislation.

Looking Backward

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Four Sedalia boys, students at Central Missouri State Teachers College, lost most of their possessions in a rooming house fire. They were Lee Dow, Robert Wilson, Porter Robb and C. O. Green. Dow and Wilson were in the two-story frame house when fire broke out. They escaped with 16 other roomers. Dow, the son of Ralph Dow, Route 5, Sedalia, was awakened by screams. Finding the hallway filled with flames he jumped from a second story porch.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Among Sedalians who attended the football game in Columbia were Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Yeater, Mrs. A. D. Stanley, Lee Montgomery, David Thomson, Dr. W. A. Beckemeyer, Pitkin Stanley, Clifford Van Dyne, W. E. Miller, Holmes Hall, Frank Armstrong, Eldred Menefee, Gould Sturges, Jack Mitchell, Fred Ludemann, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Brill, Lawrence Brill, Mrs. Harold Inge and daughter Martha. The Missouri Tigers won their fourth consecutive game of the season when they turned back the Kansas Aggies 14 to 7.

Victoria Woodhull, candidate of the National Woman Suffrage Association in 1872, was the first woman nominated for the U.S. presidency.

Statisticians estimate it cost $300 million in one year to clean litter from streets in urban communities of the United States.

Egypt manufactured the first glass vessels during the 18th dynasty, especially during the reign of Amenthotep (1448-1420 B.C.).

In Chinese, surnames are always written first and that order usually is followed when they are written in English.

The U.S. flag should never touch anything beneath it.

FINDING THE WAY

Time To Take Stock

BY RALPH W. LOEW, D.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

There are strident voices being raised in many places of the earth. Angry men shout "Yankee go home" and we look in dismay. Politicians and citizens in our own country say, "We ought to stay home," and we seem confused. Missionaries have given of themselves for many years and churches have sent millions of dollars. Is all of this worth nothing?

It would be nice if we could quickly say that there is no problem, but that would be less than honest. A Roman Catholic priest, Father Albert Nevins, pinpointed the problem the past week when he told of bewildered missionaries, men who had given of their years to help people in primitive areas, now being driven by these people whom they had tried to help. Almost overnight, men who had been regarded as "children" are prime ministers and ambassadors. Said the priest: "The old missionary was accused of paternalism, of cultural imperialism, of subservience to colonial powers, of deliberately helping to train an army of clerks, but no leaders." This is the generalization often used as supporting evidence for isolationism.

A Lutheran leader, Dr. James Scherer, underscores the same predicament, indicating the inability of many foreign missionaries to give guidance to control or to guide the mighty revolutionary forces unleased in the world.

"In Asia and Africa the existence of younger churches represents only a partial, though by no means inconsequential, effect of the preaching of the gospel. Often, these churches give the appearance of conservative institutions wedded to the status quo and clinging to cherished securities. . . The kingdom of God contracts to a narrow ecclesiastical world, its horizon extending no farther than church work."

A few such voices and the isolationist seems to have won the day. But is this the answer? That isn't what these understanding and perceptive leaders are saying. They insist that the new world revolution demands that we be as creative and dedicated as the gospel we preach. It's really not a matter of deciding whether or not we're going to send something! Or send ourselves!

We're shocked when we learn that 38 residents watch the rape of a young woman and refuse to do anything about involving themselves in the tragedy. Yet there are always those who act as though we could do that for our world, standing about satisfying our own hungers, or slamming the door on any involvement, while we kid ourselves into thinking that we're safe in our "apartment house" of this continent.

We've made mistakes but that doesn't release us from involvement, either in our neighborhoods or in the larger community of this planet. So it's a time to re-examine our attitudes, our goals and our strategy of action. It's no time to run for the hills.

Centuries ago a murderer could ask. "Am I my brother's keeper?" Christ underscored another dimension of the same question when he told of a man crossing cultural and racial lines to help a fellow human being. That's the reality to refurbish now.

There are tough new problems confronting men of faith and there are troublemakers stirring up angry voices everywhere. It's enough to make a person say, "Let's stay home." Yet our world is our home. It's not ours to discuss results. It's ours to reflect our faith. The rest is not our business!

I Love The Sky

I love to watch the sky,
Great arch, boundless and high,
Oh, massive canvas on which God doth paint,
Sunrises gray and pink
Etched in as if by ink,
Wee hours when dawn begins and light is faint;
I love the sky at noon,
It's like a merry tune,
When brightly stands the sun direct above,
I love the twilight, too,
With it's soft purple hue
The twilight hour and calling of the dove;
I love the sunset bright
That's just before the night
When all the west becomes a mass of gold;
I love the velvet dark
The first star's shining spark
As I now watch the night gently unfold;
I love the clouds—like smoke—
With gray the sky they cloak
And give a warning that a storm is near,
Clouds that bring rain or snow
I watch from down below
The beauty of the lightning that we fear;
Strokes of the Master's hand
Like whirls of flying sand
Unmoving on the canvas of deep blue,
He paints for us to see
Celestial mystery
Astounding pictures—old—yet ever new.

THE DOCTOR'S MAILBAG

Inflamed Chaffed Areas Susceptible to Infection

By Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Association

Q — What causes the dermatitis that comes under the breasts, in the groin and in the seat? What is the best treatment?

A — Chafing may occur wherever two moist skin surfaces rub together. Persons who are fat have the most trouble with it but it may occur in anyone. Once the chafed areas become inflamed they are susceptible to local infection, especially with ringworm or some other fungus. This may keep the dermatitis going indefinitely.

In general, treatment consists in keeping the area clean and dry and free of irritants. For this purpose your doctor may want to use a solution of aluminum acetate or bichloride of mercury applied for 30 to 60 minutes then gently dried. Calamine lotion with phenol and menthol may then be applied to relieve the itching and a dusting powder or zinc stearate powder will help keep the area dry.

The inflamed area is made worse by overtreatment with solutions that are irritating or are too strong, so have your doctor advise you before you use anything on these areas. If he finds evidence of a fungus infection he may want to use a completely different line of treatment.

Q — What causes hemosiderosis? Can it be cured?

A — This condition is due to a deposit of hemosiderin, a blood pigment, in the tissues. It is found in persons with long-standing heart disease with waterlogging, pernicious anemia, excessive intake of iron in drugs or in the diet, or prolonged use of a low-protein low-phosphate diet. The treatment would depend entirely on the cause.

Q — My daughter has a hanging light over her dining room table with a 150-watt bulb. The glare makes my eyes smart. Both her children have headaches and trouble with their eyes. Could improper lighting be the cause?

A — Improper illumination can certainly cause headache and eyestrain. Although they are not the only causes they could well be an important factor in the cases you mentioned. Lighting engineers have worked out many improvements in the last 4 years. The light from an unshielded bulb should never strike your eyes directly. It should come to you through a white shade or, better yet, through indirect lighting.

Furthermore, it should be softened by coming from two or more souces in the same room. When this is done there will be no harsh contrasting lights and shadows and the light from even a 150-watt bulb will cause no irritating glare.

School and You

Teach Child To Behave

By Susan Light
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

DEAR MRS. LIGHT — I've been especially looking forward to reading your column this fall since my "baby" is in first grade. I wonder what I can do at home to help him? Should I help him with reading? Arithmetic? It's hard to know since methods have changed since my day. What else should I do?

Please write a column soon on this subject. — FIRST GRADER'S MOM

ANSWER — It would take a whole set of encyclopedias to answer your questions fully. Actually, everything you've done for your son since he was born has helped prepare him for school. In a narrower sense, educational books, toys, games are good. So are trips to museums, the zoo and other points of interest. Instruction in the rules of health and safety is important. And do help him with reading and arithmetic, after asking for suggestions from his teacher. Methods haven't changed so much as you may think.

While you're concentrating on educational aids, however, don't neglect the most helpful thing you can do; that is, teach your "baby" to behave. In their enthusiasm for material aids, even conscientious parents too often overlook the obvious value of discipline.

If more children respected authority (by which I mean observed limits on behavior) and responded to a request the first time it was made, our schools would improve almost overnight. Teachers would have more time to teach; most children would learn more.

A child who "acts up" in school isn't fair to himself or his classmates. He takes a disproportionate amount of a teacher's time, attention and energy, leaving her with frayed nerves and a "what's-the-use" feeling.

If your son behaves himself to the best of a first-grader's ability, his teacher will be more likely to go the second mile for him. Basking in her approval, he will like school better, too, and consequently do better work.

Thank you for giving me the opportunity to sound off on this subject. Your son may be a perfect angel. If so, I hope other parents less fortunately endowed will get my message. With better discipline in the home, many school problems would take care of themselves.

Dialogue from Washington

By VERA CLAY

As long as the United States can turn out top athletes like the crop that swept the Olympics in Japan, we know there is that nice, clean, fresh feeling still alive in America. We have nothing to fear.

We should pay homage to our youngsters who, in the face of this dirty political campaign and the harm it has done us elsewhere in the world, managed somehow, to give us that glow of health, and well-being, which is worth all the political doctrine in the universe.

Our kids looked good. They performed magnificently and with good spirit. They were good sports and they are the best export product we have to show.

No matter what the politicos say about one another or the state of this country, it apparently has not gotten to the vitamin-fed, glossy - haired, strong children who, in spite of everything else that has been happening around them while they grew up, did not get tarnished.

There are more of these youngsters than the delinquents—and it is high time we give them their due.

Three rousing cheers for the American Olympic team and for all the local athletes of all ages who work and strive to win a fair game on any field. This is what America always has been about.

Smokers Resolve And Fear Fades

By JOHN BARBOUR
Associated Press Science Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The icy fear which struck the American smoker in January — and filled him with noble resolve — has been melting away.

For some smokers, so has the noble resolve.

But for others — like Dr. Leonard Schuman of the University of Minnesota — this is not so. He smoked a pack and a half a day until Jan. 12, the day after the U.S. surgeon general's committee condemned cigarettes as a health hazard, and a shortener of life.

He was one of three cigarette smokers on that committee. One other switched to a new charcoal filter brand. The other could not be reached for comment on the present state of his habit.

But Dr. Schuman quit, and at last report stayed that way. He has not taken up cigars or a pipe because he might inhale them.

While the report is not a year old, the best indications are that cigarette sales have not totally recovered from the impact of the surgeon general's report.

Firm statistics are hard to come by — but perhaps 16 billion cigarettes went unsmoked between January and June of this year.

Before the report, cigarette smoking was burning its way to new heights of popularity. In the last six months of 1963, it was running 6½ billion cigarettes ahead of the same six months in 1962.

But 1964 became a different story. Even with its erratic recovery, cigarette production may end the year down 3 per cent over-all and — according to federal experts — its future uncertain.

A real gainer in the wake of the report has been the small cigar — the cigarillo — and cigars in general. They may finish the year with sales up 30 per cent over 1963.

Meanwhile, there have been these developments:

—The Public Health Service embarked on a long-range education program to discourage smoking.

—The Federal Trade Commission set deadlines for cigarette firms to begin labeling cigarette packages and advertisements with danger signs.

—The tobacco industry promised a court fight against the FTC ruling.

—The industry vowed to set up its own advertising police bureau in New York City and fine violators, but this is still in the organizational phase.

—Congress adjourned without bringing up a barrage of bills giving cigarette-controlling powers to federal agencies, and a counter barrage which would deny agencies those powers.

More than nine months have passed since the surgeon general promised "no foot-dragging" in the follow-up to the committees prime finding: "Cigarette smoking is a health hazard of sufficient importance in the United States to warrant appropriate remedial action."

So far, the most concrete action has come from the unilateral efforts of Dr. Schuman and others who have quit smoking, switched to cigars or pipes, or at least tried.

It points to one salient factor: no matter what else is done, the battle must finally be waged between the smoker and his habit — on a very lonely stage.

Dr. Eugene Guthrie, staff director for the committee, looks at cigarette smoking as a transmissible disease — with 60 million cigarete smokers as the carriers — and one-third of high school students taking up the habit. There can be no doubt, Guthrie said, of human susceptibility.

There is, he said, an incubation period in that it takes from 1½ to 2 years for average youngsters to become habitual smokers. But by 18 or 19, half of them are smoking regularly.

But even if every teen-ager in the nation quit today, Guthrie said, it would be years before significant changes appeared in the death rates. The person who most needs to quit — who has the highest risk of death, is the breadwinner of age 40 to 50.

"We do not buy the pessimistic view that this group cannot be helped," said Guthrie, who is also head of the Public Health Service's chronic disease division. "There are 10 to 15 million ex-smokers in the population today. What they have done, others can accomplish."

Looking back on the agonies of putting together the committee's report, Guthrie said recently that the most immediate, far-reaching and encouraging results of the committee's work has been the drive it has given to research on smoking.

Even before the committee's work was done, Surgeon General Luther Terry himself — just one of some 70 million American smokers — had switched to a pipe because of a slight cough.

There was a frantic, almost feverish air after the committee issued its report — the sum of 14 months of deliberating the validity of medical and statistical evidence.

The verdict — although expected — was electric.

The very day of the report, evangelist Billy Graham suggested that smoking clergymen quit the habit, as an example. The "Catholic Review" of the Baltimore archdiocese urged in an editorial that all Roman Catholic priests refrain from smoking.

Illinois discovered it had on its books a law dating from 1907 prohibiting the manufacture, sale or giving away of any substance injurious to health, including tobacco. The penalty: up to $100 or up to 30 days.

A leading magazine announced a temporary stop on cigarette advertising pending government action.

Some radio stations cut cigarette advertising in night-time, teen-age shows, or altogether.

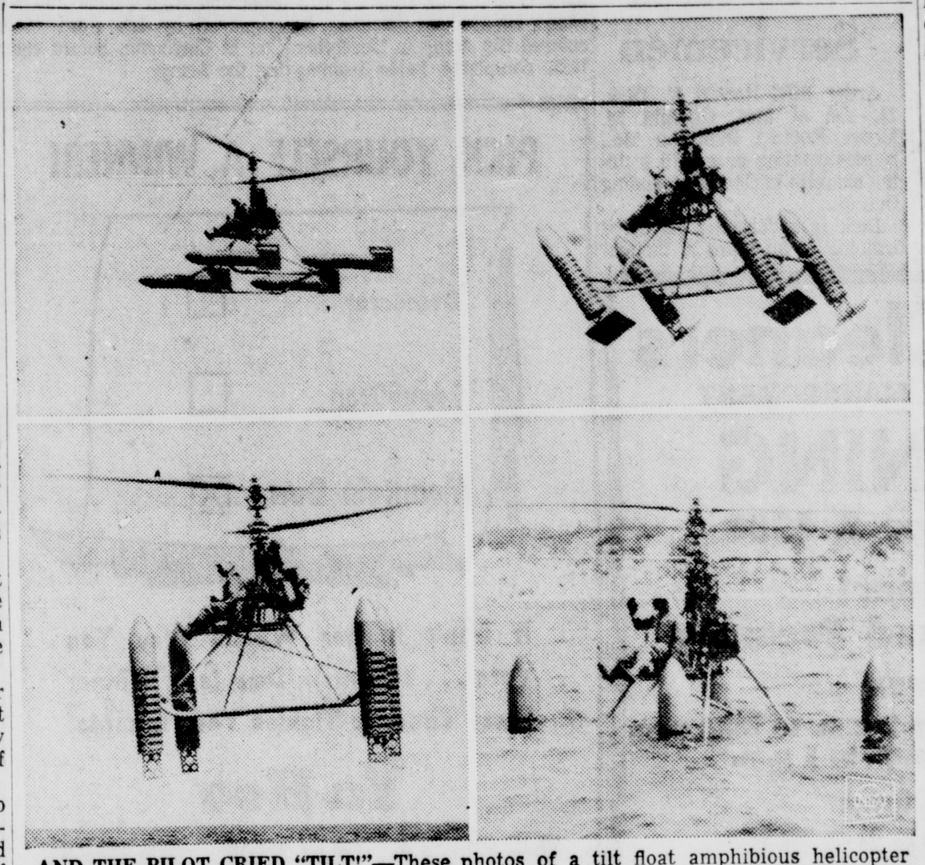

Cigarette vending machines were banned in hospitals from Massachusetts to Pennsylvania to Minnesota.

The Defense Department banned free cigarettes in all military hospitals from Washington's Walter Reed to San Francisco's Letterman General.

The Veterans Administration did likewise in its 168 hospitals and 18 homes for infirm and aged veterans.

There were arrests for cigarette sales to minors in Chicago. There were smoking bans at high schools and colleges.

Cigarette sales plunged — perhaps as much as 30 per cent.

AND THE PILOT CRIED "TILT!"—These photos of a tilt float amphibious helicopter depict operation of a new flotation idea jointly developed by the U.S. Navy and the Gyrodyne Company to permit helicopters and VTOL (Vertical Take-Off and Landing) craft to operate from very rough water. At upper left, floats are in horizontal position for land take-off and forward flight. Upper right: Floats partially tilted prior to landing on water. Lower left: tilt floats are in position for water landing. Lower right: aircraft in landing position. For take-off in rough sea, the sequence is reversed.

Plea to LBJ To Lift Ban

WASHINGTON (AP) — A sit-in group of Krebiozen drug users who "do not believe our government will abandon us and let us die" sent a personal plea today to President Johnson.

The 17 keeping a vigil in the outer office of Anthony J. Celebrezze, secretary of health, education and welfare, want the President to lift the federal ban on interstate shipment of the controversial drug which the government has ruled is worthless against cancer.

Before dawn broke over the capital, members of the Citizens Committee for Cancer Survivors on Krebiozen drew up a telegram to Johnson.

It said: "We appeal to you to lift (the) ban for those patients now using Krebiozen by executive authority exercisable in disaster affecting American lives.

"Your intervention would be received by our people and the world as a magnificent act of humanitarianism."

Most of the 17 keeping the vigil have cancer, a few do not.

Through the long night, some of the sicker patients in the group slept on mattresses just outside Celebrezze's office.

Spokesmen for the group said government personnel had been polite to them, making no effort to force them to leave and permitting food to be brought in to those conducting the demonstration.

"I wish they would be as kind to our lives as to our visit here, one man said.

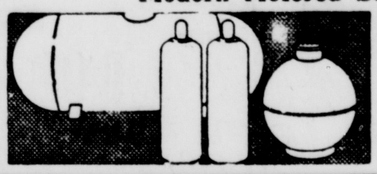

The Durovics surrendered Thursday to federal authorities, and U.S. Dist. Judge Sam Perry set bond at $500,000 each, reportedly the highest ever set in a criminal federal prosecution in Chicago.

Coogan At Half-Century, A Legend

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "The Kid" is 50.

There is still a touch of boyishness in his face, though his head is slick as a casaba — caused partly by age, partly shaved for a television series. His outlook is youthful as ever.

Jackie Coogan at the half-century mark is a thoroughly alive legend. At 16 months he made his movie debut in a film starring Bryant Washburn in Chicago. At 2 he toddled onstage during his father's vaudeville act and so convulsed the audience that he became part of the act.

At 4 he was playing in the Coogan act in Los Angeles when Charlie Chaplin happened to be in the audience. Jackie seemed to be just the right boy for a movie the comedian had been planning, "The Kid." Jackie's face, cap askew, eyes furtively searching for the cop on the beat, became famous the world over.

On a day off from playing Uncle Fester in "The Addams Family" television series, Jackie relaxed in his modest North Hollywood home and talked about his birthday this week and other matters.

"I didn't have a party or anything like that," he said. "I dropped by CBS to chat with Red Skelton. Thne I came home and had a quiet dinner with my wife and daughter, who is 11. My wife cooked a goose I had shot at the opening of duck season, and we had a cake."

Jackie was the first great child star of films, and he set the pattern for those to follow.

"We pioneered the commercial tieup market," he recalled. "At one time my name was on 50 or 60 different items, from dolls to pencil boxes. Peck and Peck aid us $100,000 per year to put out a Jackie Coogan line of clothes. Millions and millions of caps were sold."

Where did all the money go? Not to Jackie. After turning 21, he sued his mother and stepfather for an accounting of the $4 million he said he earned as a minor. He never saw the money. California enacted "the Jackie Coogan law" which now protects the earnings of child actors.

During his near-50 years in show business, Jackie has made 125 movies, numerous tours in vaudeville, including one with his first wife, Betty Grable; legitimate plays and night clubs, plus 750 television shows.

"TV is where my future lies," said Jackie. "I think there is no end to its possibilities."

THOMPSON HILLS SHOPPING CENTER

SEDALIA, MISSOURI

WEST 50 HIGHWAY AT CITY LIMITS

Tempo Store Grand Opening Monday

Low-Margin Sales Key to Operation Of Tempo Stores

As competition grows in the larger population areas, low-margin retailing is moving into the green pastures of the small cities in America.

Gamble-Skogmo, with its 2,536 store organiatizon, has announced earlier that it plans to convert 267 of its Gamble units to Tempo Shopping Centers, and with the success of the first five Tempo units since 1962, is aiming for 100 Tempo stores by 1965.

About 45 of these will be operating this year including the Tempo store in the Thompson Hills Shopping Center.

Gamble-Skogmo is creating a new image with the Tempo shopping center store.

Methods Improve

Merchandising is a business of change and methods are constantly improving as new ones are added and old ones discarded. Among the new, the self-service type department store has matured rapidly and is now playing a significant role in the field of retailing.

While discount stores originated in the east and were initially confined to the large metropolitan centers, Gamble-Skogmo was one of the first to establish these stores in thriving medium-sized towns.

This has provided hundreds of thousands of consumers in smaller communities the same shopping advantages offered to consumers in the metropolitan areas.

The success of this method of merchandising is based on many factors. Among them are lower prices and higher volume. Because these stores are substantially more efficient and operate at lower cost than conventional retail units, they can give the customer more per dollar while allowing the company to produce a reasonable return on its investment.

Shopping at Tempo has been made convenient and pleasant for the customer. Tempo is a true one-stop center housed in a large shopping center specifically designed and built to fit the community it serves.

The store features spacious aisles, mass displays and clearly identified easy-to-locate departments.

Tempo in Sedalia, which is a prototype store, is designed for customer self-service selection, but trained personel are on hand to answer questions and provide specialized help when needed. All Tempo units offer customers ample, convenient free parking.

Tempo stores feature complete lines of famous national brand merchandise, plus specialized categories of private brand items.

Since the introduction of Tempo stores, the company's sales and earnings have grown. Sales in practically every Tempo unit to date have been roughly ten to twelve times the sales of the Gamble branch store it has replaced.

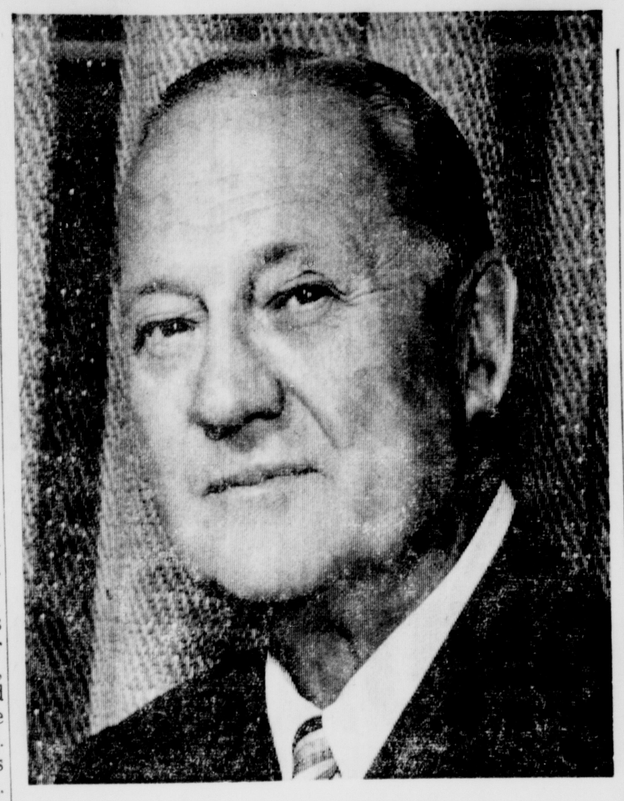

To achieve this result, Gamble has closed down an existing store in a town averaging about 5,000 square feet and built a 20,000 square footer or more in a high traffic location.

27,000 Items

Sedalia's Tempo center offers tires, batteries, exhaust systems and other automotive parts. Basic furniture with wide selections of best-selling lines and major appliances either can be purchased outright or through credit plans.

There are some 27,000 items on open display in the Tempo units as contrasted with approximately 3,000 items in the Gamble stores. The expanded and often new assortment of merchandise includes a strongly emphasized sports equipment department with all types of wheel goods, health and beauty aids, draperies, housewares, records and clothing for the family.

Gamble-Skogmo's retail sales amounted to $250 million in 1963, of which more than $38 million was done by its shopping centers. The low-margin operation takes in the small-city Tempos, the large and medium city Clark's and the Kansas City Gamble discount stores.

B. C. Gamble, Founder

Special Ceremony At Store Opening

A special ceremony at 10:30 o'clock Monday morning will initiate the gala grand opening of the newest in a chain of Tempo Stores being established by Gamble-Skogmo, Inc., across the country.

The store is located in Thompson Hills Shopping Center at the West City Limits.

The store incorporates the new concept of building with a perimeter stock-keep so that each department has its own stockroom immediately behind the retail floor.

Latest design display shelving and cases, clear of any displays, give the interior complete lighting for maximum display needs.

Shopping with children is easy at Tempo as customers utilize roomy self-service carts and personally select the items they choose from specially designed open counters and racks. A one-stop shopping center, customers discover complete assortments of everything from paint to house plants at the lowest prices.

Even the name "Tempo" suits the times. The store fits into the casual pattern of living today. The housewife can shop without having to dress up. She can take the children along and put them in the shopping cart while she leisurely browses and selects her needs. It encourages the whole family to shop together also by providing a wide diversification of product lines and tailoring its business hours for the convenience of everyone.

The new Tempo unit has been designed expressly "to bring customers department store selections of quality merchandise at lowest possible prices," according to Manager Kemit Lange. A complete and flexible credit service is offered.

With 30,000 square feet of floor space, the store is huge, Lange pointed out. He noted that merchandise will be offered by nearly 50 departments in 10 major groupings as follows: Clothing and shoes, furniture, hardware, automobile, accessories, appliances, television and radio, sporting goods, cosmetics, jewelry and decoration imports.

The store is all on one floor and display islands are separated by wide aisles.

Although the store is designed for self-service, it will have personnel on hand to answer questions and provide help when desired. Four permanent check stands will be augmented by five temporary ones during the grand opening. In addition, cash registers are located in the office, jewelry and sporting goods sections.

The store will have a staff of about 50 persons under normal conditions, according to Lange. He said up to 80 persons have been on the payroll preparatory to the opening.

Other store features include background music, air conditioning, electric doors, colorful interior design, latest lighting, and package carts.

Gamble, Skogmo Originated Chain In 1925

Opening of the new Tempo store in Thompson Hills Shopping Center Monday is evidence of the growth of Gamble-Skogmo, Inc., which was started with a single store in 1925 and which today has grown to a multi-million dollar enterprise.

Vision and determination of a North Dakota farm boy by the name of Bert C. Gamble has resulted in one of the most amazing success stories of our time.

Started With $8,500

Starting with his partner, the late W. P. Skogmo, and $8,500, Gamble saw the organization ring up consolidated net sales last year of $174,386,286. He resigned as president of the firm in April of 1963, but is still chairman and chief administrative officer of Gamble-Skogmo, Inc.

He was born at Hunter, N. D., a short distance from Arthur, N. D., on March 1, 1889.

When he was seven, his father, the late W. C. Gamble moved to Arthur and together with Fred Williams, William Simmons and J. Hollis Gale, established a bank there.

Boyhood Partners

Gamble's father was bank cashier and the boy became friends with Phil Skogmo, whose father was Northern Pacific agent at Arthur. The boys played baseball and other sports together.

In 1914 Skogmo went to Minneapolis and spent a year taking a commercial course in a business college. The next year, when Gamble was 17, his father died. He followed his friend to Minneapolis.

After a year at the business college, Skogmo got a job with the Dairy Supply Co., and when Gamble finished a year at the school, Skogmo helped him get a job with the same firm.

Skogmo was on the road for the concern and Gamble worked in the office. After three years with the company, Gamble spent two years on his brother-in-law's ranch near Mahnomen. His sister had married J. R. Krafthefer at Arthur. He later joined the Gamble organization.

Business Vision

While they worked together in Minneapolis, Gamble and Skogmo discussed the possible venture they might try. In 1920 they were ready. They had saved $8,500 and with it took over the Hudson-Essex auto agency in Fergus Falls, Minn. They opened under the name of Skogmo and Gamble.

A year later they landed the Dodge agency in Fergus and in 1922 took over the Ford agency in Fargo. They discontinued the Hudson-Essex, and Skogmo continued to manage the Dodge agency. Gamble managed the Ford agency but still in partnership.

By 1925 they had five automobile agencies, the two in Fergus, and Dodge agencies at Montievideo, Detroit Lakes and Wapeton, Minn. They were doing an annual business of a million dollars, but that year they made a startling discovery.

An Idea Is Born

Gamble, in looking over the balance sheets, found that the small parts department, which sold largely auto accessories, made the firm as much net profit as all of the rest of the business combined. It set Gamble to thinking.

We felt that if there were about 10 stores doing a business like that, they would really be going places.

KERMIT LANGE
Tempo Store Manager

TEMPO STORE MANAGER — Kermit Lange, manager of Tempo in Sedalia, has been with the company since February, 1962, and prior to that was with a national retail company for 15 years. A native of Nebraska, he came to Sedalia from Coldwater, Mich. With his wife, Joceline, and five children, Karen, 19; Tresa, 17; Marsha, 12, Douglas, nine and Joan, two, he resides at 1620 South Engineer.

Carl C. Raugust, President

Gamble President Former Salesman

Carl C. Raugust, recently elected president of Gamble-Skogmo, Inc., rose to his present position from retail salesman through his capacity for leadership.

Raugust's entire business life has been involved with the company that he now heads.

Executive vice president for three years, prior to his assumption of the presidency of the firm, he is a veteran member of the management and has been a close friend and business associate of B. C. Gamble who continues as chairman and chief executive officer of the corporation.

Raugust has a wide knowledge of merchandising and has traveled extensively throughout the country visiting stores in the chain and feels as much at home on the retail sales floor as in his eighth floor office in Minneapolis, company headquarters.

33-Year Veteran

His career began with the firm 33 years ago in Fargo, N. D.

He was born 61 years ago in Emery, S. D., one of the seven children of David and Katherine Raugust.

As a youth he decided on a college education and in 1923 enrolled at Jamestown, N. D., and paid his own way through the freshman term.

He got help from the college loan fund and together with a new part-time job as janitor of the college chapel, continued his studies. The job paid $14 a month. He participated in athletics.

Baseball was his favorite sport and he made catcher on the varsity team. He also was a regular on the college football team and was named all-conference halfback.

Earned Own Way

His spartan habits and ingenuity for earning the extra money he needed enabled him to complete his education and he graduated from Jamestown College in June, 1927, with a B. A. degree. In recognition of his many achievements since, the college awarded him an honorary LL. D. degree last year when he delivered the commencement address.

Out of college his interest lay in a sales career and he went to work for the Fargo Jewelry Mfg. Co. selling class rings and fraternal jewelry. The company was small and its potential limited and required a great deal of travel. After three years he decided to make a change and applied for a selling job in the Fargo Gamble store in April, 1930. Two months later he married Harriet Birmingham.

He worked for 18 months at Fargo and was recommended to manage the Grand Forks, N. D. store. Here he received his first big challenge. The depression of the 30's was at its height, but the store responded to his guidance and began to show a profit. His talents for merchandising cover all product lines, but particularly appliances.

Sent to Home Office

His success at Grand Forks provided the next advancement opportunity and in 1935 he was brought into the home office to organize the outside sales program.

He has been a director since 1957 and in 1960 was elected executive vice president. He currently serves as director and officer of several Gamble-Skogmo affiliated companies including MacLeod's Ltd., Investor's Syndicate of Canada, Ltd. Cusins and Fern, Clark's-Gamble Corp, Filbert Corp. and Founders, Inc. He is a member and secretary of B. C. Gamble Foundation and trustee of the B. C. Gamble Charitable trust.

He is an adept convention speaker and excellent master of ceremonies.

He and his wife Harriet are the parents of two children. A daughter Mary holds M. D. and Ph. D. degrees from the University of Minnesota. A son Thomas has a B.A. degree from Harvard and a master's degree in marketing from Columbia University.

Viet Nam Still Tottering Year After Diem's Depose

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE

SAIGON, South Viet Nam, (AP) — In the glare of muzzle blasts and rumble of falling masonry, the nine-year dictatorship of Ngo Dinh Diem ended one year ago Sunday.

Crowds danced in the streets of Saigon. Prison gates were thrown open. It was a time of holiday exuberance and soaring hopes.

The physical debris has been cleaned up. Diem's stately white palace, blasted by shells and sacked by mobs, is restored and back in business. The new resident chief of state, Phan Khac Suu, was one of those released from Diem's political prisons last November.

The debris is gone, but the exuberance also is gone. The year following the revolution against Diem has been grim. Uncertainty seems every bit as dangerous as one year ago, and the nation still is tottering on the brink of disaster.

There are optimists.

"You have to remember that this is the first taste of freedom Viet Nam has had," an American diplomat said. "Confusion and argument are normal under the circumstances, and the Viet Cong is not making things any easier. These are growing pains, and there is every reason to hope South Viet Nam will emerge as a stable democracy."

There also are pessimists.

One Vietnamese official said: "The only Vietnamese who have made any real progress during the past year are the Viet Cong. It may be that South Viet Nam is not doomed, .but I have the awful fear that we are entering the terminal phase."

What are the uncertainties?

For one thing, the government is back to just about the point at which it began one year ago — with a provisional charter, a provisional chief of state and little else. No man appears to be a real focus of power or even a universal rallying point. There have been impassioned speeches for unity and concerted effort, but no governing coalition has been successfully organized.

The greatest uncertainty is the war. If American participation were withdrawn, Saigon forces probably would collapse in weeks or days. And in Viet Nam eyes, the intentions of the United States are far from certain.

How much more political upheaval in Saigon will America stand for before reviewing its support?

Does America mean to jump with both feet if necessary, sending in combat units or even waging war against Communist North Viet Nam and China?

At what point will Washington decide something new must be tried, and what will that something new be?

The United States officially and traditionally avoids manipulating internal politics in other nations. But will this pattern have to be changed in Viet Nam to win the war? And if America begins to take an open hand in Vietnamese politics, is there any point in Saigon continuing to try to work out a government of its own?

European Communists Fall In Line

MOSCOW (AP) — European Communist parties are falling into line behind the new Soviet leadership, apparently accepting Kremlin explanations that Nikita Khrushchev was removed for bungling in the Cuban crisis, the rift with Peking and an assortment of other failures.

Official Kremlin statements on Khrushchev's removal are couched in general terms, but Communist sources said a document containing 29 charges — including those on Cuba and Red China — is being circulated in Soviet Communist party units.

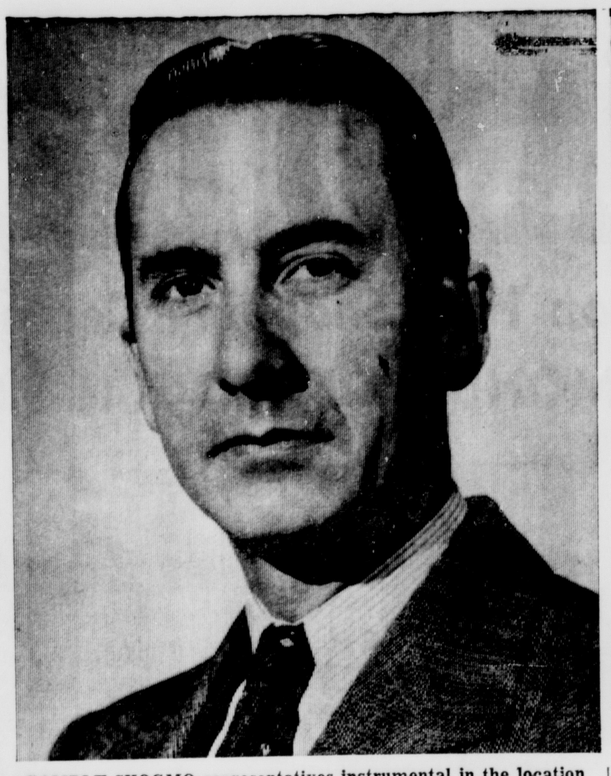

The Hungarian Communist party was the first to endorse Khrushchev's removal, declaring last Sunday that he had made "regrettable mistakes." Polish party chief Wladyslaw Gomulka on Wednesday said the Soviet party's leaders had "grounds" to accept Khrushchev's resignation.

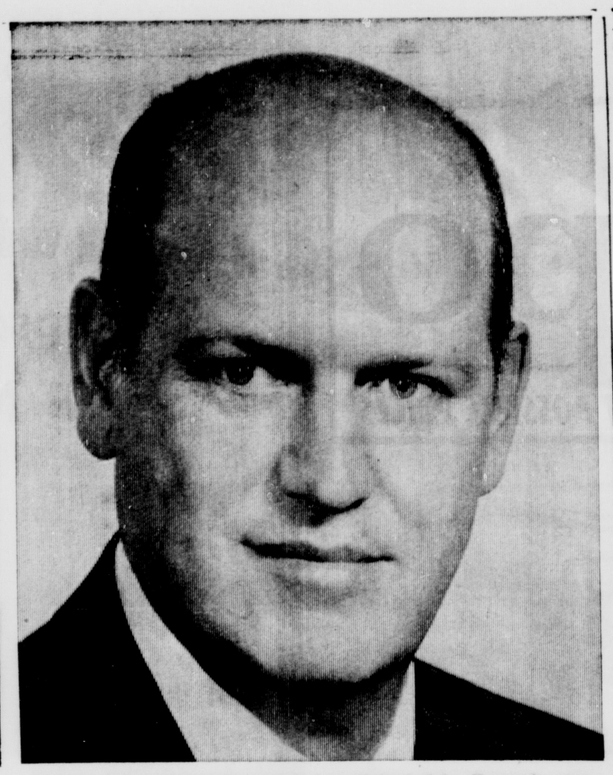

A French Communist delegation sent to Moscow to obtain explanations for the power shift returned home Thursday after issuing a communique emphasizing solidarity of the French and Soviet Reds.

The communique made no mention of Khrushchev. But it said the two parties had frank and friendly talks and would "continue consolidating the fraternal relations, bonds of traditional friendship and mutual confidence, which exist between" them.

An Italian Communist delegation began meeting with Soviet leaders after the French left. Communist sources said the Italians also wanted to ask about Khrushchev.

The Soviet Communists will begin talks with a Danish delegation Friday. An Austrian delegation also is in Moscow. John Gollan, general secretary of Britain's Communist party, said in London he and George Matthews, editor of the London Daily Worker, would go to Moscow next week to "discuss replacement of Mr. Khrushchev and problems in Soviet policy."

Orient Flavor For Several TV Series

NEW YORK (AP) — Television trend-spotters — people who watch for business purposes more often than for pleasure — seem to have overlooked what appears to be a new cycle: the Oriental phase.

Last season, when "My Favorite Martian" and "The Outer Limits" made their debut, the trend-spotters immediately predicted a fantasy phase. The accuracy was confirmed at the beginning of this season with the premieres of four more shows relying on viewers' acceptance of the bizarre or supernatural — "Bewitched," the adventures of a sorceress married to a normal American husband; "My Living Doll," with a beautiful robot as heroine; "The Munsters" and "The Addams Family," both comedies involving macabre characters borrowed from horror movies and a cartoonists' imagination.

Last season, there were two regular Oriental characters in television, both comedies. "McHale's Navy," engaged in what television would have us believe was the happy-go-lucky war in the Pacific, had a secret pet, a Japanese prisoner of war who was part of the jolly crew and played by Yoshio Yodo, an authentic native of Tokyo.

Debonaire, girl-chasing Amos Burke of "Burke's Law," had Leon Lontoc, a native of the Philippines, playing his chauffeur, houseman and confidante.

Nobody, however, suspected these would father what, for television, is a veritable rash of side-kick roles for performers with Oriental antecedents. This season, however, four have emerged.

There is 11-year-old Rickey Der, born in San Francisco where his father manages a Chinese supermarket, who plays a co-starring role with Dennis Weaver in NBC's "Kentucky Jones." As Dwight Eisenhower Wong, an escapee from Red China and the foster son of widower Jones, Rickey's part is as important in the series as that of Weaver, who has the title role.

Samee Tong now plays a scheming resort hotel manager in ABC's new "Mickey" series, a promotion from his houseboys' job through all those rollicking years of "Bachelor Father." He is probably the best known of the Oriental sidekicks. He, too, is a native of San Francisco.

Jack Soo, still another Chinese-American from San Francisco, is cast as — to quote ABC's publicity sheet — "friend - valet - chef-confidante and thorn-in-the-side" of Anthony Franciosa of "Valentine's Day." He, like Samee Tong's new character, is something of a comedy con man.

Fourth Oriental is Lani Miyazaki, born in California of Japanese parents, who plays the super-secretary and assistant to Craig Stevens of CBS' "Mr. Broadway." This pretty ex-model is permitted to speak perfect English and to conduct herself with considerable dignity — but then, "Mr. Broadway," whatever else it may not be, is not a comedy.

Keeping a Cat Happy

How to Handle Charles de Gaulle—As Learned by His Wife

Keeping a Cat Happy

Mostly he'll do it himself; but he'll let you help —if you go about it in the right way

By BETH BROWN

Author of "All Cats Go to Heaven" and "Famous Cats of Famous People"

ILLUSTRATION BY JOE CRAPANZANO

YOU OPEN your back door one fine morning—and there he is, waiting for you to invite him in. Maybe he doesn't even wait for an invitation but curls right past your ankles and into your house.

And once a cat walks in, somehow, by the magical wand of his tail, the atmosphere is transformed. The benediction of a peculiar and rewarding peace descends. You find yourself sharing his contentment in little things: an empty spool, the good smells of a warm kitchen, a sunbeam on the floor, the friendly tick of a clock. You don't know why, but a change comes over you, too. Your cat can teach you truly how to enjoy life.

Choosing a Cat: Before you buy a cat or accept one free from a friend, study his behavior. Does he act self-confident or does he back into a corner like a fighter who has been licked? Are his eyes runny? Do they look weak and expressionless? His eyes are your gauge of his character as well as his health.

If you buy a purebred cat, be sure that he has a pedigree—and get the papers at the time of purchase. If you're buying a show cat, remember that he had two parents. A novice is sometimes impressed by the mention of a famous mama and fails to notice that the father swaggered out of the alley and up the family tree.

First Day at Home: A cat should be shielded from excitement and confusion when you first bring him home. Talk softly to him. Don't keep picking him up and hugging him. Let him get acquainted with one person—and one room—at a time until he feels secure.

Also, do not feed him while he is still nervous. (You can, however, put a small bowl of water where he can see it.) After a few hours, when he has had time to look things over and calm down, offer him some food.

Feeding Your Cat: There are those who complain that their cats will not eat anything but chicken livers, broiled sturgeon, and smoked Nova Scotia salmon. These people are secretly proud of such fastidious menus and love to complain about the elegant tastes of Miss Puss.

All a cat really requires is that his food be fresh, slightly warm, and somewhat varied. And he is not a competent judge of what is best for him to eat; you must judge for him. For example, never feed a cat starchy foods such as potatoes, rice, corn, pastry, white bread, or crackers. His body cannot assimilate carbohydrates. Lean beef, horse meat, liver, kidneys, and chicken are much better choices.

In choosing canned foods remember that cat food is for cats and dog food is for dogs. Dog foods are prepared for gulping animals, and they stick to the roof of a cat's mouth. If you must feed him dog food, put a little milk in a separate dish for washing down the stubborn chunks.

If, like you, your cat has a fondness for snacking, fill a dish with catnip leaves. Also, once a week, mix a raw egg with his milk to make his coat glossy.

A grown cat should be fed twice a day. Serve him a light meal in the morning and his big meal later on. Always feed him at the same hour every day and be sure that water is always available.

Housebreaking: Most cats prefer the privacy and expanse of the out-of-doors for their toilet area. If yours is to be indoors, however, line a metal pan with a folded paper and tear up strips to put on top. Paper is preferable to sawdust or sand since it does not make tracks on the floor.

Should your cat refuse to use the indoor paper, sprinkle a little earth into the pan and gradually reduce the amount each day until he becomes accustomed to his paper. Cats like privacy indoors, too, and it is best to put their tray in a quiet corner. If possible, set two or more pans around in different rooms. A door may be closed accidentally sometimes.

Your Cat's Bed: Don't spoil that new cat of yours by putting him into bed with you. Once there, he will assume it is his forever.

Your cat should have his own bed—a basket or box that's strictly his domain. When he's there he wants no disturbance. If he craves company, he will come out and let you know.

Pad the bottom of the bed with an old towel or cotton blanket. No cat likes to be covered, so when it's cold, arrange the blanket around him instead. He'll make his nest in his own way. One important point: a cat's winter bed should be in a warm place and should be snug enough so that his body can create its own heat.

Your Cat's Bath: A cat is as clean as the floor on which he plays. But when he has gathered more than his share of coal dust or mud, here's how to bathe him:

Line your bathtub or sink with a towel or rubber mat to keep the cat from slipping. Run in a few inches of warm (not hot) water. Use a soft soap. Wet him down all over and be careful not to splash water into his face, eyes, or ears. If you're lucky enough to have a double sink, lift him into the clear water for his rinse.

Towel him well and calm him down in your lap while you are rubbing the excess water off. He will lick himself dry. If he puts up a fight—and well he might—wear gloves while you bathe him. Or, if he becomes really violent about it, place him in a pillowcase and wash him through that. He might not like it, but it will save you from being clawed.

Cat Traps: Because cats take such excellent care of themselves, they require less attention than other pets. But instinct sometimes fails.

Rat and insect poisons are tempting—and murderous. Sprayed house plants are another menace. Many cats have been scalded underfoot in a busy kitchen, electrocuted by overturned floor lamps, and imprisoned in closets, bureau drawers, and even refrigerators.

You can help your cat keep well by being a good housekeeper and by giving him whatever protection his own instinct can't offer. You will be repaid in full in ways known only to cats.

If you're in debt and want to get out—I can show you 71 ingenious (but perfectly legal) ways to do it

I wrote this book for people who are in debt, for those who really need help. And they can get it, quicker and easier than they think.

There are dozens of legitimate ways (a full 71 in all) to delay your debt, and eventually get out of it, and I believe I know them all. It's a pity that more people don't.

I have been a bank credit officer for nearly thirty years. In this time, I have sat down with a quarter of a million people to help them solve their financial problems.

My new book, HOW TO HAVE MORE MONEY TO SPEND, demonstrates step by step the techniques that can take the strain out out of paying your debts. With some thought and planning, you can change a recurring monthly headache into a relatively painless experience!

TIME-TESTED METHODS

Did you know, for example, that you can borrow yourself out of debt? (The process involves a number of thoroughly tested steps —the first of which is to borrow about twice as much as you need.)

And here are a few other things I'd like to show you:

- How to "freeze" your indebtedness indefinitely, paying it off only when you're ready — a perfectly proper technique that works fine for the U.S. Government, and can work just as well for you.
- How to get more credit — even when it seems you have reached your limit.
- How to avoid paying hidden charges when you buy on "time." (In other words, how to reduce your debts even before you incur them.)
- How to eliminate many needless, crippling expenses from your personal spending.
- How to deal with your financial problem as a whole — instead of wasting money attacking it piecemeal.

Which method—or combination of methods — should you use? As you read How To Have More Money To Spend, this question will answer itself. The book is filled with detailed case histories. At least one of them should be close enough to your own situation for all practical purposes.

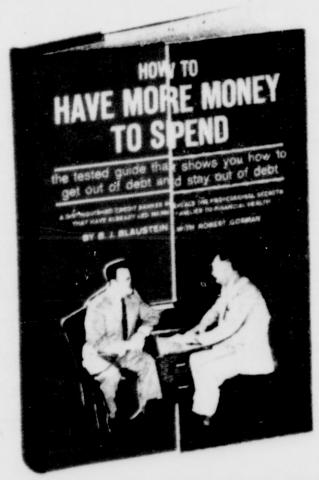

Remember: none of this is theoretical or speculative. It has all been tried — it has all worked. Every course of action I recommend has helped real people find their way back to one of the happiest conditions known to man — complete solvency.

How to Handle Charles de Gaulle*

*As Learned by His Wife

Roosevelt, Churchill, and Kennedy all had trouble trying to cope with the irascible French leader; but demure, sweet-faced Madame de Gaulle finds him quite manageable

By MARYA SAUNDERS

IT WAS a quiet evening in Colombey-les-Deux-Églises, and Gen. Charles de Gaulle was in the salon of his country home playing solitaire. When he hesitated a moment over a play, his wife, who was knitting and watching nearby, immediately pointed out the right card with her knitting needle.

"Yvonne," snapped the President of France, "I'm capable of playing solitaire alone!"

Madame De Gaulle returned silently to her knitting, suppressing a smile of satisfaction as her husband moved the card she had indicated.

This incident, witnessed by a member of the de Gaulle household, tells much about the woman known in French government circles as Madame la Générale and about the subtle (and occasionally not so subtle) ways she affects the President's thinking—and thereby the fate of France. "She understands him so well," an old family servant told me, "because she has had 43 years of marriage in which to learn."

Although Madame de Gaulle has found out how to handle her husband, it is a problem which most of the world's leaders have not been able to solve. President Roosevelt considered de Gaulle's "messiah complex" impossible to handle. Churchill agreed that he was "terrible" to get along with. And President Kennedy once remarked in exasperation that he just did not understand French (i.e., de Gaulle's) strategy.

The first time I saw Yvonne Charlotte Anne Marie de Gaulle was in Paris last May during the celebration of the 800th anniversary of Notre Dame Cathedral. I watched the small, dark-haired lady, her sweet face set in its tense expression, as she got out of the Presidential car, looking more the retiring European housewife than a world personage. Her head lowered, her gray eyes cast downward, their lids half shut, she barely reached the shoulders of the powerfully built six-foot, four-inch General.

This picture of a meek wife dominated by a towering husband is one she seems to enjoy. But there are many stories that suggest a contradictory image. Members of the British Foreign Office enjoy telling this anecdote about the de Gaulles in London during World War II. One day the Foreign Office sent a man out to the couple's house, and, while he was waiting in the vestibule, the General and his wife had a hot argument. As the General marched down the stairs, Madame de Gaulle's voice shot after him: "I'm telling you, Charles, you are not yet France!"

BUT IF YVONNE de Gaulle is one of the few people who dare tell the General off, she is also one of his most loyal supporters. And he knows it. At a recent reception, an old member of de Gaulle's Free French Army said, "My General, permit me to present my wife. She was one of the first Gaullists." President de Gaulle shook hands and then pointed to Madame de Gaulle. "She too," he said.

As her husband's first soldier, Yvonne is usually scrupulously respectful of his tastes for austerity, simplicity, and justice. But she is not above pushing aside the rules when the occasion demands. There was a time in wartime London when she blatantly broke the General's orders. De Gaulle had uremia, and Yvonne didn't have enough ration tickets for the milk she felt he needed. So she went to a black marketeer. De Gaulle, the self-appointed symbol of French honor, was horrified—but he had already consumed the illegal milk when he found out.

Although the First Lady of France has no official standing, observers believe Madame de Gaulle often affects her husband's thinking. For as the villagers of Colombey-les-Deux-Églises say, "They are always together."

I was told by Jacques Vendroux, Madame de Gaulle's older brother and mayor of their home town of Calais, that his sister "never wanted to play a direct role in politics." But he added: "Neither does she like politicians who get themselves gossiped about; she likes to keep a discreet and orderly house."

Her strict moral and religious standards are imposed on official personnel from houseboys to ministers. In one instance, a very capable official was sent packing from de Gaulle's staff because of a divorce. In another case, a minister was assigned to a foreign post when it was discovered that he was a priest who had broken his vows in order to marry. So strong are her views on just what is proper or improper that no ambitious minister's wife would ever be caught wearing a low-cut dress.

Usually the First Lady gets her ideas across to the President through what she selects to read to him from newspapers or magazines (since his eyesight is failing, she often does this). At other times, she lets him know her opinion by dropping such remarks as: "Charles, don't you think it's a pity so-and-so has a wife who makes such a mess of her life?"

THE FACT that so little has been written about Madame de Gaulle indicates her influence. She has a passionate dislike of being seen in public or talked about; she generally hides from the press and photographers and never grants interviews. Official government sources are instructed to say very little about her.

"She really hates publicity," her brother told me. "And she is particularly annoyed if the publicity is true. Then she knows it has come from one of the family. This she considers quite indiscreet."

Madame de Gaulle, now 64 years old and 10 years younger than her husband, was born into the family of a wealthy biscuit manufacturer who had emigrated from Canada to France. She was strictly educated in a convent school (and learned English so well that she later could serve as her husband's interpreter).

It is said that Yvonne Vendroux became acquainted with dashing, 30-year-old Capt. Charles de Gaulle through a family friend, Madame Paule Denquin. While visiting relatives in Paris, Madame Denquin had lunch with de Gaulle, and, when she returned home to Calais, she raved about him to Yvonne and Yvonne's mother. The girl remarked she would never marry a soldier because they travel around all the time. Her mother, however, was impressed. She said, "I'd like to meet such a rare bird."

Arrangements were made for the two families to meet at a painting exhibition in Paris. After seeing the dashing young officer, Yvonne promptly forgot her dislike of traveling. Her only worry was whether the towering captain found her too short.

From then on, things happened fast. The next week, Yvonne and her parents attended a grand ball at Versailles. De Gaulle was there, too; and, after her sixth consecutive waltz with him, Yvonne returned to her mother and said: "He has just asked me to marry him—and I have accepted." Five months later, April 6, 1921, they were married in the Church of Our Lady in Calais.

During the difficult and anguished years of World War II, General de Gaulle depended on his wife for sympathy and understanding. She listened, she soothed, she was a confidante who held her tongue. In her eyes, he could never fail. It is said that she sets him on the same level as France: "When she gives him an aspirin, she thinks it is all of France that has a headache!"

Madame de Gaulle not only cared for the General but also reared their three children: Philippe, who is now a captain in the French Navy; Elisabeth, who is married to a French Army colonel; and Anne, who died in 1946 at the age of 20.

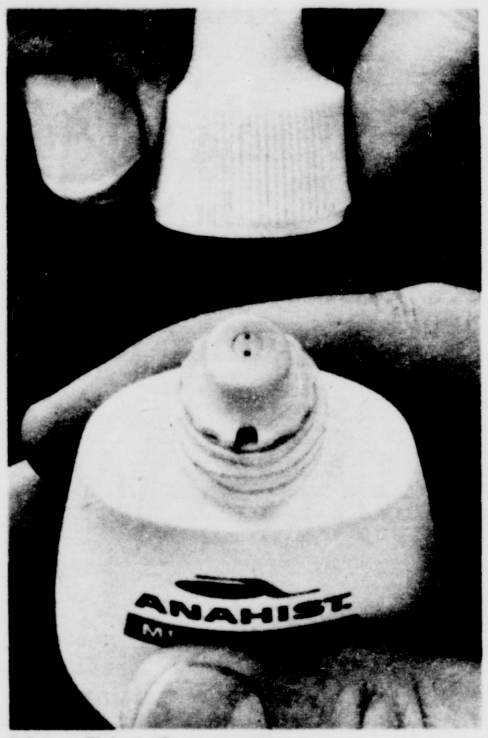

Anne was probably the greatest tragedy in the de Gaulles' lives. She was born retarded, and Madame de Gaulle personally watched over, dressed, and fed her throughout her lifetime. Since Anne's death, the de Gaulles have founded a hospital for retarded children that is supported by royalties from General de Gaulle's books. Each week Madame de Gaulle confers with the mother superior to solve any problems which may arise for the hospital's 36 young patients.

CHILDREN are very important to Madame de Gaulle. She has surrounded herself with them. Besides a granddaughter, four grandsons, 35 nieces and nephews, and innumerable grandnieces and grandnephews, she has more than 200 godchildren. Her strong feeling for youngsters is so well known in Gaullist circles that there is a joke about it. It is said that the servants in one cabinet minister's household are too busy to wait on tables or make the beds. They spend all their time knitting for the various children's charities of Madame la Générale!

What has molded the character of this extraordinary woman? The strict discipline of her early education? The years of frustration as the wife of a great man who was belittled and slighted? The years of heartache caring for her retarded daughter?

All of these, no doubt, were factors. But it is obvious that Yvonne de Gaulle's iron will and self-discipline are deeply rooted within her. When she was only 17, a graphologist examined her handwriting and issued this prophetic analysis: "Once this girl decides on an end, she spares no effort to arrive at it."

Once in a Lifetime

A motorist, so I've understood,
Once wanted the spark plugs changed in his car.
So the sage mechanic lifted the hood
And peered at the plugs as dirty as tar.

He raced the motor, inspected the clutch,
And checked the rings and the gears and such.
With many a diagnostic thump,
He tested the feed and the fuel pump.
He hoisted the patient up on the rack
And poked at her innards front and back,
While the owner waited in growing panic
To hear the words of the sage mechanic.

And here's what he said—a speech so strange
It almost made the motorist weep:
"Except for needing a spark-plug change,
There isn't a darn thing wrong with the heap!"

The doctor had easily diagnosed the couple's constant irritation and nervousness. "You two don't get out and exercise enough," he told them. "Buy yourself something to exercise with, get outside and work out—you'll release all your tensions and feel better."

Some time later the husband returned to the doctor. "Well, you helped me out, Doc, he said, "but my wife is just as irritable as ever."

"Tell me more," the doctor asked.

"Well, I bought myself some golf clubs, and they really helped me loosen up," the husband continued. "But that lawn mower I got for my wife—why it hasn't done her a darn bit of good." —Anna Herbert

The mayor met the principal of the toughest school in town. The principal was obviously downcast, and the mayor asked him why.

"School's been open only a short time," the educator explained, "and already we've had 39 dropouts."

"Is that bad?" the mayor said. "After all, you're in the roughest section of town."

"That's the trouble," replied the principal, "38 of the 39 dropouts were teachers." —James Shurluck

The young girl assured her parents that she and her boy friend were only half serious about getting married: "I am—he's not," she explained.

How come the Fourth Necessity costs less than any of the other three?

Right after life's three necessities—food, clothing and shelter—the Fourth Necessity is enough life insurance. It could provide years and years of the other necessities while your wife raises the kids, if anything happened to you.
That takes a lot of money. But it needn't take a lot of life insurance.
Say you're 28 years old, with a five-year-old to raise. By paying just $25 a month for life insurance, here's what your family could collect if you died tomorrow: a lump sum of $10,000 plus $197 a month until your five-year-old reached 18. Wouldn't it be a good idea to call your Metropolitan adviser? Before you turn the page and forget.

Filled with a meat stuffing flavored with nutmeg in the Swedish manner, these cabbage rolls are garnished with pecans for a touch of Americana.

Stuffed Cabbage Rolls

(Káldolmar)

- 1 large head cabbage (3 to 3½ lbs.)
- 1 lb. veal, ground four times
- 1 lb. beef, ground four times
- 1¼ cups milk
- ⅔ cup fine dry bread crumbs
- 4 teaspoons grated onion
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1 teaspoon ground nutmeg
- 2 10½-oz. cans condensed beef broth
- 2 soup cans water
- ¼ cup flour
- ½ cup water

1. Remove and discard wilted outer leaves from head of cabbage; rinse and cut out the core.

2. Put cabbage in kettle; add boiling water to cover and 1 teaspoon salt. Cover and bring water to boiling; reduce heat and simmer until cabbage leaves are softened, about 5 min. Carefully separate the leaves and set aside on absorbent paper to drain. (You will need 16 large and 16 small leaves.)

3. Combine the meat and the next five ingredients; mix lightly but thoroughly.

4. Place a small cabbage leaf in center of a large leaf. Put about ⅓ cup of the meat mixture onto the center of each small leaf. Roll each leaf, tucking ends in toward center. Fasten securely with wooden picks and tie with cord.

5. Combine beef broth and water in a sauce pot and bring to boiling. Add cabbage rolls one at a time so that water continues to boil. Reduce heat; cover and cook about 25 min., or until the cabbage rolls are tender.

6. Remove rolls with slotted spoon; reserve broth for sauce or gravy. Remove wooden picks and cord from rolls and keep rolls warm.

7. To prepare sauce, combine the flour and water in a saucepan and blend thoroughly. Add 2 cups of the reserved broth slowly, stirring constantly. Cook and stir over medium heat until sauce comes to boiling; cook 3 min. longer until thickened and smooth. Add salt and pepper, if desired.

8. Pour sauce over cabbage rolls in a serving dish. If desired, use Cream Gravy instead of the sauce. 8 servings

Stir in 1 cup reserved beef broth and cook, stirring constantly until boiling. Stir in 1 cup milk and a mixture of ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon ground cardamon, and a few grains sugar. Bring to boiling; cook 3 min., stirring until thickened.

Bacon Pancake

(Ugnspannkaka)

- 1 cup flour
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 2 eggs, slightly beaten
- 2 cups milk
- ½ lb. bacon, diced, fried, and drained on absorbent paper

1. Blend the first three ingredients in a bowl.

2. Combine eggs and milk and beat well.

3. Gradually add milk mixture to dry ingredients; stir until well blended. Set aside about 1 hr.

4. Generously grease an 11 x 7 x 1½-in. baking pan. Stir cooked bacon into batter and pour into the pan.

5. Bake at 400°F 40 min., or until mixture is well browned on top.

6. Cut into squares and serve hot with preserved lingonberries. 6 servings

Limpa

- 2 pkgs. active dry yeast
- ½ cup warm water, 110°F to 115°F
- ½ cup firmly packed dark brown sugar
- ⅓ cup molasses
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 2 teaspoons caraway seed
- ½ teaspoon ground anise seed
- 1¼ cups hot water
- 3½ to 4 cups flour
- 2 cups rye flour

1. Soften yeast in warm water; let stand 5 min.

2. Meanwhile, put the next six ingredients into a large bowl. Add the hot water and stir until butter or margarine is melted; cool the mixture to lukewarm.

3. Add 1 cup of the flour and beat until smooth. Stir softened yeast and add, mixing well. Add the rye flour and beat until very smooth. Beat in enough remaining flour to make a soft dough.

4. Turn onto a lightly floured surface and allow to rest 5 to 10 min. Knead until dough is smooth and does not stick to the surface. Form into a large ball and put into a greased deep bowl. Turn to bring greased surface to top. Cover with waxed paper and a towel and let stand in a warm place (about 80°F) until dough is doubled, about 2 hrs.

5. Punch dough down with fist, pull edges in to center and turn dough completely over in bowl. Cover and let rise again about 1½ hrs., or until nearly doubled. Punch down dough and turn onto a lightly floured surface. Divide in half and shape into balls.

6. Place in greased 9-in. round pans; cover and let rise until dough is doubled, about 1 hr.

7. Bake at 375°F 30 to 35 min., brushing with milk the last 3 min. of baking. Remove from pans to cooling rack. 2 loaves bread

■ THE STORY of how a small Midwestern town achieved a record turnout of voters in the last election made the wire services.

The town's supermarket never had it so good. Neither did the candidates. Each citizen who voted received a free pound of bacon.

About the same time there was an election in a foreign country, where some of the people stood in line all day for the privilege of voting. Nobody gave them anything but trouble.

There are probably some areas of the world where voting is such a rare opportunity that even a hungry man would rather have the ballot than the bacon, should he be given the choice.

New American citizens are always excited about voting for the first time, but we manage to help them get over their enthusiasm. Voting in the United States is fairly old-hat. We've been doing it for several hundred years, and it seems to have lost its novelty.

Of course, some of us try everything we can concoct to push citizens to the polls. The Democrats and Republicans and the League of Women Voters get on the telephone and have public rallies and run free taxi service back and forth to the precincts, pleading and begging the people to make an effort to select their representatives in government.

But it's such a nuisance. We have to get up a few minutes early to vote on the way to work or stop on the way home. Either way, it will probably take 15 to 20 minutes.

That's quite a lot to ask of an American citizen, unless of course you give him free bacon and he can make somewhere between 59 and 75 cents profit on the trade.

Nobody ought to have any quarrel with an enterprising community which found a good way the politicians never imagined to make the townsfolk vote. If voters bring home the bacon, more power to them.

As for the rest of us, we might do well to read the ancient story of a man named Esau. He sold his birthright for a mess of pottage.

Many of us go him one better. We give ours away.

A Woman for President?

Here's How Family Weekly Readers Voted

■ WOULD YOU VOTE for a woman as President of the United States?

That was the question FAMILY WEEKLY asked its readers during the height of the preconvention campaigns for the Presidential nomination, which included the candidacy of Sen. Margaret Chase Smith of Maine.

Now the tabulation is complete—and it's a close decision. YES votes predominate, but by only 50.05 percent of the total. The results were close because twice as many women voted as men—and YES votes among this majority tipped the scales in favor of Madam President, though by the narrowest of margins. Here is a breakdown of the voting:

MEN:	Yes: 34.27 percent	No: 65.73 percent
WOMEN:	Yes: 58.95 percent	No: 41.05 percent

Some typical YES comments were:

"At the high level of human development required of the President, sex characteristics are unimportant. Extremely rare leadership qualities are necessary whether in a man or woman. We should seek these qualities, period."—Mrs. D. N. Middlebrooks, Dothan, Ala.

"God gave women the responsibility of bearing and caring for children —if He trusts us with the lives of our children, I'm sure I could trust a woman with the life of our country."—Mrs. David Barlow, Jr., Fayetteville, N. C.

Some typical NO comments were:

"First, a woman by nature would be more reluctant to make necessary but critical military commitments and thus might endanger the country; second, men in many areas of this world have little respect for women. A 'Madam President' would be at a disadvantage in dealing with rulers of these areas."—Mrs. H. S. C. Willcox, Mt. Pleasant, S. C.

"In God's word, the Bible, we read: "But I suffer not a woman to teach, nor to usurp authority over man . . . for Adam was first formed, then Eve" (I Tim. 2:12, 13). A woman elected to our nation's highest office, no matter how efficient, would be to boast that we are wiser than God."—Mrs. Cecille Miller, Danville, Ill.

There is an hour when you reach for calm and knowing hands...

(Among them: your clergyman's, your close relatives' and friends'... and those of the funeral director you've come to know and respect!)

It is a lonely hour when you lose someone close to you. It is an hour when you need all the strength of your faith . . . all the understanding and warmth your Church and family and friends can provide.

It is also an hour in which you confront a multitude of unfamiliar problems, when countless things need to be done and arranged at once. It is then that you appreciate the gentle island of calm you find in your funeral director. He knows what needs to be done. And goes about doing it. Quietly. Efficiently. With dignity. Always making sure that he is guided by a deep sense of responsibility toward you and your wishes.

The funeral directors in your community are people you can count on. They are good citizens, good neighbors who know that respect is only won by deserving it. If you have not yet established a relationship with a funeral director as you have with a doctor or lawyer, you'll find it reassuring to do so. Incidentally, he'll be glad to provide you with a free copy of Clark's informative booklet, "My Duty." It answers in advance many of the questions you are likely to face when you are the one who must take charge. It's a booklet that over 12 million families have found helpful. THE PANTS SUIT

FASHIONS

Left: Russ Tog's elegant suiting for picnicking on a crisp afternoon: a brilliant sea-blue wool-twill pants suit with coordinating blouse. Ensemble about $30.

By ROSALYN ABREVAYA

WHEN FRENCH DESIGNER Coco Chanel helped launch pants for women by first wearing them in public in the 1920s, American women soon turned out similarly attired—and faced a ground swell of unfavorable male criticism.

But by the 1930s women were firmly ensconced in trousers—and who could blame them? They had at last escaped the confines of the skirt and could experience a freedom they never had known before.

The average American male is still strongly opinionated about women in pants—and up till now he has had some justification. More often than not, pants have revealed too much, contributing to a downright ill-kempt look. But this season both sexes will witness an exciting change.

Many of the leading fashion designers, who for years wouldn't think of showing a pair of pants in their collections, finally have capitulated. They've turned their genius to giving pants a new, straighter dimension and added a well-tailored matching or contrasting jacket to boot.

Dubbed the pants suit, the jacket is often lined and constructed like a suit jacket, and many of the new pants have a trim but more generous cut. Separates also have been influenced by this new trend, and tops and pants are cut in the manner of elegant suiting.

But the pants controversy rages anew when the question comes up: where should women wear these new outfits? Many designers prefer that women wear pants suits only in the country or for travel. But if the past is any indication, chances are the independent American woman is likely to follow her own whims and wear these suits smack in the middle of Main Street, U.S.A.

Left: evidence that the pants-suit look has influenced separates is presented here in Catalina's expertly cut twill-knit jacket, $25, and toffee pants, $19.

CARROLL BAKER

IT'S NO CRIME TO BE BEAUTIFUL

By PEER J. OPPENHEIMER

That "Baby Doll" girl has finally learned to live with being lovely

AS THE THUMB-SUCKING young girl in "Baby Doll," Carroll Baker made a swift and audacious start toward stardom—but she fell out of favor in Hollywood almost as fast.

Her subsequent films were critically successful but box-office bombs. Carroll herself was considered just one more product of Lee Strasberg's Actors Studio: too much Method actress, too much New York, too much introvert ever to become a commercial success.

But Carroll is back in Hollywood now—and this time she's touted as a "love goddess" in the tradition of Jean Harlow and Marilyn Monroe! To my surprise, her husband Jack Garfein credited a suggestion I made shortly after they left California several years ago as being instrumental in the transformation that led to Carroll's new popularity.

"Carroll always had a physical response from people, even as a child," Jack recalled recently. "But like a lot of actresses who came to Hollywood from New York, she didn't want to hear about it; she just wanted to prove herself as an actress. And Elia Kazan was no help. When he filmed 'Baby Doll,' he told Carroll that she was a great actress. Only years later did he admit that he cast her primarily because she was physically attractive.

"You'll remember that you, Carroll, and I had dinner one night after we had moved back to New York. You asked why Carroll wasn't doing any publicity, why she was turning her back on all the things that potentially could make her a star. You said maybe if she saw the rest of the world she would get a new perspective on herself and her career. So we went to Europe—and the trip had a great effect on her because Carroll found out there that an actress can be accepted as both sexy and artistic."

Carroll herself points to a specific incident on the trip that changed her attitude. "Jack and I attended the Venice Film Festival. One morning I came out wearing long slacks and a print blouse. Most of the other girls were in bikinis. One photographer was so disappointed that he ran to a store and bought me a pair of pink shorts and a pink jersey top and asked me to put them on. I did, reluctantly.

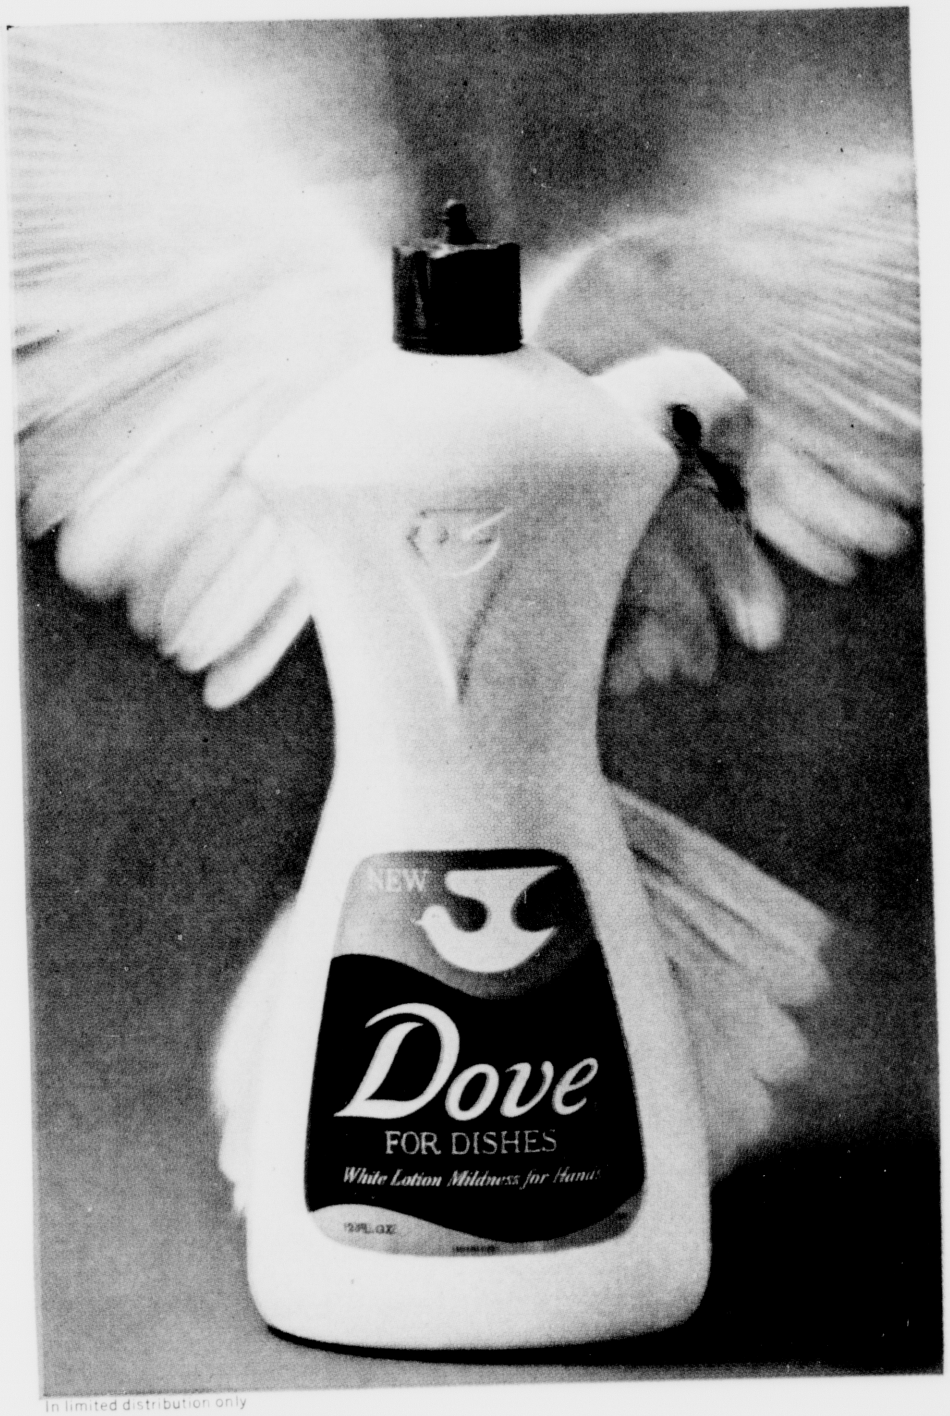

"By coincidence, I was seen by a famous Italian woman photographer, who took the first really alluring pictures of me. Until then I didn't even know how to be photo-

IT'S NO CRIME TO BE BEAUTIFUL

That "Baby Doll" girl has finally learned to live with being lovely

Recalling her own unhappy childhood, Carroll tries to give her children, Herschel and Blanche, a feeling of security.

By PEER J. OPPENHEIMER

AS THE THUMB-SUCKING young girl in "Baby Doll," Carroll Baker made a swift and audacious start toward stardom—but she fell out of favor in Hollywood almost as fast.

Her subsequent films were critically successful but box-office bombs. Carroll herself was considered just one more product of Lee Strasberg's Actors Studio: too much Method actress, too much New York, too much introvert ever to become a commercial success.

But Carroll is back in Hollywood now—and this time she's touted as a "love goddess" in the tradition of Jean Harlow and Marilyn Monroe! To my surprise, her husband Jack Garfein credited a suggestion I made shortly after they left California several years ago as being instrumental in the transformation that led to Carroll's new popularity.

"Carroll always had a physical response from people, even as a child," Jack recalled recently. "But like a lot of actresses who came to Hollywood from New York, she didn't want to hear about it; she just wanted to prove herself as an actress. And Elia Kazan was no help. When he filmed 'Baby Doll,' he told Carroll that she was a great actress. Only years later did he admit that he cast her primarily because she was physically attractive.

"You'll remember that you, Carroll, and I had dinner one night after we had moved back to New York. You asked why Carroll wasn't doing any publicity, why she was turning her back on all the things that potentially could make her a star. You said maybe if she saw the rest of the world she would get a new perspective on herself and her career. So we went to Europe—and the trip had a great effect on her because Carroll found out there that an actress can be accepted as both sexy and artistic."

Carroll herself points to a specific incident on the trip that changed her attitude. "Jack and I attended the Venice Film Festival. One morning I came out wearing long slacks and a print blouse. Most of the other girls were in bikinis. One photographer was so disappointed that he ran to a store and bought me a pair of pink shorts and a pink jersey top and asked me to put them on. I did, reluctantly.

"By coincidence, I was seen by a famous Italian woman photographer, who took the first really alluring pictures of me. Until then I didn't even know how to be photographed. When a camera was pointed at me, I froze up. But she made me feel at ease. The pictures appeared all over Europe and, much to my amazement, didn't keep the people I talked to from still considering me an actress!"

Yet Carroll—who looks at herself with an almost dispassionate detachment—insists she only reverted back to the image that was always rightfully hers. The product of a broken home, she got into show business at an early age—and because of her beauty, not her acting ability.

She went on the road, playing one-night stands in night clubs, dancing at business conventions, and traveling as an assistant to Volta the Great, a magician.

In 1952 Carroll had enough. She headed for New York to try for some class bookings. She didn't succeed, but she did manage to become the Coca-Cola and Winston cigarette girl in television commercials. For a while she also gave the weather report on tv, but this career was cut short the night she lost her cue cards and, in an attempt to improvise, reported, "There's a lot of hot air blowing in from Texas."

Fortunately, residuals from tv commercials kept her in room and board while she studied at the Actors Studio, where she met her husband-to-be, director Jack Garfein. Accepted by the Studio and encouraged by her future husband, she won her first test as an actress when she played a neurotic girl in Robert Anderson's play, "All Summer Long." Then came her acclaim in "Giant" and in "Baby Doll."

CARROLL HAD her first chance to employ her more obvious charms in a moderately budgeted English film titled, "Station Six—Sahara" (made in 1962 but not released until recently in the U.S.). "It had some very frank scenes in it," she explained, "but handled properly, it almost could have been an art film."

But the real turning point in her career came at a charity ball in New York when she met producer Joe Levine. She knew about his plans to make "The Carpetbaggers," and she had read the book. When Levine asked whether she would like to play the role of the voluptuous Rina Marlow, Carroll replied, "Absolutely yes." They shook hands and made the deal that night.

The film—at a relatively modest cost of $3,500,000—has become Hollywood's third-biggest moneymaker of all time. As a follow-up, Paramount has cast Carroll in a similarly sexy role in "Sylvia."

(In other forthcoming pictures, however, Carroll will portray a Quaker girl in "Cheyenne Autumn," St. Veronica in "The Greatest Story Ever Told," and a missionary's daughter in "Mr. Moses.")

Neither Jack nor Carroll feels that her new exposure as a love goddess has had any adverse effect on their marriage.

"On the contrary," Carroll insists, "when you are terribly successful, living becomes much easier. We no longer have any financial worries and no career problems, no worries about finding a picture for me or what kind of picture it should be. Once you know exactly what your image is, a great weight is lifted and it's much easier to function.

"Jack helped in every possible way. Ours is a complete partnership. He literally stopped working himself to get my career organized. And, in a way, even my children helped by understanding what is happening. They're past the baby stage and have become a little less dependent on me and more involved with school and their friends. But most of all, they're pleased that I am happy and working."

SHE RECALLED an incident which showed how her daughter Blanche, now 7½, and son Herschel, now 6½, have accepted her career. About two years ago, the children watched her in a scene directed by their father. When Carroll's costar, Ralph Meeker, took their mother in his arms and kissed her, Herschel ran to his father and cried, "Look what that man is doing to Mommy!" Before Jack had a chance to explain, Blanche (all of 5 then) smiled patronizingly and said, "Don't worry, Herschel, it's not for real. He's just pretending, isn't he, Daddy?"

"That's right," their father assured them. "They're just pretending."

Today, the Garfeins live in a beautiful mansion in Beverly Hills, complete with swimming pool, soda bar, and their own projection room. They have a housekeeper, gardener, and maid, and Carroll's mother —with whom she now gets along well— works as her secretary. She has not succeeded in re-establishing close ties with her father, however.

Her parents were divorced when she was 11, and in an unusual divorce arrangement, she and her younger sister Virginia were split up. Carroll stayed with her father; her sister went to live with her mother. But it was an unhappy arrangement all the way around. "I had no great affection for anyone," Carroll recalls.

Now that Carroll has love and affection at home and is well on her way to the top of her profession, she seems much happier than she has ever been. She is doing what the public wants her to do, and as she phrases it: "I have matured enough to come to peace with success."

"Mommy, you forgot... every litter bit hurts!"

It happens in the best of families! Mom or Dad forgets that every litter bit hurts. And forgetting is the main cause of the litter mess that mars America's highways—your highways. That first bit of trash you thoughtlessly toss away is the beginning of a pile-up that costs millions of tax dollars to clean up. ■ But that's not all that's bad about littering. Remember—as the twig is bent, so grows the tree. A bit of your children's good citizenship training goes out the window with every litter bit you toss away. ■ So, Mom, Dad—lead the way to the litterbag. Carry one in your car at all times. And use it. Make it a family project to Keep America Beautiful!
